COURTS CONVICT 8 IN CRIME WAR; DEATH FOR ONE

Ex-Convict Guilty of Holdup Murder.

Drive on Crime

The conviction of an ex-convict and his confederate for a robbery murder climaxed a busy day in the Cook county criminal courts, where other blows were struck against law violators:

Alfred Codman Jr., son of a New York broker, was found guilty of manslaughter and faces a prison term of 1 to 14 years.

Four men accused of raping a school girl after holding her prisoner two days were sentenced to three years each in the penitentiary. Details on page 10.

Chester Novak, 30 years old, a paroled convict, was found guilty of murder before Judge Harry B. Miller in the Criminal court yesterday. The jury fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair.

A companion, George Gross, 35 years old, who has a minor police record, also was found guilty. His punishment was fixed at ninety-nine years in the penitentiary.

The jury deliberated only a few minutes and found both men guilty on the first ballot. A motion for a new trial will be heard on Jan. 11.

Kills Victim on Street.

Novak was paroled from Joliet prison on April 13, 1934, where he had served nine years of a ten year to life sentence for robbery with a gun. Two and a half months later, last July 1, he and Gross stopped Henry Mendelbaum, 48 years old, of 2031 Pierce avenue, and his wife, Belle, near Damen and Pierce avenues.

Mendelbaum, his arms full of bundles, gathered during a shopping trip from which he was returning, was slow to raise his hands. Novak shot him down.

A police squad in the neighborhood heard the shot. While speeding to the scene, they captured Gross as he ran. Novak escaped for the time being.

Seize Novak and Gun.

Gross professed ignorance of the exact address where his companion lived, but suggested a certain neighborhood on Haddon avenue. Novak was found at 2628 Haddon avenue, the death pistol hidden under the cushions of a davenport.

At the detective bureau it was found that Novak's record dated to 1923, when he paid a fine of $100 and served a year in the Bridewell for larceny. On Dec. 30, 1924, he was found guilty of robbery with a gun, and pleaded guilty to grand larceny. He was sentenced to ten years to life on the first charge, and one year to life on the second.

On Feb. 28, 1925, these sentences were vacated, but Novak was immediately sentenced to ten years to life for another robbery. He remained in Joliet until his parole last April.

CONVICT BROKER'S SON

Alfred Codman Jr., 32 years old, Harvard graduate, son of a wealthy New York stock broker, was convicted of manslaughter yesterday in a bench trial before Judge Grover C. Niemeyer of the Criminal court. Codman faces a possible sentence ranging from one up to fourteen years in the penitentiary if his motion for a new trial is overruled on Jan. 10.

Last Feb. 3 an automobile driven by Codman struck and killed Mrs. Elizabeth Freytag, 3145 Cambridge avenue, and seriously injured her husband, Arthur. The couple were standing on a bus loading platform at Sheridan road and Briar place.

Accused of Speeding Away.

Testimony showed that Codman's car struck a light post in an attempt to pass another automobile, careened into the bus platform and killed Mrs. Freytag. Then, witnesses testified, Codman drove back into the street and sped away, carrying Freytag on the car bumper for 200 feet before he was dislodged and thrown to the street.

After racing past a stoplight and reaching Belmont avenue, the state charged, Codman was cut off and halt-

IDENTIFIES VOICE IN RANSOM DEAL AS DEFENDANT'S

Flyer Scorns Theory of 'Inside Job.'

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on Back Page.)

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—To an attentive jury Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today unhesitatingly voiced his belief that Bruno Richard Hauptmann kidnaped and murdered his first born son, Charles Jr.

He backed that assertion by a positive identification of Hauptmann's voice as that of the man who collected the $50,000 ransom for the child in St. Raymond's cemetery, New York City, the night of April 2, 1932.

For nearly three hours Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly engaged in a verbal duel with the aviator in an endeavor to shake that testimony. He sought to make the witness confess that he had believed the kidnaping to be the work of a gang and not one man up to the time of Hauptmann's arrest.

Flyer Stirs Courtroom.

Col. Lindbergh not only held his own in this struggle of wits but returned swift retorts on several occasions which stirred the courtroom crowd to demonstrations. Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard threatened to clear the courtroom, but the crowd refused to subdue its noisy enthusiasm for the famous flyer's sallies.

He was succeeded on the witness stand by a Hopewell policeman and by Mrs. Elsie Whately, widow of the butler, Ollie Whately, who died in the spring of 1933. Their direct stories told of the events on the night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was spirited away from its nursery.

In cross-examination of these witnesses Defense Attorney Reilly revealed the nature of Hauptmann's defense to the charge. In addition to presenting an alibi, the defense will seek to point the finger of suspicion at members of the Lindbergh household, it was indicated.

Holds It "Inside Job."

That the kidnaping was an "inside job" is Reilly's contention, and in his cross-examination of the state's witnesses he attempted to carry to the minds of the jury the implication that the abduction might well have been carried out by a gang consisting of the following five persons:

Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" who conducted the ransom negotiations, referred to by Attorney Reilly as a possible "master mind."

Betty Gow, Scotch nursemaid to the Lindbergh infant, who last saw the child alive and who reported its disappearance.

Ollie Whately, the butler.

Avoids Direct Accusation.

Attorney Reilly did not directly accuse this quintet of the crime, but in his examination he repeatedly sought to obtain testimony indicating the ease with which they might have stolen the child and to bring out what he inferred were suspicious incidents pointing to them as suspects.

That these attempts of the defense counsel were unsuccessful so far as the courtroom crowd was concerned was obvious. What the jury thought of them, of course, could not be ascertained.

But reports persist in Flemington among those who know the jurors intimately that there will be a disagreement over a verdict. Proponents of this theory only nod their heads wisely when interrogated and intimate that there are a couple of "good defense jurors" in the box.

Identification Is Sensation.

After the sensation of Col. Lindbergh's identification of Hauptmann's voice at the morning session, the afternoon session was something of an anticlimax.

That identification was made in such a manner as to leave no hearer in doubt of the witness' belief in the defendant's guilt. After he had detailed at length the trip to the cemetery with Dr. Condon and the handing over of the ransom money, Lindbergh was asked if he knew the voice, with a guttural foreign accent, that had called "Hey, doctor!" to Condon.

"O, that was Hauptmann's voice," said Lindbergh, almost as if wonder-

32 Caught Stealing Relief Meat

THE "NEW ORDER"

Arrested with 1,187 Lbs. of Veal at Plant

Policemen of the detective bureau last night arrested 32 workmen as they left the meat storage plant of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission at 2101 West Pershing road. Their coats were bulging with stolen veal, and when the loot was weighed it was discovered that the 32 were making away with a total of 1,187 pounds.

H. A. Pearson, chief investigator for the relief commission, who went to the police for help in breaking up wholesale thefts from the storage plant by the workmen, all of whom are officially designated as relief clients, asserted a belief that in the last three weeks the thieves have taken an average of a ton of meat a day, or a total of more than 40,000 pounds.

200 Hired to Cut Meat.

The meat in the warehouse was turned over to the Illinois commission by the federal government, and from one to four million pounds is always on hand. A total of 200 men, working in two shifts and paid 50 cents an hour for their labor, are employed regularly in cutting up the meat for distribution in five pound chunks.

Eighty-two were on the shift that was dismissed at 9 o'clock last night. As the first of them left the warehouse they were seized. By the time 32 had been captured, others, suspected of being in the plot to take supplies, became alarmed and tossed away their meat. Almost 1,000 pounds was found on the floor near the doors.

Surprised at Police Intrusion.

Among those seized inside were Henry Leichenger, farmer living near Homewood, who had been appointed foreman of the warehouse, and Willard Blosser, 518 North Green street, timekeeper. Both appeared surprised at the arrival of the police, and also at their mission.

"I did think it was kind of funny," said Leichenger, "when I saw the boys take big hunks of meat when they left, but I supposed it was all right. Everybody seemed to think it was expected. I never got any of it. In fact, I killed a couple of hogs at home for my own meat."

Blosser said that he just kept the time and that he thought it wasn't his business to be watching the meat, too.

Men Find Ready Market.

Investigator Pearson said that he learned on Thursday of the huge thefts and with his own investigators the same evening saw men on both shifts leave heavily laden. He went to the detective bureau last night and twelve policemen, led by Sergt. John Kratzmeyer, were assigned to break up the thievery.

"I am sure the total amount taken in the last three weeks will average a ton a day," said Mr. Pearson. "It may have run to two tons. I have information showing that one workman carried away and sold enough meat to get $60 which he spent on Christmas presents. We are going to get at the bottom of this matter and stop it. The meat taken from those arrested tonight will be kept under refrigeration for evidence."

Tempted by Veal Chops.

It was said that many of the thieves had found ready markets for the meat, and that a number of the purchasers were known and would be prosecuted.

Nearly all those arrested last night, except Leichenger and Blosser, are colored. One of them is Percy Dumas, 35 years old, 4618 Evans avenue. Tears ran down his face as he explained how he became dishonest.

"I am a minister of the gospel," he said, "but I love meat. I don't get enough of it on the relief. I was tempted by veal chops and fell."

WORK PROGRAM TO END DOLE, CONGRESS TOLD

Predict Jobs in April

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt was told tonight at a three hour conference of Democratic leaders that 880 million dollars would be needed to continue the present form of relief until April or May, when the employables on the rolls can be put to work under his new program.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson said the 880 million dollars, or most of it, would be transferred from unexpended balances in other funds.

Senator Robinson predicted an early appropriation for public works, but would give no estimate of the amount pending the delivery of the President's budget message Monday. He said it was probable the social security measures, including unemployment insurance and old age pensions, would be written into a single bill.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—With the overwhelming Democratic majorities in both houses extolling the message President Roosevelt delivered today, there is apparent certainty tonight that congress will approve the President's vast work relief project and other features of the new Roosevelt program.

After listening to the message which the President read to the houses in joint session shortly after noon, Democratic leaders said the way would be cleared for speedy action on the Roosevelt proposals. Although some conservative Democrats as well as Republicans evinced doubts of the soundness of the scheme to provide "made" work for 3½ million unemployed it is evident that the administration commands ample support for the measure.

Congress Awaits Bills.

As a result, however, of the abdication by congress of many of its functions neither house will proceed until it receives the bills which the President desires passed. These measures are now being framed by the President's legislative experts.

Mr. Roosevelt reserved for his budget message, which he will transmit on Monday, the disclosure of the estimated cost of the work relief project. The understanding in administration circles, however, is that the total outlay proposed for the next fiscal year on work relief is between 4 and 5 billion dollars.

Discussing the work relief project later in the day the President estimated that, inclusive of those who would obtain work indirectly in the manufacture of supplies and equipment for public works, employment would be furnished to 7 million persons.

Told Bonus Will Pass.

At a White House conference tonight with Vice President Garner, Speaker Byrns, and other senate and house leaders, the President went into greater detail on the legislation he proposes and discussed plans for its speedy enactment and for the sidetracking of the Townsend old age pension scheme and other inflationist measures.

Received with an ovation by members of both parties that reflected the impressive vote of confidence given him in the November elections, Mr. Roosevelt read to the statesmen and the packed galleries in the house chamber a message reporting optimistically the progress of his recovery efforts up to date, outlining briefly the new recovery and reform measures and redefining his conception of the New Deal as a new economic system equalizing the overprivileged and the underprivileged in which there will be fair profits for all endeavor.

His program for this session of congress, so far as he disclosed it, may be summarized as follows:

1. Of the 5 million unemployed family heads on relief 1½ million aged and other "unemployables" will be returned to state relief and the remaining 3½ millions given work on a multitude of public works, including slum clearance,

Vanderbilt Jr. Weds; So Does Former Wife

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., member of one of America's most famous families, made a third venture into matrimony here today when he was married to Miss Helen Varner of Clarksburg, W. Va.

And, at the same time, the word came from New York of the announcement that his second wife, the former Mrs. Mary Weir Logan of Chicago, had been married since last June to Thomas P. Brett of New York.

Met in Albuquerque.

Vanderbilt declared that he had met his third wife in Albuquerque three years ago, when she came there to do some sketching and he was in the city "doing some writing."

The ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace in the county courthouse, and the couple planned to leave tomorrow for the Grand Canyon en route to Vanderbilt's ranch near Reno, Nev. Mr. Vanderbilt gave his age as 36 and Miss Varner as 26. She is the divorced wife of Noah Anderson an athletic coach at Clarksburg.

Vanderbilt's first wife was Rachel Littleton, formerly of Chattanooga, Tenn. They were divorced in 1927 and the next year he married Mrs. Logan.

Separate in 1931.

In June of 1931 they separated, after Vanderbilt had accused his wife of being overfriendly with Peter Arno, well known caricaturist. The events surrounding this put the Vanderbilt affairs on the front pages throughout the country, after Arno and Vanderbilt engaged in some lively bouts at fisticuffs and Arno charged that Vanderbilt had threatened him with a revolver.

On Aug. 4, 1931, Mary Weir Logan Vanderbilt secured a divorce in Reno, charging cruelty.

According to the word from New York, she was married June 20 to Brett at St. Pauls' church in Concord, Mass. Her only daughter, Joan Logan, 10, was the lone witness.

Daughter in Chicago.

Mrs. Brett in New York said her daughter is now visiting Mr. Logan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, in Chicago, but will return to New York and will live with her and Mr. Brett.

Brett was born in England and came to the United States in 1913. He served with the Canadian royal air force during the war and later transferred to the 2d division of the American army.

HE SMILES, THEN HE DECIDES TO SHOOT A STORK!

There was a broad smile on the face of Oak Park Policeman Elmer Paulsen yesterday as he entered the office of the village controler, Theodore Leth.

"No doubt you remember, Teddy," he said, "that you and I have a little $5 bet. As I recall it, the one to whom a son was first born was to be the winner."

"That is correct," said Controler Leth.

"So I have come to collect," announced the policeman. "My boy was born at the West Suburban hospital at midnight."

"That is interesting," retorted the controler. "But you should have looked at the daily table of arrivals at the hospital. You would have seen that twin boys who are going to call Theodore Leth daddy got there seven hours ahead of young Paulsen. My figures show that you owe me $10."

After Paulsen had gone back to the police station a brother policeman asked him what he was muttering about.

"I'm looking for a double crossing stork so I can shoot it," said Paulsen.

Chase in Fatal Nelson Battle, Says Brother

John Paul Chase, held in the county jail to await trial in the federal court for murder, was reported yesterday to have admitted that he was with Lester M. Gillis [Baby Face Nelson] when Gillis shot and killed Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Special Agent Herman E. Hollis of the department of justice in a battle at Barrington on Nov. 27. Gillis, or Nelson, as he was usually known, died soon afterward of wounds received in the fight.

Chase, who was arrested a week ago in California, was permitted yesterday for the first time to have visitors. They were his brother, Charles B. Chase of San Francisco, and Attorney Joseph A. Struett. Previously agents of the department of justice had held the prisoner incommunicado.

Blames Killer's Widow.

It was through Charles Chase that parts of the story of the alleged companion of Nelson became public. Chase was said to have admitted that Mrs. Helen Gillis, widow of the gangster, identified him for the federal investigators, and that he would have to acknowledge his presence during the Barrington battle.

However, Chase asserted that he had not fired on Cowley and Hollis, and that their deaths should be laid upon Nelson alone. He added his belief that Nelson was fatally wounded not by the federal men but by County Highway Policeman James Gallagher, who arrived on the scene and fired at Nelson's car after the agents had been shot down.

Chase's Future in Doubt.

Mr. Struett said that he did not know what Chase would do about his plea. He was, he said, engaged only to assist the brother in interviewing the prisoner.

District Attorney Dwight H. Green said he was not considering the possibility of a guilty plea. He proceeded yesterday with the presentation of evidence to the grand jury which has been asked to vote an indictment charging Chase with the murder of Cowley. An indictment charging the murder of Hollis already has been voted.

Mrs. Gillis looms as an important government witness. She was taken from the Milan, Mich., women's prison and brought here apparently for the purpose of testifying. The government agents have kept her closely guarded. She was before the grand jury yesterday and the agents smashed a newspaper camera to prevent any pictures of her from being taken.

8. The "gradual tapering off of the emergency credit activities of the government."

9. "Improvement in our taxation forms and methods."

10. Continuation for the present of agricultural adjustment "with certain improvements in methods."

Summing up the accomplishments of his administration for the last year the President said there have been "many more gains than losses." Millions of destitute have been relieved, child labor has been "for the moment outlawed," thousands of homes saved from foreclosure and "the morale of the nation restored." He added that "we can, if we will, make 1935 a genuine period of good feeling, sustained by a sense of purposeful progress."

Sees Benefits for Farmers.

Mr. Roosevelt pictured the New Deal as having accomplished already "substantial benefits" to farmers, revived industry and produced profitable merchandising. It has, he asserted, restored confidence. In this connection he uttered a warning apparently directed to business men and to politicians not in sympathy with the New Deal. Said the President:

"Let him, who for speculative profit or partisan purpose, without just warant would seek to disturb or dispel this assurance, take heed before he assumes responsibility for any act which slows our onward steps."

America, he said, like other nations is seeking the establishment of social justice and America is doing so, he asserted, without impairing the "deep essentials" of our republican form of government. He had no patience for those who counsel the postponement of reform until recovery be achieved. This in his opinion would be a "narrowly conceived effort to substitute the appearance of reality for reality itself."

Would Remove Cause.

"When a man," said the President, "is convalescing from an illness wisdom dictates not only cure of the symptoms but also removal of their cause. Piecemeal reform is inadequate to meet such changes as have been wrought by the machine age, universal and rapid communication and other new factors."

As a result of remedies only sporadic in the past, Mr. Roosevelt went on, "we have not weeded out the over-privileged and we have not effectively lifted up the underprivileged." He proposes to effect this equalization without "destroying what is known as the profit motive; because by the profit motive we mean the right by work to earn a decent livelihood for ourselves and for our families."

Under the New Deal, by mandate of the people, "Americans must forswear," said the President, "that conception of the acquisition of wealth, which through excessive profits, creates undue private power" over private and public affairs, another way of stating the perennial warfare on the special privilege of the rich.

Would Not Divide Wealth.

But he would not reduce us to the socialistic state that stifles all private ambition nor would he "divide our wealth into equal shares on stated occasions," as some levelers are advocating. "We continue to recognize," said the President, "the greater ability of some to earn more than others." What the New Dealers do contend is that the aspiration to security of livelihood, leisure and a decent living is preferable to "the appetite for great wealth and great power."

His whole program, Mr. Roosevelt said, is based on the three considerations of security of livelihood through better use of our national resources, security against unemployment, old age and sickness, and the security of decent homes. The first and the third of these objectives is the aim of the work relief project, while the second will be approached in subsequent special messages.

President Attacks Dole.

Both the NRA and the PWA have increased employment greatly, the President said, "but the stark fact before us is that great numbers still remain unemployed," on a dole, which experience teaches, "induces a spiritual and moral disintegration." The federal government, he vehemently asserted, "must and shall quit this business of relief."

The 1½ millions of aged and other unemployables the states cared for before the depression and should be required to do so henceforth, Mr. Roosevelt proclaimed. For the other 3½ millions it is the duty of the federal government to find work until they are absorbed by private employment.

Approaching the problem in this light the President proposed as a means of giving work to the unemployed a vast scheme of public works that would constitute useful, permanent improvements, self-liquidating, competing "as little as possible" with private enterprise, the pay for employment on which would be more than the dole but less than that obtainable in private enterprise. By such means the President would make employment on public works more attractive than the dole, but not so attractive as to tempt or keep men from private employment.

Holds Credit Is Safe.

Although reserving an estimate of the cost of the undertaking, Mr. Roosevelt gave assurance it would be "within the sound credit of the government."

The President's only note of pessimism was struck when he touched on "international relationships" which he said have not been improved by revived jealousies and passions and "new strivings for armament and power, in more than one land." Although doubtless having Japan in mind when he said that most nations still have faith in the limitation of armament by international agreement, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that "there is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful."

Text of Roosevelt's Message to Congress

"Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, members of the senate and of the house of representatives:

"The constitution wisely provides that the chief executive shall report to the congress on the state of the Union, for through you, the chosen legislative representatives, our citizens everywhere may fairly judge the progress of our governing.

"I am confident that today, in the light of the events of the past two years, you do not consider it merely a trite phrase when I tell you that I am truly glad to greet you and that I look forward to common consel, to useful coöperation, and to genuine friendships between us.

Strive for New Order.

"We have undertaken a new order of things: Yet we progress towards it under the framework and in the spirit and intent of the American constitution. We have proceeded throughout the nation a measurable distance on the road towards this new order.

"Materially, I can report to you substantial benefits to our agricultural populations, increased industrial activity, and profits to our merchants. Of equal moment, there is evident a restoration of that spirit of confidence and faith which marks the American character. Let him who, for speculative profit or partisan purpose, without just warant would seek to disturb or dispel this assurance, take heed before he assumes responsibility for any act which slows our onward steps.

Problems Bring Crises.

"Throughout the world change is the order of the da: In every nation economic problems, long in the making, have brought crises of many kinds for which the masters of old practice and theory were unprepared. In most nations social justice, no longer a distant ideal, has become a definite goal, and ancient governments are beginning to heed the call.

"Thus, the American people do not stand alone in the world in their desire for change. We seek it through tested liberal traditions, through processes which retain all of the deep essentials of that republican form of representative government first given to a troubled world by the United States.

SEES PROGRAM UNITY

"As the various parts in the program begun in the extraordinary session of the Seventy-third congress shape themselves in practical administration the unity of our program reveals itself to the nation. The outlines of the new economic order, rising from the disintegration of the old, are apparent. We test what we have done as our measures take root in the living texture of life. We see where we have built wisely and where we can do still better.

"The attempt to make a distinction between recovery and reform is a narrowly conceived effort to substitute the appearance of reality for reallty itself. When a man is convalescing from illness wisdom dictates not only cure of the symptoms but also removal of their cause.

Seek Lasting Benefits.

"It is important to recognize that, while we seek to outlaw specific abuses, the American objective of today has an infinitely deeper, finer and more lasting purpose than mere repression. Thinking people in almost every country of the world have come to realize certain fundamental difficulties with which civilization must reckon. Rapid changes—the machine age, the advent of universal and rapid communication and many other new factors—have brought new problems.

"Succeeding generations have attempted to keep pace by reforming in piecemeal fashion this or that attendant abuse. As a result, evils overlap and reform becomes confused and frustrated. We lose sight, from time to time, of our ultimate human objectives.

"Let us, for a moment, strip from our simple purpose the confusion that results from a multiplicity of detail and from millions of written and spoken words.

Would Retain Profit Motive.

"We find our population suffering from old inequalities, little changed by past sporadic remedies. In spite of our efforts and in spite of our talk, we have not weeded out the over-privileged and we have not effectively lifted up the underprivileged. Both of these manifestations of injustice have retarded happiness. No wise man has any intention of destroying what is known as the profit motive: Because by the profit motive we mean the right by work to earn a decent livelihood for ourselves and for our families.

"We have, however, a clear mandate from the people, that Americans must forswear that conception of the acquisition of wealth which, through excessive profits, creates undue private power over private affairs and, to our misfortune, over public affairs as well. In building toward this end we do not destroy ambition nor do we seek to divide our wealth into equal shares on stated occasions.

Earning Powers Differ.

"We continue to recognize the greater ability of some to earn more than others. But we do assert that the ambition of the individual to obtain for him and his a proper security, a reasonable leisure, and a decent living throughout life is an ambition to be preferred to the appetite for great wealth and great power.

"I recall to your attention my message to the congress last June in which I said: 'Among our objectives I place the security of the men, women, and children of the nation first.' That remains our first and continuing task; and in a very real sense every major legislative enactment of this congress should be a component part of it.

OUTLINES THREE GOALS

"In defining immediate factors which enter into our quest, I have spoken to the congress and the people of three great divisions:

"1. The security of livelihood through the better use of the national resources of the land in which we live.

"2. The security against the major hazards and vicissitudes of life.

"3. The security of decent homes.

"I am now ready to submit to the congress a broad program designed ultimately to establish all three of these factors of security—a program which because of many lost years will take many future years to fulfill.

Resources Studied.

"A study of our national resources, more comprehensive than any previously made, shows the vast amount of necessary and practicable work which needs to be done for the development and preservation of our natural wealth for the enjoyment and advantage of our people in generations to come. The sound use of land and water is far more comprehensive than the mere planting of trees, building of dams, distributing of electricity or retirement of submarginal land. It recognizes that stranded populations, either in the country or the city, cannot have security under the conditions that now surround them.

"To this end we are ready to begin to meet this problem—the intelligent care of population throughout our nation, in accordance with an intelligent distribution of the means of livelihood for that population. A definite program for putting people to work, of which I shall speak in a moment, is a component part of this greater program of security of livelihood through the better use of our national resources.

Providing Against Hazards.

"Closely related to the broad problem of livelihood is that of security against the major hazards of life. Here also a comprehensive survey of what has been attempted or accomplished in many nations and in many states proves to me that the time has come for action by the national government. I shall send to you, in a few days, definite recommendations based on these studies. These recommendations will cover the broad subjects of unemployment insurance and old age insurance, of benefits for children, for mothers, for the handicapped, for maternity care, and for other aspects of dependency and illness where a beginning can be made.

"The third factor—better homes for our people—has also been the subject of experimentation and study. Here, too, the first practical steps can be made through the proposals which I shall suggest in relation to giving work to the unemployed.

"Whatever we plan and whatever we do should be in the light of these three clear objectives of security. We cannot afford to lose valuable time in haphazard public policies which cannot find a place in the broad outlines of these major purposes.

PUTTING PEOPLE TO WORK

"In that spirit I come to an immediate issue made for us by hard and inescapable circumstances—the task of putting people to work. In the spring of 1933 the issue of destitution seemed to stand apart; today, in the light of our experience and our new national policy, we find we can put people to work in ways which conform to, initiate, and carry forward the broad principles of that policy.

"The first objectives of emergency legislation of 1933 were to relieve destitution, to make it possible for industry to operate in a more rational and orderly fashion, and to put behind industrial recovery the impulse of large expenditures in government undertakings. The purpose of the national industrial recovery act to provide work for more people succeeded in a substantial manner within the first few months of its life, and the act has continued to maintain employment gains and greatly improved working conditions in industry.

Little Time to Prepare.

"The program of public works provided for in the recovery act launched the federal government into a task for which there was little time to make preparation and little American experience to follow. Great employment has been given and is being given by these works.

"More than two billions of dollars have also been expended in direct relief to the destitute. Local agencies of necessity determined the recipients of this form of relief. With inevitable exceptions the funds were spent by them with reasonable efficiency and as a result actual want of food and clothing in the great majority of cases has been overcome.

Many Still Unemployed.

"But the stark fact before us is that great numbers still remain unemployed.

"A large proportion of these unemployed and their dependents have been forced on the relief rolls. The burden on the federal government has grown with great rapidity. We have here a human as well as an economic problem. When humane considerations are concerned, Americans give them precedence. The lessons of history, confirmed by the evidence immediately before me, show conclusively that continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive to the national fiber.

"To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. It is inimical to the dictates of sound policy. It is in violation of the traditions of America. Work must be found for able bodied but destitute workers.

U. S. Will Quit Relief.

"The federal government must and shall quit this business of relief.

"I am not willing that the vitality of our people be further sapped by the giving of cash, of market baskets, of a few hours of weekly work cutting grass, raking leaves, or picking up papers in the public parks. We must preserve not only the bodies of the unemployed from destitution but also their self-respect, their self-reliance and courage and determination. This decision brings me to the problem of what the government should do with approximately five million unemployed now on the relief rolls.

"About one million and a half of these belong to the group which in the past was dependent upon local welfare efforts. Most of them are unable for one reason or another to maintain themselves independently—for the most part, through no fault of their own. Such people, in the days before the great depression, were cared for by local efforts—by states, by counties, by towns, by cities, by churches, and by private welfare agencies.

Stands Ready to Aid.

"It is my thought that in the future they must be cared for as they were before. I stand ready through my own personal efforts, and through the public influence of the office that I hold, to help these local agencies to get the means necessary to assume this burden.

"The security legislation which I shall propose to the congress will, I am confident, be of assistance to local effort in the care of this type of cases. Local responsibility can and will be resumed, for, after all, common sense tells us that the wealth necessary for this task existed and still exists in the local community, and the dictates of sound administration require that this responsibility be in the first instance a local one.

"There are, however, an additional three and one-half million employable people who are on relief. With them the problem is different and the responsibility is different. This group was the victim of a nation-wide depression caused by conditions which were not local but national. The federal government is the only governmental agency with sufficient power and credit to meet this situation. We have assumed this task and we shall not shrink from it in the future.

Duty to Provide Jobs.

"It is a duty dictated by every intelligent consideration of national policy to ask you to make it possible for the United States to give employment to all of these three and one-half million employable people now on relief, pending their absorption in a rising tide of private employment.

"It is my thought that, with the exception of certain of the normal public building operations of the government, all emergency public works shall be united in a single new and greatly enlarged plan.

"With the establishment of this new system we can supersede the federal emergency relief administration with a coördinated authority which will be charged with the orderly liquidation of our present relief activities and the substitution of a national chart for the giving of work.

DETAILS JOB PROGRAM

"This new program of emergency public employment should be governed by a number of practical principles.

"1. All work undertaken should be useful—not just for a day or a year, but useful in the sense that it affords permanent improvement in living conditions or that it creates future new wealth for the nation.

"2. Compensation on emergency public projects should be in the form of security payments which should be larger than the amount now received as a relief dole, but at the same time not so large as to encourage the rejection of opportunities for private employment or the leaving of private employment to engage in government work.

"3. Projects should be undertaken on which a large percentage of direct labor can be used.

"4. Preference should be given to those projects which will be self-liquidating in the sense that there is a reasonable expectation that the government will gets its money back at some future time.

Would Reduce Competition.

"5. The projects undertaken should be selected and planned so as to compete as little as possible with private enterprises. This suggests that if it were not for the necessity of giving useful work to the unemployed now on relief these projects in most instances would not now be undertaken.

"6. The planning of projects would seek to assure work during the coming fiscal year to the individuals now on relief, or until such time as private employment is available. In order to make adjustment to increasing private employment, work should be planned with a view to tapering it off in proportion to the speed with which the emergency workers are offered positions with private employers.

"7. Effort should be made to locate projects where they will serve the greatest unemployment needs as shown by present relief rolls, and the broad program of the national resources board should be freely used for guidance in selection. Our ultimate objective being the enrichment of human lives, the government has the primary duty to use its emergency expenditures as much as possible to serve those who cannot secure the advantages of private capital.

BUDGET COMING NEXT

"Ever since the adjournment of the Seventy-third congress the administration has been studying from every angle the possibility and the practicability of new forms of employment. As a result of these studies I have arrived at certain very definite convictions as to the amount of money that will be necessary for the sort of public projects that I have described. I shall submit these figures in my budget message. I assure you now they will be within the sound credit of the government.

"This work will cover a wide field, including clearance of slums, which for adequate reasons cannot be undertaken by private capital; in rural housing of several kinds, where, again, private capital is unable to function; in rural electrification; in the reforestation of the great watersheds of the nation; in an intensified program to prevent soil erosion and to reclaim blighted areas; in improving existing road systems and in constructing national highways designed to handle modern trafic; in the elimination of grade crossings; in the extension and enlargement of the successful work of the Civilian Conservation corps; in nonfederal work, mostly self-liquidating and highly useful to local divisions of government; and on many others which the nation needs and cannot afford to neglect.

Calls for American Plan.

"This is the method which I propose to you in order that we may better meet this present day problem of unemployment. Its greatest advantage is that it fits logically and usefully into the long range permanent policy of providing the three types of security which constitute as a whole an American plan for the American people.

"I shall consult with you from time to time concerning other measures of national importance. Among the subjects that lie immediately before us are the consolidation of federal regulatory administration over all forms of transportation, the renewal and clarification of the general purposes of the national industrial recovery act, the strengthening of our facilities for the prevention, detection, and treatment of crime and criminals, the restoration of sound conditions in the public utilities field through abolition of the evil features of holding companies, the gradual tapering off of the emergency credit activities of government, and improvement in our taxation forms and methods.

FARM INCOME GROWS

"We have already begun to feel the bracing effect upon our economic system of a restored agriculture. The hundreds of millions of additional income that farmers are receiving is finding its way into the channels of trade. The farmers' share of the national income is slowly rising. The economic facts justify the widespread opinion of those engaged in agriculture that our provision for maintaining a balanced production gave at this time the most adequate remedy for an old and vexing problem. For the present, and especially in view of abnormal world conditions, agricultural adjustment with certain necessary improvements in methods should continue.

"It seems appropriate to call attention at this time to the fine spirit shown during the past year by our public servants. I cannot praise too highly the cheerful work of the civil service employés and of those temporarily working for the government. As for those thousands in our various public agencies spread throughout the country who, without compensation, agreed to take over heavy responsibilities in connection with our various loan agencies, and particularly in direct relief work. I cannot say too much. I do not think any country could show a higher average of cheerful and even enthusiastic team work than has been shown by these men and women.

FOREIGN RELATIONS

"I cannot with candor tell you that general international relationships outside our borders are improved. On the surface of things many old jealousies are resurrected, old passions aroused; new striving for armament and power, in more than one land, rear their ugly heads. I hope that calm counsel and constructive leadership will provide the steadying influence and the time necessary for the coming of the new and more practical forms of representative government throughout the world wherein privilege will occupy a lesser place and welfare a greater.

"I believe, however, that our own peaceful and neighborly attitude toward other nations is coming to be understood and appreciated. The maintenance of international peace is a matter in which we are deeply and unselfishly concerned. Evidence of our persistent and undeniable desire to prevent armed conflict has recently been more than once afforded.

Considers Peace Assured.

"There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful. Nor is there ground for doubt that the people of most nations seek relief from the threat and burden attaching to the false theory that extravagant armament cannot be reduced and limited by international accord.

"The ledger of the past year shows many more gains than losses. Let us not forget that, in addition to saving millions from utter destitution, child labor has been for the moment outlawed, thousands of homes saved to their owners and, most important of all, the morale of the nation has been restored. Viewing the year 1934 as a whole, you and I can agree that we have a generous measure of reasons for giving thanks.

Sees Good Year Ahead.

"It is not empty optimism that moves me to a strong hope in the coming year. We can, if we will, make 1935 a genuine period of good feeling, sustained by a sense of purposeful progress. Beyond the material recovery, I sense a spiritual recovery as well. The people of America are turning as never before to those permanent values that are not limited to the physical objectives of life. There are growing signs of this on every hand. In the face of these spiritual impulses we are sensible of the Divine Providence to which nations turn now, as always, for guidance and fostering care."

VARIED REACTION TO PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE HEARD

Capitol Hill Echoes with Praise, Irony.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Capitol hill echoed this afternoon with comment on the President's report of the state of the Union. Democrats joined in singing hallelujahs while the Republican minority beat an anvil chorus.

The views of the senate and house presiding officers were:

Vice President Garner—A great, an inspiring message. It gave a clear statement of principles which are to be the foundation of future legislation.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns—I am sure it will strike a popular chord throughout the country. As is true of all his messages, this was clear, emphatic and left nothing to conjecture.

Senator Joseph Robinson, majority leader, hailed the message "as among the most important messages in history." He said it was sound both as to principles and the legislation proposed, although differences may arise in congress "as to details of measures" it contemplates.

The opposition view was expressed in irony by Senator Charles L. McNary, minority leader, with, "It was an interesting and forward looking paper and effectively delivered."

There were two sour notes in the Democratic chorusing from conservatives in the party. Senator Carter Glass, the fiery advocate of sound money from Virginia, said he had nothing to say, and then muttered a few expletives under his breath.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, conservative Democrat of Ohio, said, "A good message which leaves a lot unsaid. Of course the President has his reasons for not saying a lot of things at this time."

Other senatorial comment follows:

James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.]—It was an announcement returning the nation to the true theory of the democracy of local government, self-control of the citizen by himself, and the end of paternalism and centralization. Also this message laid down the platform of 1936, however much the President may not have had politics in mind.

James Couzens [Rep., Mich.]—Most of it is ideal and can heartily be indorsed, but some parts seem to me to be impractical and fantastic.

Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.]—Outstanding. A strong statement of what has been accomplished since March of 1933 and sets forth a splendid program for the coming session.

L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.]—A beautiful array of generalities.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], house minority leader, declined to comment directly, but he indicated that the message contained a swing to the right and that in his opinion there had been no startling disclosures.

Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.]—It was the same old story of lack of definite proposals. It is such a lack of definite program as to the bigger things which so far has stood in the way of recovery.

Representative Leo E. Allen [Rep., Ill.]—I was disappointed that it did not contain mention of helping the small business man, the real forgotten man.

Representative Ralph E. Church [Rep., Ill.]—Mr. Roosevelt seems determined to carry out a program of expenditures. The test will be on the ability of the taxpayers to pay and undoubtedly whether the national credit can stand it.

HIGHLIGHTS OF MESSAGE TO JOINT SESSION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Highlights in President Roosevelt's message to congress today were:

CAPITOL POLICE HALT FARMER; HE'S WALLACE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Capitol policemen, clearing corridors leading to the house of representatives as the President approached, stopped a man today who looked something like a farmer and asked him to show his credentials.

He was Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and was able to prove it after fumbling through his pockets.

SENATOR GLASS OBSERVES 77TH BIRTHDAY ON JOB

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia celebrated his seventy-seventh birth anniversary today by going to work earlier than usual and putting in a full day's attendance.

Senator Glass saw politicians and jobseekers, attended the joint session for the President's speech, walked twice down the "longest corridor in the world" between the senate and house wings, and chatted with colleagues with a vigor that belied his three score and seventeen years.

Glass now is in his third senate term. He served nine terms in the house before resigning to become secretary of the treasury in the Wilson cabinet. He turned down a similar post in the Roosevelt official family and lists that fact in his life sketch in the congressional directory.

Conservative of the old school, the old dominion publisher, who likes to say he received part of his education in newspaper work, listened attentively to the President's speech. He declined to comment afterward. His day was so full that he lunched in his office on a chicken sandwich, milk, and grapefruit.

U. S. LETS LOUISIANA HAVE 10 MILLION FOR PUBLIC WORKS PROJECT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Wiping one difference with Huey Long off its slate, the Roosevelt administration has taken the "heldup" sign off nearly $10,000,000 of Louisiana public works projects.

This was disclosed by Public Works administration officials today almost on the eve of Long's threatened speech bringing the matter before the senate.

All public works projects in Louisiana on which construction had not begun by Nov. 15 were halted while PWA attorneys studied an act declaring a moratorium on all debts except those owed municipalities, the state and the federal government. They reported the law would not jeopardize municipal bonds bought by PWA.

But PWA has not reached a decision on its $1,700,000 allotment for New Orleans sewage improvements, pending examination of another law passed by the Long dominated legislature at its November special session.

This gave Long control over the New Orleans sewage and water board.

Work on ten projects involving $867,400 went on because they already had been started on Nov. 15.

ROOSEVELT WILL RESTORE U. S. PAY SLASHES JULY 1

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The present five per cent cut in basic salaries of government employés was continued today by President Roosevelt until July 1. He has announced he will recommend then that full pay be restored.

An executive order said the cost of living index for the six months period just concluded is 18.8 per cent lower than that for the base period of 1928. For that reason, Mr. Roosevelt said, the cut would be continued another half year.

SENATE, HOUSE SERIOUS AS THEY HEAR MESSAGE

President Applauded as He Reads Program.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—A docile, attentive and, for the present, serious congress, which punctuated his remarks with spirited applause, heard President Roosevelt personally deliver his annual report on the state of the Union today.

The spacious rectangular chamber of the house of representatives, packed to the walls back of the galleries and containing the entire government save the judiciary, presented an orderly and solemn spectacle where only 24 hours before the house had convened in a vaudeville atmosphere.

Applaud Relief Program.

The senators and representatives, most of whom were elected on promises to support the New Deal, had been awaiting their instructions from the chief executive and it was plain that they received them willingly. They applauded most when the President said "the federal government must and shall quit this business of relief." A President doesn't often tell congress, a theoretically independent branch of the government, what it "shall" do, but nobody seemed offended.

As on the previous day the galleries contained many distinguished visitors, diplomats, Washington socialites, wives and relatives of statesmen. All the seats were occupied, both on the floor and in the galleries, and hundreds stood up along the walls and at the entrances. The first three rows on the house floor were reserved for senators and this forced members of the house to move back. Many members of the house had to stand up in corners because many seats were occupied by children of the members—little girls with ribbons in their hair and fat little boys in knee pants.

The ten cabinet members sat in chairs arranged in a semicircle around the speaker's dais. The men were in cutaways and wing collars, like the senators, the house leaders and the President, all except Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Postmaster General Farley.

It is customary, on such an occasion, for the justices of the Supreme court to sit in a row of chairs back of the cabinet, but they did not come today. The justices are now engaged in the preparation of an opinion involving the NRA, which may knock the bottom out of some New Deal plans.

Among those in the galleries were many foreign diplomats and their wives, the family of Joseph W. Byrns, the new speaker; Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the last Republican speaker of the house; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the last Democratic President before Roosevelt, and six members of the President's family.

Cabinet Wives Attend.

Wives of the cabinet members and half a dozen house guests of the Roosevelts, including Mrs. Vincent Astor, sat with the President's wife, mother and daughter in the executive gallery. The President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt; his wife, Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, and his daughter, Anna Roosevelt Dall, all brought their knitting and for a time before the President arrived were knitting all at once. The Roosevelts do things in concert. If one writes, they all write; if one knits, they all knit. Mrs. Dall, however, had to put her knitting aside and entertain her daughter "Sistie," who became bored with it all and demanded that her mother read "The Pied Piper of Hamelin."

Other members of the President's family in the executive box were his daughters-in-law, Mrs. James Roosevelt II. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, who left their knitting at home.

The house and galleries began filling almost an hour before the joint session was scheduled to convene at 12:30 p. m. for the reception of the President. By noon, when the house of representatives was called to order by Speaker Byrns, all seats were occupied save those reserved for the senators and the cabinet.

House Business Brief.

The business of the house required only five minutes, during which time Speaker Byrns read letters from Majority Leader William B. Bankhead naming Patrick J. Boland of Pennsylvania as the party whip and Edward T. Taylor of Colorado as acting majority leader. Mr. Bankhead is ill. The house recessed then until 12.18, when Doorkeeper Joseph J. Sinnott solemnly proclaimed the approach of "the Vice President of the United States and members of the senate of the United States."

The senators, having marched from their wing down the so-called "longest corridor in the world," filed in two by two and took the seats reserved for them. Included in their number was young Rush Holt, West Virginia's "little minister," who is a senator with pay but no vote until he becomes of age next June.

Vice President Garner smiled to the right and left as he recognized old members of the house, and then strode to the rostrum, shaking hands all around where he formerly presided as speaker. Mr. Garner and Speaker Byrns jointly presiding, a committee was appointed to wait upon the President and escort him to the chamber. This included Senators Robinson [Dem., Ark.] and McNary [Rep., Ore.] and Representatives Taylor [Dem., Colo.], Doughton [Dem., N. C.], and Snell, minority leader, New York.

President Is Announced.

The voice of Doorkeeper Sinnott boomed out again announcing the arrival of "the honorable the secretary of state and the other members of the President's cabinet." Then it boomed out again announcing "the President of the United States."

All members of congress and the spectators in the galleries stood up and applauded as the President entered on the arm of his son James and was assisted up the special ramp placed for him on the right side of the speaker's dais. The President proceeded directly to the lower dais, ordinarily presided over by the house clerk, and stood there smiling for almost a minute while the congressmen continued to applaud. James took a chair.

Then Speaker Byrns addressed the President and members of the congress and said it was his "distinguished honor to present the President of the United States." The President began by addressing the Vice President as "Mr. President," which was correct as Mr. Garner was presiding over the senate.

Republican members of congress joined somewhat listlessly in the applause that greeted the President's remarks from time to time, particularly when he said "no wise man has any intention of destroying what is known as the profit motive." But they refrained from applauding a moment later when the President added:

"Americans must forswear that conception of the acquisition of wealth which, through excessive profits, creates undue private power over private affairs, and, to our misfortune, over public affairs as well."

This brought a big hand from the Democrats generally, although Senator Carter Glass of Virginia had an expression that suggested the taste of alum.

38 Minutes for Message.

After concluding his address the President stepped back and shook hands with Messrs. Garner and Byrns, "Jack" and "Joe" he called them, while the audience again stood up and cheered. He was joined at the door by Secretaries Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen Early, to whom he remarked that it took three minutes longer than he had expected to deliver the speech. It took 38 minutes.

The only untoward event in the trip of the President, by automobile, from the White House to the capitol, was a shout from a world war veteran, standing in a group of curious idlers south of the capitol. "We want our bonus!" he yelled as the President passed by.

The veteran, John Alseri of Los Angeles, who said he came here in a box car and was going back with the bonus and three suits, was hustled off by capitol police, locked up on disorderly conduct charges, but later freed.

Estimate $1,315,000 Increase in Relief Bill Under Job Plan

President Roosevelt's plan to give work relief jobs to every able bodied "client" would add $1,315,000 to the monthly cost of relief in this state, it was estimated last night on the basis of preliminary January figures of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, expressed himself, however, as being heartily in favor of the recommendations.

Estimates for this month require $11,721,537 for the support of 316,892 indigent families in Illinois, exclusive of $1,050,881 for administrative expense and the cost of numerous special activities. Under this is allotted $7,437,589 for giving direct relief to 240,661 families, or $31 per family. About 22 per cent more per family, or $37.91, is required for giving work relief to 112,941 families, a total cost of $4,284,008.

50,000 Are Unemployable.

On this basis, approximately $1,315,000 more would be needed to place on work relief the remainder of the family heads classed as employable. About 50,000 families in the state are termed "chronic indigent"—that is, they could not work even if jobs were available.

Aside from the higher cost, the President's program would be difficult to carry out in a short time, according to Mr. Reynolds.

"Getting the actual projects started in a short time seems to me the chief problem raised by the message to congress," said Mr. Reynolds. "Since the President used the term 'fiscal year' in his address, I suppose he meant that he wanted the program in operation by next July 1. I believe a great deal of progress could be accomplished by that time."

Change Already Under Way.

The change to work relief, Mr. Reynolds said, has been going on for some time, as illustrated by the fact that 37 per cent of relief family heads are in this bracket as compared to 8.5 per cent a year ago.

Whether the program would change the wage scales currently used for work relief projects Mr. Reynolds was unable to determine from the President's message.

"I should think that the period of transition from relief to employment would require all the skill that the relief administration has acquired," he declared.

Funds to Be Needed.

"Certainly funds will be needed to carry on the regular relief burden during this period, and I suppose that congress will make money available for the purpose."

The President's declaration that states and communities must again assume the burden of supporting the permanently unemployable group introduced no new element, Mr. Reynolds asserted, but confirmed statements recently made by other members of the administration.

ADOPTS A STRAY DOG—AND SAVES HIS SON'S LIFE

Three years ago Robert Booth, chief electrician at the Pure Oil building, adopted Mickey, a stray dog, as a playmate for his son, William Robert, now 7 years old.

Yesterday William and several other small children were playing with their sleds on the railroad embankment near the Booth home at 7506 Sangamon street. Suddenly Mickey barked, then tugged at William's legging until the child went with him down the embankment. The other children followed curiously. A moment later a fast passenger train sped past on the tracks where the children had been playing.

"I love dogs," William's father said, "but I never before believed they actually saved people's lives. Now I'm convinced."

Hijackers Seize Truck and $2,500 in Clothing

Three armed men halted Otto Kleiner, 2062 Bingham street, last night at Van Buren and Peoria streets and compelled him to surrender a truck loaded with clothing valued at $2,500. The clothing was being sent for mailing by the International Clothing company, 847 West Jackson boulevard. Kleiner was left on the street while the bandits drove away with the truck.

SEE PRESIDENT FACING HOPKINS OR ICKES CHOICE

Believe One or Other on the Way Out.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes and Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins were virtually put on notice by President Roosevelt today that one or the other is on the way out.

The President in his annual message announced that relief and public works are to be merged in one new work relief program very much like last year's civil works administration. The merger will leave either Ickes or Hopkins out of a job.

Many persons here were quick to guess that Ickes will be ousted and Hopkins take over the huge new work relief task. Ickes, it was pointed out, could devote all his time to being secretary of the interior and administrator of the oil code. Hopkins has no job but relief.

Ickes Busy on Planning.

Hopkins, observers recalled, ran the CWA, which the new plan, as described by the President at his press conference today, will greatly resemble. On the other hand Ickes has done much long time planning for public works.

President Roosevelt told reporters that he had not yet considered who would run the new work relief project. He will send another special message to congress on the question, transmitting a request for the necessary billions of dollars to pay the bills, the President explained. He said he expected to make this request soon because existing relief funds are running low.

At least 7 million persons will go back to work as the result of his new relief program, the President estimated. Government work relief will employ 3½ million workers directly. For each person employed directly one or perhaps two workers will be reëmployed indirectly to make and transport the materials which are used in public works and in making the goods the public works employé buys with his earnings, the President said. Total reëmployment would thus reach at least 7 millions.

Reliefers to Get Preference.

Unemployed who are now on relief rolls will be given preference over persons who may be out of work but not on relief when the new jobs are doled out, the President said. Mr. Roosevelt remarked that he hoped unemployed women could find a niche in the work program as well as men.

All of the vast and expensive public works will be managed directly by the federal government or by some local government agency, according to the chief executive. None of the easy money will go to private enterprises or direct to private contractors. In this important aspect the program is like the old CWA.

Although he listed rural housing and electrification, forestation, soil erosion, and many other types of possible public works, the President declared that he did not know which type would receive emphasis. He hopes to get the whole vast reëmployment machine to running by the fiscal year 1936, which starts June 30, 1935.

Puts Burden on States.

While the federal government puts 3½ millions to work directly, the White House plan calls for 1½ million persons, supposedly unemployable, to be returned to the states and cities as objects of local charity. Mr. Roosevelt intimated that the states would have to take care of these people regardless of how much money they are now contributing to general relief.

Although upwards of 20 million persons may be dependent on relief now, the President said he preferred to use the figure of five million as a total. These five million are the bread winners in the unemployed families. The other 15 millions are not dependent on relief, they are dependent on those who are on relief, as the President prefers to express it.

BONUS, SILVER BILLS; NEW DEAL MEASURES OFFERED IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Proposals for the cash payment of the soldiers' bonus and for free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 were among nearly 270 bills and resolutions introduced in the senate today. The bonus bill, presented by Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla], was a duplicate of the Patman plan offered in the house yesterday. Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] sent the silver bill to the desk.

New Deal legislation appeared in various forms, notably through the proposal of Senator Edward P. Costigan [Dem., Colo.] for a constitutional amendment designed to "safeguard the bulk of the New Deal legislation from attack on constitutional grounds."

This amendment would authorize congress to legislate on hours and conditions of labor and minimum wages, and to regulate production, industry, business, trade, and commerce to prevent unfair methods and practices. It undertakes to limit court constructions of the so-called due process clauses of the constitution, to the procedure and methods used and not allow such construction to go to the substance of legislation.

Woman Telephones Friend, Then Swallows Poison

Mrs. Paulette Heron, 34 years old, 1301 Columbia avenue, was taken to the Rogers Park hospital last night after she swallowed poison in her home. Shortly before taking the poison Mrs. Heron called a friend, Mrs. John W. Bell, 1424 Hollywood avenue, and informed her of her intention to kill herself. Mrs. Bell notified the police, who took Mrs. Heron to the hospital.

COWS PROVIDED TO 343 CLIENTS ON RURAL RELIEF

Cows have been distributed to 343 rural clients of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission under its "milk it yourself" program. This was revealed yesterday by Clarence H. Humphrey, director of rural rehabilitation for the commission. Milk cows culled from 2,587 head of cattle purchased under the agricultural adjustment administration drouth aid program have gone to relief families in fifteen counties.

"The families take the cows on a loan basis, paying for them with labor on work relief projects," said Mr. Humphrey. "All cows were given to farmers to supply milk to growing children."

Prices ranged between $4 and $35 a head, according to condition of the cows. Richland county relief families received 95 animals, while 81 were distributed in Christian county, 74 in Iroquois county, and 24 in Whiteside county. Of the other cows distributed none went to relief families near Chicago.

Mexico to Free 40 Held for Church Shooting on Bail

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Forty young Red Shirts committed to prison on charges of responsibility for the death of five Catholics slain on Coyoacan Sunday tonight were ordered released tomorrow under bail. It was reported the total bail of $40,000 was supplied by Tomas Garrido Canabal, secretary of agriculture and founder of the Red Shirt organization in Tabasco. Three men accused of the lynching of one of the Red Shirts in revenge for the death of their fellow townspeople also were freed on bail.

TRUE BILLS NAME 3 MILK DEALERS IN RELIEF FRAUD

Three milk dealers were reported named yesterday in true bills charging them with forgery and conspiracy to defraud the Illinois emergency relief commission of $1,000 through the use of fraudulent milk orders.

Those reported named are Benjamin Engle, 1318 South Central Park avenue; Benjamin Levine, 958 North Damen avenue, and Robert Hirsch, former Chicago milk dealer, now said to be in business in Gary.

Carl Harned, 36 years old, a former clerk for the relief commission, is now serving one year in the Bridewell for his part in the alleged milk fraud. The others were not indicted previously, prosecutors said, because their names were not known at the time of Harned's arrest.

MUSSOLINI AND LAVAL MEET TO SEAL PEACE PACT

Franco-Italian Parley to Begin in Rome Today.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 4.—Premier Benito Mussolini in top hat and wearing his best smile welcomed France's swarthy foreign minister, Pierre Laval, to Rome tonight for a four day visit during which it is expected a Franco-Italian agreement will be achieved which will eliminate European war possibilities for the year 1935.

The reception at the railroad station for Laval was simple and the budding Franco-Italian amity was not attested by the popular enthusiasm, for there were no flags, no flowers, few persons in the streets, and no cheering outside of a few hurrahs for Mussolini.

All members of the French embassy and a large delegation from the foreign office were grouped about Mussolini when Laval's train arrived. Il Duce stepped out, shook hands with Laval and in two minutes more they had traversed the red plush carpet through the royal salon entrance and were outside waiting for their automobiles.

Conference Today.

Mussolini spoke in French to Laval, inquiring about his trip and then smilingly said good-by.

"I will see you tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock," he said.

Laval was accompanied by his 20 year old daughter José—who also was with him on his war debt visit to President Hoover—and several foreign office experts.

Most elaborate police precautions have been taken by authorities to prevent a recurrence of the Marseilles assassination tragedy, and streets from the railway station to Laval's hotel were lined thickly with police.

Before the hotel was a crowd of about 200 but it was remarked everywhere how little popular attention has been excited by the pending new political orientation of France and Italy.

3 Documents to Be Drawn.

The Laval-Mussolini conversations which begin in the morning, will conclude with the initialing of three documents, according to semi-official sources tonight. These three documents will be:

First—an accord by which France gives Italy African colonial compensations.

Second—A declaration asserting the identity of views of the two countries in matters of general policy.

Third—A protocol relative to the independence of Austria.

Through the colonial agreement, which is practically complete but which will require some finishing touches during the Laval-Mussolini talks, France will extend special privileges to Italian citizens in Tunis.

France will also cede Italy a vast area lying south of Libia as far as Tibesti but Italy renounces her claims to access to Lake Tchad. France will also grant Italy a part interest in the Djibouti railway to Abyssinia and cede Italy a section of French Somaliland so as to extend the border of Italian Eritrea.

Austrian Pact Obscure.

The final document, that concerning Austria, is apparently a diplomatic improvisation and somewhat obscure. By this document France and Italy will reaffirm their guarantee of Austrian independence. Then, it is said, this protocol provides for much subsequent diplomatic activity whereby it is hoped that at the end of two months Austrian independence will be guaranteed not only by contiguous states but also by Poland and Rumania.

Great Britain will not take part in this new diplomatic bloc but it is said to approve its formation.

Nothing has been said about France's original demand that the Danubian states sign an additional protocol mutually guaranteeing their frontiers and France has apparently given in on this point to save Mussolini's position on treaty revision.

Mussolini on the other hand has apparently compromised on his first refusal to recognize the diplomatic unity of the little entente—Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania—since it is said all the three nations are eventually to sign the protocol assuring Austrian independence.

GERMANS RENEW VIOLENT ATTACK ON FOREIGN PRESS

Nazis Accuse It of Spreading "Lies."

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN., Jan. 4.—The surprising "demonstration of national solidarity" at the Royal Opera house, which was staged yesterday under extraordinary police precautions and reported only through official propaganda agencies, was followed today by a violent campaign against the foreign press.

Again the foreign press with a few pro-Nazi exceptions is accused of spreading "lies" about Nazi Germany or exaggerating "incidents." Most of all, however, it is denounced for refusing to accept official assertions that all is peace and harmony within the third reich, especially within the ruling hierarchy.

Both Curious and Fearful.

This new campaign together with great secrecy thrown around yesterday's demonstration has aroused in nonpolitical quarters, as well as in foreign circles in Berlin, curiosity mixed with apprehension. A similar campaign against the foreign press preceded the anti-Jewish boycott of 1933 and the blood purge of 1934.

This much seems evident today: instead of reassurance, the demonstration produced additional nervousness. Reports are being circulated that in his speech, reported only partly by official propaganda agencies, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler himself referred to "dissatisfaction within our own ranks," and expressed the view "Germany stood before the new tests" but "the tests are there to be survived."

One view heard here is that recent events including the defeat of radical elements in the régime through the ascendancy of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank, and the inevitable rumors resulting from this "clean up" produced repercussions in the Saar which had to be calmed.

May Have Asked New Pledge.

Another view is Hitler, who only recently demanded and received the oath of personal loyalty from every government official including members of the cabinet, thought that renewal of that pledge would not be amiss on the turn of the year. Telegrams ordering vacationing ministers and Nazi chiefs from every part of the reich to be present at the ceremony expressly stated "no excuses would be accepted."

Today the Nazi party organs are full of praise for the splendid organization which made such a mobilization of Germany's "leadership corps" possible within 24 hours.

TOWN IN GERMANY POSTS $20 REWARD FOR GHOST'S CAPTURE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 4. — Fifty marks [about $20] have been offered by the local municipality for the capture of a ghost which for six months has walked the town of Landeshut, near Breslau.

The town's 13,000 inhabitants are roughly divided into rival factions—those who claim to have seen or believe in the grost which walks a dark outer street in the vicinity of a hospital and those who derisively talk of hallucinations or hoaxes.

Little else is discussed in Landeshut, according to the Berliner Tageblatt. Whether the ghost is a joker or lunatic, so many people have been frightened and so many innocent citizens have fallen under unmerited suspicion that Landeshut is determined to lay the ghost.

SEE ANGLO-IRISH 'PEACE' SPURRED BY TRADE PACT

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The new coal-and-cattle trade agreement between Great Britain and the Irish Free State brought forth expressions today that it was the first step on the way to friendly relations beween the empire and its offspring.

"The agreement," said the Manchester Guardian, "is the first glimmering of reason in Anglo-Irish relations in two and one-half years. The gratitude with which it has been received by both sides shows how heartily sick the people are of the stupid economic war."

The arrangement is designed to increase the Free State's sale of cattle to Great Britain and Great Britain's exportations of coal to the Free State.

Future German Professors Must Get Military Training

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—New regulations for candidates for teaching positions in German universities issued today by the ministry of culture make obligatory a period in military training and field sports camp. A certain period spent imbibing Nazi ideology in a political normal school also has been made a prerequisite for a university teaching career.

RIVAL FACTIONS IN SAAR ORDERED KEPT FAR APART

Giant Rallies Scheduled for Tomorrow.

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Gigantic open air mass meetings will bring throngs of Nazis and anti-Nazis into Saarbruecken Sunday.

The league of nations' governing commission today granted the rival factions permission to meet in the same town the same day, as their campaigns for victory in the plebiscite Jan. 13 drew near the end.

In an effort to make the experiment in self-discipline successful, the government will try to keep the contending groups miles apart.

80 Special Trains for Nazis.

Nazis, who have ordered 80 special trains for their incoming contingents, will meet east of town at 10 a. m. and must finish by noon. The anti-Nazi common front, which has ordered 15 trains, will gather on the other side of town at 2 p. m.

As the factions vied with each other in an effort to impress the voters during the week before the balloting, Nazis won an early skirmish by inducing the municipal dairy to refuse to deliver 3,000 quarts of hot milk to the anti-Nazi rally.

The Nazis, too, were striving vigorously to get the votes of American Saarlanders here, housing and feeding those without funds because of exchange difficulties in addition to paying their ocean passage.

Seven in "Bread Lines."

Three New Yorkers, two Chicagoans, and two arrivals from Buenos Aires were in the "bread lines."

The Americans found their difficulties lessening as German authorities relaxed stringent exchange regulations, permitting the visitors to cross the borders, cash their blocked mark travelers' checks and return with more than the legal 50 marks [about $20].

Attempts Suicide Twice, Then Is Locked in Cell

After twice attempting suicide in his home at 2850 North Clark street last night, James Dick, 23 years old, was taken to the Sheffield avenue station and locked in a cell. His mother found him the first time in the kitchen, with the gas turned on. She called police, but they left after Dick promised not to repeat his act. The mother then left to do some shopping. Presently Harry Ruhlow, building manager, smelled gas, and called police again. They found Dick in the kitchen again, with the gas on. Dick told police he had been unemployed for three years, and a week ago had quarreled with his sweetheart.

Ex-Premier Jailed

PARIS, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Frederic Francois-Marsal, who once was premier of France for five days, was sentenced to eighteen months in jail today for embezzlement.

The former cabinet officer, unrelenting foe of payment of French war debts to the United States, was accused of responsibility for losses totaling 29,000,000 francs [$1,944,000] incurred by stockholders of the Socoa company, of which he was president of the board of directors. Besides the jail term, the court sentenced Francois-Marsal to pay a fine of 20,000 francs [$1,320] and costs.

The former statesman was finance minister in the Millerand cabinet in 1920 and the Poincare cabinet in 1924. His brief occupancy of the premiership under President Millerand ended when parliament voted its lack of confidence in him. Millerand himself later was forced to resign from the presidency because of the chamber of deputies' hostility.

BOTH CHACO FOES CLAIM VICTORY IN NEW BATTLE

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Bolivian and Paraguayan advices tonight reported contradictory developments in the Chaco war and there were indications a long expected decisive battle may take place within a few hours.

The Bolivians said there was heavy fighting in the Capirenda and Ibibobo sectors and the advance of their foes had been checked.

The Paraguayans insist their troops are gradually gaining ground along the roads toward Villa Montes and Carandayty. The Asuncion reports said there was strong fighting 15 miles from Villa Montes where the Bolivians apparently are firmly entrenched and supported by heavy artillery fire which makes advance almost impossible.

NEW LUNCHROOM SYSTEM IS CALLED BOON TO SCHOOLS

Report Shows Swift Rise in Receipts.

A report was made yesterday showing financial improvement in the public high school lunchroom system as a result of a reorganization through a committee of restaurateurs appointed by President James B. McCahey of the school board. F. O. Washam, business director selected by the committee which is headed by Martin Harding of the Harding restaurants, presented the report.

In addition to showing steadily growing receipts as compared with corresponding months a year ago under the former system, the report recommends a readjustment of the salaries of the lunchroom managers. This change, said Mr. Washam, would save $1,000 a month by basing salaries on a sliding scale commensurate with the business being done.

Explains New Pay Plan.

At present the managers each get $150 a month, although their receipts range from less than $800 to above $2,000 monthly. The sliding scale, the board was informed, would tend to bring all the managers up to average. Proposed salaries would range from $80 a month for the poorest to $150 a month for those reporting monthly receipts of $2,000 and over.

With part of the savings, Mr. Washam recommends the employment of three supervisors and two junior clerks to effect additional economy and efficiency in operating the lunchrooms. It is proposed further to eliminate one assistant manager and the position of chief clerk in the central office.

Shows Increase for Year.

For the four months of September to December of 1934, inclusive, the report said, the receipts were $267,116, as compared with the same period of 1933, when they totaled $236,420, or $30,696 less. The new system was inaugurated in September of 1934.

Another indication of the improvement is the fact that 32.7 per cent of the entire school enrollment of pupils, teachers, and school employés are now patronizing the 48 lunchrooms. A year ago only 27.5 per cent were patrons. The 20 per cent increase in customers is attributed to better quality of foods, tastier cooking and presentation, and improved service.

RULES AGAINST SLUM DISTRICT CONDEMNATION

U. S. Judge's Decision Hits Louisville Project.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The government does not possess the power to condemn private property for slum clearance projects, it was held today by Judge Charles I. Dawson of the western Kentucky district of federal court.

The decision was given concerning Louisville's $1,500,000 low cost housing project, which the court said was not one of public use. The ruling was regarded as blocking the project since no appeal is expected to be taken by the government.

Some Refused to Sell.

The public works administration had taken the matter into court to seek authority to exercise the right of eminent domain after several property owners in the area affected by the project refused to sell their holdings. The majority of owners, however, signed contracts for the sale of their property.

Judge Dawson denied the government's right to condemn, and declined to appoint appraisers for the property, upholding a demurrer filed by Attorney Chesley H. Searcy on behalf of Edward J. Gernert. The judge based his decision on the fifth amendment of the constitution.

Legal for Other Purposes.

He remarked that while the issue where the government could condemn property for slum clearance or low cost housing was entirely new, there was no question but that it could condemn land for postoffices, arsenals, locks and dams on navigable streams, public parks, or right of way for interstate railroads.

Shackelford Miller Jr., special attorney employed by the PWA, intimated that no appeal would be taken from the ruling. He said an appeal would not aid the main purpose of the project which was the early creation of jobs for a considerable number of men. He expressed the belief that the loss of the case in the lower court would end the project entirely.

6 ARE CONVICTED IN KANSAS CITY DEPOT SLAYINGS

Four Men and 2 Women to Be Sentenced Today.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Four men and two women, found guilty of arranging the attempted delivery plot in the so-called Union station massacre of five men, were to be arraigned before Judge Merrill E. Otis tomorrow morning for sentencing.

The six defendants were convicted by a jury in federal court this morning. The jury was out only two hours and 12 minutes last night.

Those convicted are Louis [Doc] Stacci, Chicago roadhouse operator; Frank [Fritz] Mulloy of Kansas City, Richard T. Galatas and his wife, Elizabeth, of Hot Springs, Ark., and Herbert Allen Farmer and his wife, Esther, of Joplin, Mo.

They face maximum sentences of two years in prison, a fine of $10,000, or both. Defense Counsel Henry L. Balaban announced that the verdict would be appealed.

Reported ex-Aid of Capone.

Stacci, alias Stacey, owner of the Club Spanish roadhouse at Mannheim and Roosevelt roads in Hillside, a suburb of Chicago, is alleged to have formerly been a member of the Capone gang. The plot that resulted in the killings was said to have been hatched in a roadhouse in Melrose Park, Ill., which Stacci formerly owned. He lived at 609 South 7th avenue, Maywood, Ill.

All the defendants took the verdict calmly except Mrs. Farmer, who wept bitterly. The judge permitted the two women to be released on their present bonds pending the imposition of sentence tomorrow, but ordered the four men placed in the custody of United States Marshal Henry Dillingham.

Woman Pleads Guilty.

A seventh defendant, Mrs. Vivian Mathis, who posed as the wife of the late Verne Miller, one of the "trigger men" in the quintuple slaying, pleaded guilty as the trial opened.

Charges against Mrs. Frances Nash, widow of the convict, Frank Nash, whose attempted liberation resulted in his own death and the killing of his four captors, were dismissed yesterday after her testimony for the government had proved a factor in the convictions. She was not in court today.

The four day trial was unusual in that both prosecution and defense witnesses testified to virtually the same set of facts, but placed different interpretations on them.

Four Officers Slain.

The government accused the defendants of entering into a conspiracy to have the notorious Miller, Charles [Pretty Boy] Floyd, and the latter's henchman, Adam Richetti, at the Union station on June 17, 1933, when officers arrived there with Nash, who was being returned to Leavenworth penitentiary. Two federal agents, two city detectives, and Nash were slain in a hail of machine gun fire.

The defendants contended they were motivated by pity and sympathy to aid the distraut Mrs. Nash, whose husband had been suddenly seized by armed men who failed to identify themselves as officers and therefore appeared to be kidnapers.

WOMEN'S PRISON DISGUISED.

PARISIAN WOMAN PROVIDED FOR IN A. J. DREXEL WILL

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The late Anthony J. Drexel, member of the Philadelphia family of bankers affiliated with J. P. Morgan & Co., left $25,000 and the life income from $500,000 to his Parisian friend, Mme. Helene Barth, it was revealed today when his will was probated.

Drexel, who died recently in New York, was prominent as a yachtsman. He had entertained King Edward VII. at boating events.

After bequests to friends and employés, the residuary estate was left to Drexel's children. His butler, George Tyrrell, was given $10,000, and the commander of his yacht Sayonare, Capt. William Trayler of Southampton, England, was bequeathed $5,000. A former valet, Thomas Callaghan of London, was left $500 in lieu of a pension he had been receiving.

Upon the death of Mme. Barth the principal of the trusts for her will go to Drexel's children, except $50,000 which is to be held in trust with the net income going to her son, Rene Jean Pierre.

Dispatches from Paris said that Mme. Barth, a handsome middle aged French woman with graying hair, admitted she had known Drexel for "a good many years," though she seemed unimpressed by the news of his bequest to her.

A studio portrait of Drexel and snapshots of herself and the banker on the beach at Monte Carlo held places of honor in the drawing room of her Paris apartment.

As evidence of their friendship she pointed to one photograph which showed her sitting in a beach chair at Monte Carlo and Drexel standing by. The picture showed her to have been of striking beauty.

Twenty in Party

Twenty dancers, the first group of Hollywood girls to be selected for a theatrical engagement in England, passed through Chicago yesterday en route to New York. They are to perform in the London production of "Merry-Go-Round," which has been rewritten from "As Thousands Cheer." They will sail on the steamship Lafayette.

SEVEN MEN ADRIFT ON TWO LAKE ICE CAKES RESCUED

BARRIE, Ont., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Seven men, adrift for nearly 24 hours on two ice floes in the middle of gale-swept Lake Simcoe, reached safety today.

One group of three, including S. V. Jones, 76-year-old resident of Oro station, was rescued by an airplane. The others were able to walk ashore near Hawkestone, 37 miles from here, after bitterly cold temperatures caused the lake surface to freeze between their ice floe and the land.

The two ice floes broke away from shore with their human freight while the men were fishing yesterday afternoon. The only shelter they had on their pair of icy islands were crude shacks they had erected to protect them from the wind while they tended their lines.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Sr., who arrived in France today aboard the Ile de France, said tonight he was going to Genoa to see a man about a boat and later would go to the Swiss Alps for the winter sports.

The American actor cut short inquiry about Lady Ashley, recently divorced in a suit which named Fairbanks the co-respondent. Fairbanks said he would inspect a ship at Genoa, which he intends to charter for a trip to the south seas, when a picture will be filmed, "which I don't want to say anything about now."

Lady Ashley May Join Doug.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Lady Ashley, recently divorced in a suit which named Douglas Fairbanks Sr. as co-respondent, is expected to join the movie actor in the Swiss Alps this week-end, friends said today.

EX-TUTOR SEEKS TO REUNITE KING CAROL AND HELEN

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Powerful influences were at work today in an effort to reconcile King Carol and his divorced wife, Princess Helen.

Chief plotter for their reconciliation was the aged Nicholas Jorga, ex-premier and formerly Carol's tutor. He was planning to invite Helen to leave her exile in Florence and attend the dedication of the new wing of the university bearing her name at Valeni de Munte early this year.

King Carol also will be there, and the former premier hoped he might arrange for the estranged royal pair to meet. Jorga's scheme may be considered, it was understood, at the family reunion of Jugo-Slav and Rumanian royalties at the official royal residence in Sinaia, Rumania, Jan. 25.

LINDY IDENTIFIES HAUPTMANN AS SON'S KIDNAPER

Picks Voice as That Heard in Ransom Deal.

ing that any person could doubt it. He looked at Hauptmann as he made that statement and the latter stared back, then turned his head aside for a moment.

He recognized the voice, he said, when he heard it the second time in District Attorney Samuel Foley's office in the Bronx after Hauptmann was arrested.

Believes Him Kidnaper.

It was during cross-examination that Col. Lindbergh added specifically his belief that Hauptmann kidnaped the child.

Attorney Reilly was inquiring if Lindbergh at the time of the trial of John Hughes Curtis had not believed Curtis had some connection with the kidnapers. Curtis was convicted of attempting to obstruct justice but got off with a suspended sentence.

There was a sharp tilt between Reilly and Attorney General David T. Wilentz over the form of the question, and the latter finally remarked:

"Well, let him answer that question if he also is permitted to state his belief as to the identity of the kidnaper now."

"All right," said Reilly. Turning to the flyer, he said:

"I take it that you now believe that the defendant is guilty of the kidnaping?"

"I do," said Lindbergh with emphasis.

He then said he previously had believed that a gang of persons had committed the crime because of Curtis' statements.

"But I found out later that he had not been telling the truth," he added quickly.

Scoffs at "Gang" Theory.

"I don't believe so," was the reply. "I used the word 'they' merely as a form."

Q.—As a matter of fact, you changed your mind since the Hauptmann arrest, didn't you? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you believe that bootleggers or the Purple gang of Detroit did it? A.—I didn't even know then what the Purple gang was.

Q.—Then why did you get in touch with Spitz, Spitale, and other members of the underworld. A.—Because I wanted to exhaust every possible avenue of information.

Q.—Who suggested that? A.—A friend of Col. Breckenridge [Col. Henry C. Breckinridge, Lindbergh's legal adviser] suggested it to him, I believe.

The attorney sought to make Lindbergh admit he had not enlisted the aid of New York police and that the New Jersey police by their insistence upon handling all the investigation had hampered proceedings.

Q.—Didn't the police commissioner of New York offer to cover every mail box in Brooklyn to watch for letters mailed to you? A.—That may have been done. I don't recall the direct offer.

Questioned on Reward.

Q.—There was a reward offer by the state of New Jersey of $25,000? A.—I believe the legislature offered it.

Q.—You offered no personal reward? A.—No.

Q.—Did you have any personal enemies you suspected of the crime? A.—No.

Q.—None in the aviation world? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know a flyer named Swede Anderson? A.—Not by name.

Q.—Didn't you ever have a quarrel with him or receive threats from him? A.—Not that I can remember.

DEFENSE SCORES "JAFSIE"

The defense lawyer then launched into his attack upon Dr. Condon.

"Now these symbols on the ransom note, did you ever try to decipher them?" Lindbergh was asked.

The symbols referred to were two interlocking circles, a superimposed red disk, and three small holes in the paper.

"No," was the answer to this question.

Q.—Do you know anything about theosophy? A.—Very little.

Q.—Do you know that Dr. Condon once taught theosophy? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you think it strange that a man from the Bronx should call you up, should insert an ad of his own account and offer a $1,000 reward? A.—Not under those circumstances.

Q.—Wasn't it strange when New Jersey already had offered a reward of $25,000?

"Master Mind" Suggested.

"Dr. Condon's reward was offered for a contact with the kidnapers, while the New Jersey reward was for their apprehension," Lindbergh pointed out.

"Did it ever occur to you that a master mind might have inserted an ad in the paper and then answered it himself?" Reilly asked.

The phrasing seemed to amuse the witness. He smiled.

"I hadn't thought of that," he admitted.

"It seems improbable," the flyer added.

"Of course, your viewpoint in this case is that of the suffering father," remarked Reilly. "You can't see it as the man on the outside sees it."

"Certainly," shot back the flyer. "That's why I turned all the investigating over to the police."

This retort was in reference to an exchange at the morning's cross-examination when Reilly had remarked surprise that Lindbergh did not conduct more investigation of the case on his own part.

Defense Attorney Indignant.

The courtroom crowd got the significance of the reply and there was laughter while Judge Trenchard pounded the bench with his gavel.

Attorney Reilly didn't like the laughter. His three chins quivered with indignation.

"You didn't see Condon get the note under the rock at the cemetery," he declared. "He merely went away and came back and told you he had found it.

"You didn't see him hand over any money. He went away with $50,000 and came back empty handed. You say you were at his house one time when the bell rang and he went to the door and came back with a note which was another ransom note."

The witness admitted all this was true.

Q.—That last note called for the immediate payment of $70,000 in 30 minutes? A.—Yes.

Had Money with Him.

Q.—You had the money there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who else beside Dr. Condon knew you were there and had the money? A.—A number of people.

Q.—Name them. A.—The police, my wife, Col. Breckinridge, Al Reich.

Q.—That was Condon's bodyguard? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Condon ask you to bring the money that night? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—What induced you to bring it? A.—The previous ransom note.

Q.—Who built the box to hold the money? A.—Dr. Condon had it built.

Q.—He had it built according to the specifications in the letter he himself brought to you? A.—Yes.

Returns to "Gang" Theory.

There followed some questioning about Curtis and the Curtis trial.

The lawyer returned to the Detroit gang theory. Lindbergh denied he ever had prepared $50,000 to be flown to Detroit in a plane. He revealed he had had two packages, each containing $50,000, in readiness during the negotiations in order that the ransom might be paid promptly.

The questioning swung to Violet Sharpe, the maid who poisoned herself.

Q.—You were in the Morrow home shortly before the suicide of Miss Sharpe? A.—Yes.

Q.—She and the butler, Whately, were very friendly? A.—They knew each other. I suppose they were friendly.

Q.—Did you suspect her in this case? A.—I did not.

Q.—She was questioned by the police? A.—Yes.

Tells of Girl's Suicide.

Q.—And when they came back to question her again, she went upstairs and committed suicide? A.—She took poison, yes.

Q.—Was Red Johnson friendly with Violet Sharpe? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Wasn't he arrested for being illegally in this country, but the order later canceled, and he was permitted to leave the country? A.—I don't know about that.

Q.—And he now is in Denmark or Sweden? A.—I do not know.

Q.—Well, Betty Gow was in Scotland, but was brought back for this trial. Have you heard of any effort to bring Red Johnson back? A.—No.

This ended the cross-examination. Prosecutor Wilentz started to ask a few questions on redirect examination, but announced after a recess that "We will not further harass the witness."

POLICEMAN IS CALLED

Policeman Charles E. Williamson of Hopewell, N. J., was the next witness. He told of receiving the first call from the Lindbergh home on the night of the kidnaping and proceeding with Chief Wolf of the Hopewell police to the home. They arrived about 10:30 p. m.

"We met Col. Lindbergh at the front door," he testified.

"He had his rifle in his hand. We examined the nursery and the empty crib."

The policeman told of noticing muddy footprints on the nursery carpet leading from the window sill to the crib. Outside, searching with his flashlight, he testified, he found the ladder some distance from the home, which he referred to as the "Lindbergh mansion."

Q.—That's in a very desolate country in one of the highest spots of the Sourland mountains, isn't it? A.—Yes, sir.

Dark, Windy Night.

Q.—How was the weather? A.—It was dark, cold, and very windy.

Q.—How far is the nearest house to the Lindbergh home? A.—About three-quarters of a mile.

He testified he also was among the police who went to the shallow grave where the body of the infant was found on May 12.

In cross-examination of this witness, Attorney Reilly wanted to know why footprints in the mud outside the house had not been preserved by plaster of paris casts or some other means.

The witness said he did not know. He told of seeing a finger print expert examine the ransom note for finger prints, but had not seen the expert examine the window sill or window for prints.

Hauptmann's Prosecutors Confer

[Associated Press Photo.]

THREE WITNESSES PRESENT TESTIMONY AT DAY'S SESSION

POLICEMAN WILLIAMSON.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh — "I do" believe Bruno Hauptmann was the kidnaper; "that was Hauptmann's voice" that called "Hey, doctor!" to Dr. John F. Condon, keeping a rendezvous to pay $50,000 ransom.

Mrs. Elsie Whately [wife of the late Lindbergh butler] — "Why, Elsie, the baby is gone," said his nurse upon missing him; "O, God," cried Mrs. Lindbergh; "no, we did not" know Dr. Condon before the kidnaping.

Charles E. Williamson [Hopewell policeman]—About finding footprints and the ladder outside the Lindbergh house.

BUTLER'S WIDOW ON STAND

Mrs. Whately, the widow of the Lindbergh butler, was the next witness. She was badly frightened. Despite her almost inaudible testimony and her broad north of England accent, she furnished for the first time a hint of the hysteria which swept the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping.

The witness said she and Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, "sat around and talked in my bedroom until about 10 o'clock, when she said she was going to see the baby."

A few minutes later, while she was preparing some "lemon water" in the kitchen for Mrs. Lindbergh, the nurse came in, crying:

"Why, Elsie, the baby is gone."

She told of the search of the house and grounds, in which Whately participated, and of Mrs. Lindbergh, grief stricken, sitting later in the living room.

Defends Dead Husband.

When the attorney general began to question her she disregarded his first question and breathed defiant defense of her dead husband against the insinuation he and Violet Sharpe had been friendly.

"I would like to state here," she said, facing the jury, "that my husband was not in the habit of taking Violet Sharpe out."

Defense Attorney Reilly was wrathful. He demanded that the answer be stricken, and Judge Trenchard, a little smile under his gray mustache, ordered that it be stricken and the jury was instructed to disregard it. Laughter caused by the remark caused the court to remark:

"This laughter is getting to be a nuisance. Unless it stops I'll have the courthouse cleared."

Identifies Boy's Garment.

Mrs. Whately proceeded to tell of events in the Lindbergh home preceding the kidnaping, repeating in general the testimony of previous witnesses. She also identified the undershirt found on the infant's corpse by means of a silk thread which she had used in making the garment.

"Did you once live in New Rochelle?" he asked.

Q.—Did your husband get pretty well acquainted there? A.—No; he stayed pretty much with me.

Q.—As a matter of fact, it was in New Rochelle that your husband became acquainted with Dr. Condon, wasn't it?

Retorts with Indignation.

"No it was not!" was the indignant retort as Mrs. Whately became aware of the trend of the questioning. "My husband never saw Dr. Condon until he came to the Lindbergh home in 1932."

Q.—You were acquainted with Violet Sharpe? A.—Very little, just enough to say good morning.

Q.—Your husband knew her pretty well? A.—He did not.

Q.—Did your husband once live in London. A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Did you ever hear him mention a George Payne? A.—No.

Q.—Did you dislike Violet Sharpe? A.—No, I thought she was very nice, but I hardly knew her.

Q.—Did an insurance man ever visit the Lindbergh home? A.—Not that I remember.

She said that her husband had died in May, 1933, when she was visiting in England.

Q.—So you were abroad when he died? A.—Yes, I was on the way home.

Q.—They told you he died of peritonitis? A.—Yes.

Q.—But he was also in good health up to the time you went away? A.—Yes.

SENSATION OF MORNING

The sensation of the morning session was Col. Lindbergh's identification of Hauptmann's voice as that of the man whom he heard calling "Hey, doctor!" over the wall of the cemetery to Dr. Condon.

It was the climax of the flyer's direct testimony. Soon thereafter the cross-examination, which was to furnish many exciting moments, began.

Defense Attorney Reilly next supplied a little interest by demanding in a loud voice to know where Mrs. Hauptmann was.

She was discovered seated among the spectators. The lawyer beckoned her forward to a seat near her husband. Not without a sense of courtroom proprieties is Mr. Reilly.

Mrs. Lindbergh Absent.

Mrs. Lindbergh, whose gentle and appealing demeanor on the witness stand yesterday had silenced the courtroom crowd for the first time, was not present today. The mutterings and murmurings of the jostling mass of humanity resounded as before in the overheated courtroom.

Taking the stand, Col. Lindbergh sank naturally into his usual position, elbow on the arm of the chair and chin resting on his hand. He wore the same gray suit and his shirt and tie again were gray.

Attorney General Wilentz asked him to describe the muddy footprints he found in the nursery.

"There were prints," said Col. Lindbergh, "on the chest under the window and at least one print on the floor. And to the best of my recollection, there were prints on the window sill itself."

Finds Clay Footprints.

Q.—Sort of mud? A.—A yellow, red clay such as I found outside the house.

Q.—Were they distinct prints? A.—No. They were not the clear outlines of a man's shoe, but they very evidently had been made by a shoe.

He identified a picture showing a print on the chest he had mentioned.

"Now about the ladder you found outside the house," resumed Prosecutor Wilentz. "That was brought into your home that night?"

"It was."

Q.—Had you ever seen that ladder before? A.—No. It was not a part of the household nor the estate.

Q.—Was a chisel found near the ladder A.—The finding of it was reported to me.

Q.—And was that chisel a part of your household equipment? A.—It was not.

Identifies 3d Ransom Note.

"Getting back to the ransom notes," remarked the lawyer. "Did you receive any more notes?"

"Not directly."

He was shown the third ransom note which had been received by Col. Breckinridge. He identified it.

"About that time did you receive a call from a gentleman named Dr. Condon?"

As the affirmative answer was made a big man entered the courtroom from an ante chamber. He was said by reporters to be the bodyguard who usually accompanies Dr. Condon and the report spread that "Jafsie" was in town.

Col. Lindbergh said Dr. Condon came to his home on the evening of March 9 or after midnight on March 10 and showed him two notes he had received from the alleged kidnapers in response to an ad he had inserted in the Bronx Home News. The witness identified the notes. These and the other ransom notes were not admitted to evidence at the moment but were merely marked for identification.

Picks Out Sleeping Suit.

"You authorized Dr. Condon to make an investigation?"

"I did."

One by one all the ransom notes sent to Dr. Condon were identified by the witness. He also at this period identified the baby's sleeping suit sent to Dr. Condon by the kidnapers as proof they had the baby, and the paper wrapping about the suit. The flyer examined the sleeping suit carefully before nodding his head.

Hauptmann was sitting between the state troopers with his head thrown back, his chin jutting out, his deep-set eyes resting calmly on the lanky form of the aviator.

The prosecutor proceeded to question the witness about the night of April 2, when the $50,000 ransom was paid.

Q.—Now, on the night of April 2, did you take an automobile and drive somewhere? —A.—I did.

Q.—Who was with you? A.—Dr. Condon.

Q.—Did you have any money with you? A.—Yes, $70,000.

Q.—Was that wrapped up in a brown paper and in a wooden box? A.—It was.

Drives to Cemetery.

Q.—What time of night was it? A.—Approximately 8:30 o'clock.

Q.—Did you have any police protection or surveillance? A.—Not so far as I know.

Q.—You had arranged not to have any? A.—Yes.

Col. Lindbergh said he drove the car with Dr. Condon to a point near St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx as directed by the writer of the ransom notes.

"I parked opposite a florist shop," he said. "Dr. Condon got out. He went over to a table near the shop and reached under the table. He came back with a note which he said he had found under a rock there."

This note also was shown him and he identified it.

Q.—You remained in the car. A.—Yes.

Q.—How far were you from the cemetery? A.—I should say about 200 or 300 feet.

Q.—What time of the night was it? A.—In the vicinity of 9 o'clock.

Q.—What was the condition of the weather?

"Visibility Clear."

"Visibility clear," he said.

"You stayed in the car with the $70,000?"

"I did."

Q.—Then what happened? A.—After Dr. Condon came back with the note he walked across the street to the corner of the cemetery. He stayed there a few minutes, then turned around and started to walk back. He had arrived about the center of the street when I heard very clearly a voice coming from the cemetery, calling, in a foreign accent, "Hey, doctor!"

Q.—How many times did you hear him call that? A.—I heard it once.

Lindbergh said that Dr. Condon then turned around and hurried back to the cemetery side of the street, walking away until he disappeared from his sight.

Places Ransom in Box.

"He returned in approximately 10 minutes," he continued. "He said that all he needed was $50,000. So I opened the package and took out $20,000, and put back $50,000 in the box. I gave him the box.

Q.—Describe the box. A.—It was a wooden box hinged at the back with one or two clasps of metal with the appearance of brass. It was of oblong shape. It become cracked in forcing back the $50,000. Its dimensions were in accordance with the instructions given in one of the notes. Its size I don't recall exactly. It was about 12 or 14 inches long and probably 7 or 8 inches in height.

Q.—What bills were left in the box? A.—Ten, twenty, and five dollar bills. The $20,000 taken out was in fifties.

Ransom Money Paid.

The flyer said Dr. Condon left with the box and returned about 10 or 15 minutes later with a note which had been given him by the man to whom he delivered the $50,000. This note, directing Lindbergh to search for a boat off the coast of Massachussetts, also was identified.

The two drove to Dr. Condon's home after stopping on the way to read the note.

"I immediately made arrangements to obtain a plane," he continued, "with which to fly over the area designated in the note. We left Bridgeport about day break the following morning, driving to Bridgeport by car."

Q.—Who was with you? A.—Col. Breckinridge, an internal revenue agent, Dr. Condon, and myself.

Q.—How long were you in the air? A.—O, several hours. We flew over the area, landed and spent considerable time looking over harbors and the waters there.

Q.—And the purpose of that? A.—Looking for the boat described in the note. Trying to find my son.

Q.—Did you pilot the plane yourself? A.—I did.

Long Search Is in Vain.

"Your search, of course, was in vain?"

"It was," said the witness softly.

Q.—Did you make another effort to find your boy? A.—I did, a day or two later.

On the second attempt, Col. Lindbergh again spent several hours in the air in a futile effort to find the boat described in the note, he said.

Raising his voice, speaking slowly and impressively, Mr. Wilentz came to the most important question he had put thus far.

"Now Col. Lindbergh," he said, "on the night of April 2, when you were in the vicinity of St. Raymond's cemetery and heard the voice saying 'Hey, doctor!'—since that time have you ever heard that same voice?"

"I have," said the aviator, quietly.

"Whose voice was it, colonel, that you heard?"

PICKS HAUPTMANN'S VOICE

The courtroom waited tensely for the answer. The witness turned to face Hauptmann. But it was very casually that he answered.

"O, that was Hauptmann's voice," he said, almost carelessly, as if in wonder that any one could doubt it.

Again there was the minor uproar which greets every climactic moment in this trial as messengers tore away with bulletins to the telegraph wires.

Hauptmann held Lindbergh's stare for a moment, meeting the flyer's blue eyes with his own eyes of pale gray. Then he turned his head half aside and Lindbergh also turned his head back to look at the prosecutor.

Hauptmann Half Smirks.

There was a curious expression on Hauptmann's sallow face. It was half a sneer, half a smirk. The gaping courtroom crowd was rewarded with no stronger display of feeling in this enigmatic defendant who perhaps learned to school his features in a German prison.

"You heard that voice a second time after that night in the cemetery?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes, in District Attorney Foley's office in the Bronx," was the reply.

It was recalled that Lindbergh, at that time, had watched Hauptmann and heard him talk when the latter was unaware of the aviator's presence.

Changing the subject, the prosecutor delved into the matter of the identification of the child's body.

Q.—When did you last see Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. alive? A.—On the Sunday preceding the first of March.

Q.—Did you later see his body? A.—Yes. In the early morning of May 13.

Body Ordered Cremated.

Q.—It was your child? A.—It was.

Q.—You ordered the body cremated? A.—Yes.

Q.—And had the ashes sent to you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And they are in your custody? A.—Yes.

The direct examination was concluded in much the same manner as had been Mrs. Lindbergh's.

"So you didn't get your money back and you didn't get your child back?" asked the prosecutor.

"I did not."

"Your child was a normal child, 20 months old?"

"He was. Perfectly normal."

Q.—He had blond, curly hair? A.—Yes.

Q.—He could talk? A.—He was beginning to talk.

"He had a name for you and for Mrs. Lindbergh?"

Flyer Smiles Again.

A slight smile twisted the flyer's lips.

"He did," he replied, simply.

"He was an active child."

"I should say he was very active."

He was shown the large picture of the child, which his wife also had viewed.

"Yes, that's Charles," he said.

"He is your witness," said the prosecutor, turning to Defense Attorney Reilly.

Lindbergh turned to face the portly defense lawyer who arose to conduct the cross-examination. There were murmurs of admiration for the attorney's resplendent morning coat and striped trousers, the striped black and white tie, and the gray spats.

The witnesses' expression was grim as he faced the questioner. It was to prove a notable duel of wits.

Attorney Reilly lost no time. His voice was belligerent.

"Do you recall that there was a road on your property which you had fenced off?" he asked.

"I don't think any road was closed," replied Lindbergh.

Suggests "Inside Job."

Q.—Did the same people have access to your property after you bought it that had before? A.—So far as I know they did. In fact, I requested that no one be barred from using any road they hitherto had used.

Q.—Didn't the people in that neighborhood bear hostility to you? A.—Not that I know of.

The lawyer then began a line of questioning aimed at suggesting to the jury that the Lindbergh household servants might have committed the kidnaping.

Q.—From what agency did you hire the Whatelys? (Butler and wife). A.—I don't recall.

Q.—From what agency was Miss Gow hired? A.—I don't believe she came through an agency. She was recommended by some one who had worked for us in Englewood (home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh).

Q.—What investigation did you make of the Whatelys? A.—I talked to them.

Flyer Appears Amused.

Q.—No other investigation? A.—No.

Col. Lindbergh apparently was amused at this line of questioning. There was a smile on his face as he eyed the florid face of the defense attorney.

Q.—Whately is the one who has since died? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long afterward? A.—In the winter of 1932 or 1933.

The attorney centered his attack upon Miss Gow, whose name was to appear frequently during the cross-examination.

Q.—Did you make an effort to learn Miss Gow's background? A.—That may have been done. I didn't do it.

Q.—Did you know she had two brothers? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you know she had a brother who was in trouble in the state of New Jersey? A.—No.

Q.—And a brother in Canada? A.—No.

"At the time of this kidnaping," asked Reilly, loudly, "did you want to know the background of all those servants in your house?"

Relied on Police.

"That was thoroughly done by the police," was the quiet answer.

Q.—And you did nothing yourself? A.—I placed my entire confidence in the police. I followed their instructions.

"Now, as a man of the world, Col. Lindbergh," inquired Reilly, suavely, "don't you know that the police are not infallible?"

"I think they're pretty good police," the witness retorted, and a burst of applause came from the crowd at this tribute to the New Jersey troopers.

Hauptmann looked around quickly. His wife, near him, seemed about to burst into tears at this evidence of the enthusiasm for the witness, and, indirectly, her own husband's unpopularity.

"Don't let that happen again," growled the judge to the audience.

"Isn't it a fact," resumed Reilly, when the crowd had become subdued, "that not one federal agent ever has seen those ransom notes?"

Tells of Federal Agents.

"Why, I know that's not the fact," responded the flyer, in surprise. "The federal men came to the house, had complete access to it, and saw the notes in the succeeding investigation."

Q.—Isn't it a fact that the investigation was solely in the hands of the state police and Col. Schwarzkopf? A.—I believe that was the organization, but federal men had complete knowledge of everything going on. I attended conference after conference at which they were present.

The lawyer then conducted his cross-examination in an effort to bring out how the kidnaping might have been an inside job.

"Be good enough to point out to us how a person could reach the nursery from the kitchen without going down the front steps," he instructed the witness.

Lindbergh took the pointer and outlined on the map how a person could ascend a rear stairway to the second floor of the Hopewell home and gain access to the nursery. He also pointed out a door leading from the kitchen to the garage, which in turn opened upon a courtyard.

Questioned About Courtyard.

"Did you examine that courtyard for footprints?" Reilly asked.

"It would have been no use; it was soft gravel," was the answer.

Q.—The question is, did you look there? A.—I saw no object in doing so.

A series of questions next revealed that no person except Mrs. Lindbergh or Whately, the butler, could have known that Lindbergh was returning to his Hopewell home the night of the kidnaping. The point is expected to be made much of by the defense in its contention that an outsider, like Hauptmann, could not have kidnaped the child.

It was the custom of the Lindberghs, the flyer said, to stay at Hopewell only over week-ends and to live at Englewood the rest of the week.

"My wife stayed at Hopewell that week because the baby had a cold," he explained.

"I don't suppose that any one knew that I was going out there Tuesday night," he admitted in answer to questions. "I stayed at Englewood Monday night because I had business in New York next day.

Telephones to Wife.

"It wasn't until late Tuesday afternoon that I decided to go down to Hopewell that night and I called my wife."

"Did the butler answer the phone?"

"He may have; I don't remember."

"Where did you go in New York that Tuesday?"

"I don't recall the exact details. I think I went to the Pan-American Airways offices, to the Transcontinental and Western Air Transport office, to the Rockefeller institute. I think I stopped at my dentist's office."

There followed a long colloquy dealing with dogs.

Lindbergh said there was a Scotch terrier at the Hopewell home.

Smiles at Question.

"Did you see the dog that night?"

"I don't recall," said the aviator, smiling at the earnestness of the attorney.

"Did you hear him bark?"

"I don't recall."

Q.—The dog didn't hear any one prowling around the house. A.—I wouldn't expect that dog to do so.

Back went Reilly to the activities of the household on the night of the kidnaping.

Q.—Did you see Miss Gow around the nursery that night? A.—Not that I remember.

Q.—You didn't enter the nursery? A.—No.

Q.—When sitting in the dining room, could you see the front door? A.—No.

Q.—Nor the servants' staircase? A.—No.

Q.—You were practically set apart from the rest of the house while dining? A.—I suppose you can put it that way.

State Enters Objection.

Q.—If the front door had been opened and some one had gone up the front stairs to the nursery and taken the baby, you wouldn't have heard it? A.—I think I would.

Q.—You're sure of that? A.—It would be very improbable.

Q.—Never mind the probability. Was it possible?

Prosecutor Wilentz objected to the "never mind" of Reilly. It was stricken from the record.

The witness then said reluctantly that "it might have been possible." To similar questions about persons going up the rear stairway, he admitted he might not have heard them.

Q.—You don't know the moment when the baby was taken from the crib, do you? A.—No.

HINTS AT DIFFERENT PLOT

To the next question the state also objected vigorously.

"Did you ever hear, prior to the kidnaping, that you were to be the victim of a kidnaping?" inquired the defense lawyer.

Q.—Did you ever have any indication that your wires were being tapped? A.—No.

Q.—The wires were underground and laid in piping, were they not? A.—For some distance from the house, yes.

Q.—Now, concerning this window from which you think the baby was taken, was it open when you entered the nursery? A.—My recollection is that it was open.

Q.—The other window was closed? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were any fingerprints taken from the window, showing that a person had opened it from the outside. A.—It was dusted for fingerprints, but I was informed it showed only smudges.

Q.—Were any fingerprints found in the nursery? A.—None that could be identified.

Q.—Was it the custom to lock the windows on the second floor. A.—No.

Q.—Did Betty Gow and the Whatelys know that the windows were not locked. A.—I suppose so.

Unarmed, Says Lindbergh.

During Col. Lindbergh's cross-examination, Reilly asked him if he was a police officer. Prosecutor Wilentz objected, but Lindbergh said he wanted to answer. He replied that he was not.

Q.—Are you armed at present? A.—I am not.

Several reporters who had professed to see a pistol in a shoulder holster worn by Col. Lindbergh blushed at this reply.

The question had been propounded by Reilly because of newspaper stories and the knowledge that it is a crime for a citizen to carry a pistol into a New Jersey courtroom.

Garage Never Locked.

Col. Lindbergh, in response to additional questions, said the garage in the rear of the Hopewell home never was locked. This was taken to support the defense theory that the kidnaper did not enter the nursery by a window, but came through the rear of the house with the aid of some one in the household.

"Did the Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J., have a Danish chauffeur by the name of Ellison?" Attorney Reilly asked.

"Yes," said Lindbergh.

Q.—Did you ever have any conversation with him about the kidnaping. A.—No, no, Questioned on Chauffeur.

Q.—See if I can refresh your recollection, colonel. Do you remember asking him where he was between 10 o'clock and 9 o'clock and 3 a. m. March the 1st and March the 2d, away from the Morrow estate? A.—I don't recall asking him that, but I might well have done it.

Q.—Well, do you know then on what night he drove from the Morrow estate with an unknown person to the locality of Hopewell, N. J.? A.—No. I believe he took Miss Gow down one day.

The flyer denied he ever had trouble with laborers hired in connection with the construction of his home. One defense contention is that the child was kidnaped by mountaineers in the section because Lindbergh brought in outside labor and refused to hire them.

The witness also admitted that, so far as he knew, no one ever had taken a photograph of the muddy footprints on the floor of the nursery.

The defense lawyer asked about Betty Gow's behavior after the discovery that the child was missing.

Q.—Was she hysterical? A.—No.

Q.—Was she crying? A.—No.

Greatly Attached to Child.

Q.—And yet from all indications before that she was greatly attached to the child and the child attached to her? A.—I believe so, yes.

The cross-examiner turned again to the subject of the police investigation.

"Didn't you tell the department of justice men to keep out of the case, that you didn't want them to investigate the case?" he asked.

"No, sir, I did not," Lindbergh replied.

Q.—Did you at any time on March 2, or 3, or 4 telephone any official in Washington and ask him to have the federal officers lay off the case? A.—No, no, no. I asked around that time for federal officers.

Claim Wind Drowned Cries.

One point stressed by Reilly in the cross-examination was that the baby was not used to strangers and would have cried if taken up by one.

No such cries were heard, Lindbergh said. The state's theory, brought out in questioning of all witnesses, is that the wailing of the strong wind the night of the kidnaping would have drowned out such cries.

Testimony that it was a cold and windy night was directed to this end.

Hauptmann's Wife Finds New Hope; Smiles Leaving Court

Although visibly shaken when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh identified her husband as the man who received the $50,000 ransom for return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, she appeared to be in better spirits than at any time since the opening of the trial.

"I am beginning to feel that everything will come out all right," she said. "I feel that they won't do anything to an innocent man."

One young girl standing in line outside the courthouse wore riding boots to keep her feet warm. Under a raccoon coat she wore a riding habit. She said she was Cricket Maddock of Washington Crossing.

The first in line were two Brooklyn stenographers who arrived four hours before court opened. They stamped their feet briskly and said they were "very, very numb."

The jury presented a few changes today. Young Mrs. Ethel Stockton had changed her red blouse for a black dress with a white satin collar. Mrs. Verna Snyder wore a rather short brown silk dress with a bold print. Liscom Case, a carpenter like Hauptmann, cupped his hand over one ear as Col. Lindbergh identified the prisoner.

Usually calm, Hauptmann today tried vainly to hide his nervousness. In his cell last night he attempted to read a book provided by the jailer. Unable to concentrate, he soon dropped the book and paced the bullpen outside his cell. When he heard Col. Lindbergh's identification, his shoulders squared and his mouth set in a hard line.

While Col. Lindbergh testified today, the one messenger girl in the courtroom placidly chewed gum. A girl apparently of high school age, she kept an eye on the newspaper reporters and slid out swiftly with "copy."

Just when the influx of visitors for the trial of Hauptmann put him in the way of making real money, Ralph Tarantola Jr. fouled the law. He operates a bar and beer garden on Main street a short distance from the courthouse. Today he had been notified that, beginning tomorrow, his place will be closed 30 days for an alleged violation of rules governing the operation of such places.

The switchboard through which the 132 wires of the Western Union Telegraph company—enough to handle the business of a city of 500,000 persons—are run has been used in every major news event since the Hall-Mills murder trial in 1926 for which it was constructed.

The Hunterdon County Democrat, out today, had a merry time with some of the correspondents covering the Hauptmann trial. Under the heading, "Seeing Ourselves as Others See Us," it recounted some of the more colorful items written of the Flemington and its people. "The week's choicest fiction" was one subtitle. The paper cited instances in which the correspondents had described the merchants as profiteers, the townspeople backward, or the town sleepy.

IT'S NOT 'WHEATLEY' OR 'WHATELEY'; BUT 'WHATELY' INSTEAD

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 4.—(AP)—For three years, ever since it has been in the news as a result of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, the name of the Lindbergh butler and his housekeeper wife was spelled "W-h-e-a-t-l-e-y."

Today the housekeeper, now a widow, went on the witness stand at Bruno Richard Hauptmann's murder trial and the court stenographer got it "W-h-a-t-e-l-e-y."

LINDBERGH PICTURES BRING COURT CENSURE UPON PHOTOGRAPHERS

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Photographs of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, taken while they were on the witness chair at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, created a considerable stir here today.

Before the trial opened Justice Thomas W. Trenchard warned that while photographs might be taken when he was not on the bench, none could be made while court was in session. He considered the photographs a violation of his ruling.

"I thought that it was perfectly understood that no photographs were to be taken while court is in session," he said this morning.

"Apparently it was not understood, or, if understood, the order was disobeyed. Now, that must not occur again. If it does the court will be obliged to take such measures as the court deems expedient."

At that point Walter Mullins, an electrician employed to string Kleig lights and to do other such jobs for newsreel cameramen, rose and declared:

"May it please your honor, I represent five newsreels and there have been absolutely no photographs taken during the trial——"

Justice Trenchard interrupted, "By you?"

"By any of the companies."

Attorney General David T. Wilentz suggested that the matter be taken up in chambers, to which Justice Trenchard agreed. In his chambers Justice Trenchard indicated any future disregard of his order would cause all cameramen to be excluded from the courtroom.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

DEFENSE WILL PLACE CONDON NEAR KIDNAPING

Hauptmann Attorney Tells of Two Witnesses.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Dr. John (Jafsie) Condon will be placed near Hopewell, N. J., about the time the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, by two defense witnesses in the Hauptmann trial, C. Lloyd Fisher of defense counsel said today.

Both sides will rest tomorrow and Sunday, while Fisher seeks to recover from a cold. Monday morning Betty Gow, nurse in the Lindbergh home, and one of the state's most important witnesses, will take the stand.

According to Attorney General David T. Wilentz, chief of the prosecution counsel, Miss Gow's examination will take the better part of a full day on direct, with perhaps that much more on cross-examination being promised by Edward J. Reilly, chief of the defense counsel.

Condon Bodyguard at Trial.

Dr. Condon has not yet appeared, either in Flemington or Trenton. His bodyguard, Al Reich, former prize fighter, and Max Rosenhain, owner of a Bronx restaurant, were in the courtroom part of the day. Reich and Dr. Condon both were frequently in Rosenhain's restaurant during the ransom negotiations in which Dr. Condon acted for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Dr. Condon spent last night in a Brockton, Mass., hotel and left at noon today. He said he expected to find a witness summons on his doorstep when he reached home.

The two defense witnesses will be used to bolster the defense contention that the kidnaping was plotted by five persons, some in the Lindbergh household.

The circumstance that the original ransom notes and other communications by which the state will seek to build up its case against Hauptmann have been introduced in evidence, or marked for identification, led the defense to make plans for its expert testimony.

Handwriting Experts to Meet.

Tomorrow in New York experts in that field will meet to discuss the known samples of Hauptmann's writing and the writing on the notes, according to Reilly.

Up to now the original ransom notes have not been available to the defense. Prosecution officials said they furnished photostatic copies of the notes to the defense at the time James M. Fawcett of Brooklyn, succeeded by Reilly as defense counsel, was in the case. These Reilly could not obtain.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard declared that after the notes were in evidence the defense could have access to them.

At the close of the session today Reilly went to New York and Frederick A. Pope and Robert E. Rosecrans went to their homes in Somerville and Blairstown. They did not anticipate another meeting until Monday morning, they said.

Police to Take Stand.

Following Miss Gow on the witness stand Monday will be the previously announced comparatively unimportant witnesses. Capt. John J. Lamb of the New Jersey state police is expected to be called and after him Corporal Joseph Wolf and Trooper F. A. Kelly, both of the state police, and the latter a finger print expert.

Having established through Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, as well as other witnesses called thus far, that the baby was kidnaped, witnesses for the state now will be called upon to explain what immediately followed the kidnaping. This will include witnesses to testify as to the preparation of the ransom money, as well as other details.

The next important state witness in the regular order would be Dr. Condon. If Miss Gow's testimony is completed Monday he probably will be called some time Tuesday, it was said, but this will depend on how fast the trial moves. Col. Lindbergh also may be recalled.

At the press conference today the prosecution seemed well pleased with its progress, particularly with the impression made by Col. Lindbergh.

Eager to Fill Record.

Former Judge George K. Large and County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, asked why the prosecution had not objected to some questions put by Reilly on cross-examination, which touched on topics not covered in the direct examination, declared: "We were perfectly willing to get everything that could be gotten into the record."

"We felt," Hauck added, "that Col. Lindbergh was well able to take care of himself."

Like the defense, the prosecution plans a week-end of rest, all except Joseph Lanigan, assistant attorney general, who plans to be in his office in Trenton all day tomorrow poring over documents and points of law still to be reached in the trial.

Mrs. Ericksen's Murder Trial Is Set for Feb. 4

Trial of Mrs. Anna Ericksen, 39 years old, who is charged with plotting the murder of her husband, George, a tavern owner, was set for Feb. 4 yesterday by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court. James Senese, 19 years old, who in his confession charged that Mrs. Ericksen promised him $500 to shoot her husband, and Elmer Krueger, 21 years old, his alleged accomplice, were not in court. They are at liberty in bond and are said to be ready to testify for the state at the trial.

Defendant Fails to Appear in Court; Bond Forfeited

George J. Becker, 40 years old, 150 Oxford road, Kenilworth, who served a prison term for mail robbery, failed to appear yesterday in the Municipal court of Judge Gibson E. Gorman, where he was to have been arraigned on a charge of obtaining money on false pretenses. His real estate bond of $1,000 was forfeited. Assistant State's Attorney William J. Lynch charged that Becker advertised in newspapers that he could obtain loans for industrial enterprises, that he collected advance fees, and that he did nothing about the loans.

GENERAL TRADE GAINS BUT LITTLE BY KIDNAP CASE

Curious Crowds Absent at Flemington.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Business in hotels, the telegraph and telephone offices, restaurants and in similar fields of activity has increased 50 per cent during the last two days in Flemington, but aside from that the merchants are unimpressed.

The consensus seems to be that so far the Hauptmann trial has failed to bring as many sensation seeking visitors as were expected.

True, the town is crowded with approximately 700 newspaper men, witnesses and others working on some angle of the trial, and that in itself is a sizeable addition to the town's 3,000 population.

Curious Are Absent.

But the mere sightseers, folks who "just drive in," inspired by curiosity and the hope of seeing one of the principals, so far are distinguished by their absence.

Swift Jersey justice is blamed by some townsfolk for the fact that Flemington isn't doing a land office business in every line.

"Nobody expected the jurors to be chosen so soon," one man commented today. "Everybody knows the jury selection is the slowest, most uninteresting part of the trial, so maybe the visitors still willl come."

Telegraph Wires Busy.

Telephone and telegraph companies, particularly the latter, are not feeling disappointed in the amount of business they're doing, however. You could hang all the washing in the Bronz on the telegraph wires that lead from the courthouse alone.

M. F. Hearn, district manager of the Flemington branch of the New Jersey Telephone company, today said the company's toll business increased 55 to 60 per cent the first day of the trial, and that yesterday approximately 50 per cent more long distance calls were placed than in normal tim s here. Most of the reporters phone their offices collect, however, he said.

Hotels Are Jammed.

Hotels are crowded to the doors and most of the heated rooms in Flemington have been engaged. There is a surprisingly wide variety of good eating places available, one of the best a dining room opened by the women's auxiliary of Flemington's Methodist Episcopal church.

Aside from such activities, however, Flemington merchants remain a bit disappointed. The owners of food, clothing, hardware, drug and similar stores say they have not felt any remarkable increase in business, although the local dry goods stores have sold out their stock of sheets and pillow cases.

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday granted an uncontested divorce to Mrs. Lillian B. Trowbridge, 832 Argyle street, from Dr. Chester W. Trowbridge of Oak Park, staf physician at the West Suburban hospital. Mrs. Trowbridge charged desertion. She was granted custody of her two children, Shirley, 9 years old, and Chester, 7 years old, and an order for $200 a month support money. Yesterday's order vacated a separate maintenance decree granted to Mrs. Trowbridge last Jan. 19.

COUNCIL PASSES NEW, STRICTER MILK ORDINANCE

Patterned After Federal Model Law.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A uniform milk ordinance which simplifies and recodifies the original ordinance passed in 1905 and since amended many times was passed unanimously by the city council yesterday.

The new one decreases the allowable bacterial content in milk, increases slightly the butterfat requirement, increases the number of inspections of farms and handling equipment, and permits the sale of milk seven hours older than that allowed by recent amendment of the old ordinance.

Follows Model U. S. Ordinance.

The new ordinance paves the way for farmers and dealers to produce and deliver milk that will meet the federal government's high standards required for grade A milk. The ordinance meets all state requirements and is fashioned after the United States public health service's model, high standard ordinance. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, asserted that it even surpasses the model ordinance.

When the new regulations are put into effect no dealers will be permitted to sell in Chicago fluid milk containing more than 30,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter at any time during the year, while under the old ordinance they were allowed to sell milk containing up to 50,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter in winter and 100,000 per cubic centimeter in summer. Milk must contain, under the new provisions, at least 3¼ per cent butterfat, as compared with the old requirement of 3 per cent.

Must Show Date to Be Sold.

Dealers must label their products, indicating the name of the product, the distributor's permit number, whether milk is raw or pasteurized and similar information as designated by the board of health. One of the new steps taken by this ordinance is that dealers are required to place on the bottle caps, on cans and other containers of pasteurized or raw milk the day the milk is to be sold: for example, "To Be Sold Monday."

In an effort to prevent the sale of stale milk a time limit is provided so that "all pasteurized milk, cream, and skimmed milk shall be sold not later than noon of the day beginning 25 hours after the day of pasteurization, and shall not be sold at any time after that designated on the label." The practical side of this provision, officials explain, is that farmers will be allowed a maximum of 18 hours to get their milk to the distributor for pasteurization and then the milk must be in the hands of the ultimate consumer within 25 hours after it is pasteurized instead of 18 hours, as was permitted under a recent amendment. This change, calling for an allowance of seven more hours, it is understood, was made at the request of distributors.

No Increase in Prices.

Another important provision of the ordinance is that inspections of farms and the plants, equipment and wagons used in handling and delivering milk to consumers must be made by the board of health at least twice a year. Under the old ordinance and with limited funds it was impractical to make these inspections more than once a year.

Proponents of the ordinance, as well as representatives of distributors, in a meeting of the council's health committee yesterday morning, pointed out that there was nothing in the ordinance which will result in an increase in the retail price of milk or interfere with the present production territory which supplies Chicago with milk.

In a statement before the committee Mayor Kelly said many parts of the old ordinance were ineffective, inadequate, cumbersome, and contradictory, conflicting with state laws and United States public health service regulations due to many amendments. "Some cities have different grades of milk," Mayor Kelly said. "I am sure that Chicago does not want different grades of milk. We want just one grade here and that one grade the very best obtainable."

CHARGES PAPERS MAKE A CIRCUS OF KIDNAP CASE

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The White Plains Daily Reporter charged editorially today that the newspapers of the United States are trying Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

The newspaper has not printed any news of the trial, but has published several syndicated photographs of the trial scene and of witnesses. The editorial, headed "Trial by Newspapers," declares:

"When the newspapers become hysterical they become hysterical. Sporting writers, society scribblers, magazine authors, short story specialists, scenario specialists, sob sisters, sobbing brothers, actors, chorus girls, lawyers, doctors and psychiatrists with a yen for writing, Broadway columnists, and managing editors have descended upon the courthouse at Flemington, N. J., in droves.

"In the morning and evening and in-between editions these people, experts all, are trying Hauptmann more completely and perhaps more convincingly than will be done during the trial.

"The newspapers—by which we mean the majority of them—have turned this trial into a modern Circus Maximus, with the victims Hauptmann and Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh."

She Thinks He Must Live a Long Way Out

A young man sat in the Elm café, 1141 North State street, last night and ate a $1 meal. Then he smoked a cigar. Then he arose and paid his check to Miss Muriel Milton, 1609 Foster avenue, the cashier. "I might as well get some change for carfare," he remarked. In a moment Miss Milton was looking at the business end of a pistol. She gave him his carfare—$150 worth—and he left.

N. Y. WATER MAIN BURSTS; 10 BLOCK AREA IS FLOODED

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Between 15 and 25 million gallons of water flooded the ten block area bounded by 135th and 125th streets and Convent and Amsterdam avenues today. The deluge was the result of the bursting shortly after 5 a. m. of one of the eight 48 inch water mains that carry the water supply from the new Croton aqueduct into the gatehouse at 135th street and Convent avenue.

By 8 o'clock the water was waist high in the cellars of most of the buildings in the area, including Knickerbocker hospital, in which all lights went out fifteen minutes after the break occurred. The entire corps of nurses and orderlies, carrying candles, reassured the patients.

The cold froze much of the water, and the east side of Amsterdam avenue was covered with a sheet of ice under the rapidly flowing water. The fact that both Convent and Amsterdam avenues decline sharply from 135th to 125th streets caused the water to flow south in a torrential stream that made walking almost impossible.

Hijackers Kidnap Truck's Crew; Take $1,300 Cargo

Three hijackers yesterday robbed two employés of the Bridgeport Tobacco company, 3252 South Halsted street, of a truck with a $1,300 cargo of cigars, cigarets, candy, and liquor. The driver, Louis Levy, 5127 Kenmore avenue, and his helper, Albert Zyles, 3233 Lithuania avenue, told police that the three men kidnaped them as they were making a delivery at 301 West 31st street. After driving the two around for an hour, the robbers ejected the prisoners at 60th street and Blackstone avenue.

ALDERMEN PASS BUDGET BILL IN SPEEDY FASHION

Appropriations Stay in Estimated Revenue.

By unanimous vote, the city council yesterday adopted the 1935 annual appropriation bill providing for the expenditure of $117,600,320 from the funds of the city and its several semi-independent agencies. The total approximates that of last year's budget, and is within the aggregate estimated revenue.

Passage of the appropriation measure on Jan. 4 gives this council high rank among the few that have adopted the budgets early in the year. Even in normal times action was often delayed until the latter part of January or even later. Credit for the speedy passage was given to Mayor Kelly, who insisted that the council wind up its budget sessions as early as possible.

More for Operating Expenses.

Among the twenty budgets that make up the appropriation bill, the one of major interest is that of the city corporate or operating fund. Appropriations from this fund total $45,118,065, which is approximately $400,000 more than the 1934 budget. The increase is attributed to the expense of the coming municipal election, which was not an item last year.

Departmental appropriations in the corporate budget are practically the same as last year. The budget retains the 52 days' pay reduction for the uniformed police and firemen, and a 78 days' pay cut for other city employés. Few objections were raised against it at a recent public hearing.

Other major funds and the amounts appropriated against them are: Water, $16,745,397; bond redemption and interest, $15,024,805; vehicle tax, $6,039,300; gasoline tax, $5,520,000, and bond funds, $7,514,107. Not all of the amounts appropriated will be spent, however, as the expenditures in many cases are contingent upon variable factors.

Request for $400,000 Saving.

The budget, according to Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], finance committee chairman, includes an appropriation for only one of the two registration days—Jan. 29 and March 5—provided by law. On his motion the aldermen voted to request the legislature to eliminate one of the registration days as superfluous. The saving to the taxpayers would be $400,000.

Following the passage of the budget the council approved a resolution submitted by the mayor authorizing Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt to grant permits for the holding of conventions on Navy pier. Plans already have been drawn by City Architect Paul Gerhardt Jr., for making the pier suitable for convention purposes.

The council also gave its approval to bills providing for state automobile driver's license and financial responsibility laws. It requested its committee on a new building code to hasten the preparation of a modern code, and sent to the finance committee Commissioner Hewitt's request for authority to ask the Public Works administration for a $300,000 grant for the construction of a new bridge over the Calumet river at Torrence avenue.

MINNESOTA TWIN CITY GARAGE MEN ARE ON STRIKE

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Most Twin Cities garages operated as usual today despite the strike last midnight of union garage workers in both cities.

Strike headquarters, who said between 2,000 and 3,000 employés were affected by the walkout, said 120 garages are now being picketed. Picketing was peaceful, but union leaders said they hoped to effect a complete tieup tomorrow. No attempts at conciliation has been made by either side.

Coincident with the start of the strike was a $20,000 fire in one Minneapolis garage in which thirty automobiles were destroyed. Fire marshals said, however, it apparently had no connection with the strike.

FREES 11 SEIZED IN RAIDS.

Eleven alleged keepers of gambling resorts arrested in raids at 187 North La Salle street and 16 West Van Buren street were discharged by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State Street court yesterday because the police raiders had no search warrants.

MAESTRO VIC MEYERS PAYS $8,000 IN DEBTS AT CREDITORS' PARTY

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Forty-two creditors, with glasses high, drank a toast to Vic Meyers, Washington's musical lieutenant governor—and today Vic is out of debt, and happy about it.

But the night club leader also learned about another Vic Meyers, as he went through with his plan to settle all his obligations at once. Some $8,000 was involved, friends say.

"Ever since the papers told that I was going to have a creditors' party," Vic mourned, "I've been getting bills for that bird, too."

Meyers' original plans for a "coming out of the red" party were not carried through quite as scheduled.

It proved too hard to get the creditors together, he said, so he spent the day going from place to place with checkbook in hand.

BURGLARS FIND SLIM PICKINGS; THEY'RE ANNOYED

When burglars broke into the home of Herbert Cook at 6527 South Sangamon street yesterday, ransacked it, and found no money they were greatly annoyed.

First they turned authors and wrote Mr. Cook a letter.

"Dear Customer," it started, "why don't people leave money in the house? We took your watch. If you want it very bad advertise in the lost and found column. Next time leave money."

But expressing their ire apparently only increased it, for the thieves set fire to furniture in the living room. When Mr. Cook returned home the room was blazing. After he had extinguished the fire he estimated that the damage would amount to $150.

BUSINESS MEN ENTER FIGHT ON LONG'S OIL TAX

Ministers O. K. Appeal to Roosevelt for Aid.

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Business men, ministers and oil workers united late today in widespread appeals for aid to combat the effects of Senator Huey P. Long's oil refining tax.

As the Standard Oil company went forward with its announced intention of laying off employés at its big refinery here because of the tax, workers at the plant in a general statement called upon state officials and the citizens of Louisiana to do everything possible toward rescinding the 5 cents a barrel levy enacted last month by the Long controled legislature.

Designate Day of Fasting.

The East Baton Rouge Ministerial association entered the fight today by unanimously approving telegrams to President Roosevelt and Gov. O. K. Allen, seeking relief for suffering anticipated as a result of the Standard Oil's curtailment program.

The association, including about 30 pastors, designated next Sunday as a day of fasting and prayer for divine guidance in meeting the situation.

The workers' appeal said that most of the employés of the Standard plant here were over the usual employment age and had families to support, and that dismissals would place many new names on the relief rolls. The Baton Rouge refinery normally employés about 3,300 men and unofficial reports today indicated nearly 1,000 had been laid off.

Offer Company Assistance.

A committee of business men, with Mayor Wade H. Bynum as chairman, was made to confer with Standard Oil officials and offer assistance in the emergency.

In accordance with a call issued last night oil workers from this city and other parts of the state will hold a massmeting of protest against the tax tomorrow night. The tax becomes effective Jan. 9.

Long Waxes Profane.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long tonight said the Standard Oil company at Baton Rouge, which is discharging men and curtailing operations because of Long's refining tax, can "go to hell and stay there."

Long charged that the Standard Oil company was discharging men now to "swindle" them out of their pensions before his law which would prevent that goes into effect Jan. 9.

LABOR TO OFFER LEGISLATION FOR COAL INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, today told the nation's soft coal operators that labor was presenting a legislative program for regulation of the industry because it had failed to regulate itself.

He addressed members of the various coal code authorities who met here today with the NRA to find a way to end a burst of price cutting which, as Lewis described it, threatened a return to "guerilla" conditions.

Without using the word "strike," Lewis none the less told the operators that labor would rather "have the industry as a whole suspend its operations than continue the present trend."

The legislative program, Lewis said, has been proved necessary because the industry had shown inability to govern itself. This program is based upon the theory, he said, that enforcement of a regulatory program must depend to a greater degree on "coercive" governmental influences.

Name Engraving Company in Third Illinois NRA Suit

The third suit under the state NRA act was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by State's Attorney Courtney. It is against the Northwestern Engraving company, 720 South Dearborn street, and seeks to enjoin the company and its president, Nicholas J. Koehler, from violations of the wage and hour provisions of the code for the photo engraving industry.

ASKS HIGH COURT TO SAY IF NRA IS CONSTITUTIONAL

U. S. Appeals Lumber Code Case.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—A direct ruling on the constitutionality of NRA was asked of the Supreme court by the government today after a year and a half of code rule of industry.

The justice department filed with the court an appeal from a decision by Federal District Judge W. I. Grubb at Birmingham, Alabama, declaring the Industrial Recovery act and the lumber code invalid.

His decision said the recovery law exceeded the constitutional powers of congress and contained an unlawful delegation of legislative power to the President.

Judge Grubb further sustained a contention that the lumber code was an unlawful encroachment on state rights and constituted taking property without due process of law.

In its appeal today, the justice department asked the high court to pass on the validity of section 3 of the act which provides for the punishment of those who violate its provision in transactions in or affecting interstate or foreign commerce.

The case appealed involved dismissal by Judge Grubb of an indictment against William E. Belcher, a producer of timber and manufacturer of lumber who was charged with violating the code for the lumber and timber products industries.

The indictment charged Belcher had worked certain employés longer than 40 hours a week and had paid one employé wages below the code minimum.

GAS TAKES LIVES OF TWO FOUND IN STOCK TRUCK CAB

Two men were overcome by carbon monoxide gas early yesterday while sitting in the driver's cab of a truck at Halsted and 43d streets and died a short time later in the Evangelical hospital. They were identified as Gus Hahn, 38 years old, and Wayne Eyrich, 40 years old, both of Erie, Whiteside county.

The two had driven a load of stock into Chicago in the early morning hours. Waiting to deliver them to a broker in the stockyards, police said, the men apparently remained in the cab of the truck with the motor running to keep warm. Police were called by a passerby who noticed both men slumped to the floor of the cab. An inhalator squad made an unsuccessful effort to revive them.

Court Upholds Louisville in Interstate Bridge Fight

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago yesterday upheld the contention of the city of Louisville, Ky., that the toll bridge crossing the Ohio river between Louisville and Jeffersonville, Ind., is exempt from taxation by the state of Indiana. The opinion reversed the finding of the federal District court for southern Indiana, which ruled that an Indiana statute making the bridge tax exempt was unconstitutional.

Prisoners Look On

Edward D. Levin, 26 years old, in the county jail facing grand jury action on three charges of robbery, yesterday married Miss Bernice Kaufman, 23 years old, 3408 Balmoral avenue, with twenty other prisoners as witnesses. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. N. Ware, jail chaplain.

ADMITS SLAYING WEALTHY INDIANA CATTLE BREEDER

The mysterious murder of Henry Nolte, 45 years old, a farmer of Hobart, Ind., found shot to death early Tuesday, was solved yesterday with the arrest of Richard Chapman, 22 year old farm hand of Hobart, who confessed the slaying, police said.

Chapman was arrested in the home of a friend, Henry Anchors, in Reynolds, Ind., near where Nolte's automobile was found abandoned the day after the murder was discovered. He was seized by Chief of Police Fred Rose of Hobart and Deputy Sheriff Charles Carlson of Lake county, Ind., who had noticed that Chapman was missing from his usual haunts.

The youth, according to his statement, worked last summer for Nolte, a breeder of fine cattle, who lived alone. He knew, he said, that Nolte often had large sums of money in the house and conceived a robbery plan to get money enough to take him to Florida. Last Monday night, he said, he waylaid Nolte and shot him. He searched the house, found nothing, and escaped in his victim's automobile.

He was booked for murder and is expected to go before the Lake county grand jury in Crown Point on Monday.

ASSESSOR CLARK DISMISSES TWO DIVISION CHIEFS

Dismissal of Blaine G. Harrison and Walter R. Kuehnle was announced yesterday by Assessor John S. Clark. He also announced the appointment of Albert J. Brockman, a real estate dealer, as his consultant on tax matters.

Harrison has served as chief of the personal property division of the assessor's office since his appointment by J. L. Jacobs, former assessor. His post was filled with the temporary appointment of John Battles, an old employé of the assessor's office. Kuehnle was chief of the real estate division. H. Gordon Bollman was named as his temporary successor.

Suggest Moffett's Name for Outer Drive Bridge

A resolution of the Cook county council of the American Legion requesting that the new outer drive bridge, when completed, be named after the late Admiral William A. Moffett was referred by the city council yesterday to its committee on streets and alleys. It was pointed out by the aldermen that the council can only make a recommendation on the matter, since the bridge and outer drives are under the jurisdiction of the Chicago park district.

GILCHRIST DENIES PLANTING HELP IN VANDERBILT HOME

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Emphatic denial that he "planted" servants in the home of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt was issued today by Thomas B. Gilchrist, co-guardian of the $4,000,000 estate of ten year old Gloria Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Vanderbilt alleged in a surrogate's court affidavit yesterday that Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Gloria's aunt, kidnaped the child on information supplied by the "planted" servants in 1932.

The servants, she charged, reported to Mr. Gilchrist.

"I didn't even know the child had left Mrs. Vanderbilt until Mrs. Whitney telephoned me one afternoon saying she had the little girl, that she was hysterical and would not return to her mother," Mr. Gilchrist said.

"Mrs. Whitney asked me to come to her studio. I went there and tried unsuccessfully to get Gloria to return to her mother. Mrs. Vanderbilt's allegations that I planted the servants or was tipped by them about her activities is absolutely false."

Meanwhile, it was indicated in the surrogate's court that Mrs. Vanderbilt would receive a substantial allowance from her daughter's estate. She asked for $48,000.

BRONX FURRIER IS JAILED ON NRA VIOLATION COUNT

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Samuel Pitchman, 42, of the Bronx, was sent to jail on charges of NRA code violation today.

Pitchman was committed for twenty days in default of $100 fine for violation of the hours provision of the fur-manufacturers' code in the plant of Kranpf, Pitchman and Kraupe. Two partners, Louis and Samuel Kranpf, were freed on payment of $100 fines each.

Sentence of the three partners, who pleaded guilty last month, was imposed in special sessions by Justices Frederic Kernochan, Thomas McAndrews and Thomas J. Nolan. The complaint by an NRA investigator alleged that he found a dozen men at work in the firm's plant on last Sept. 22, which was Saturday, despite the code prohibition of work in the fur cutting trade on Saturdays and Sundays.

MAYOR REPORTS MONDAY ON LAKE CALUMET PLANS

LETTER SAYS BOY IN BRAZIL MAY BE FAWCETT SON

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—A pale faced, blue eyed, blond headed boy in Brazil, believed by a Protestant missionary to be the son of Jack Fawcett and grandson of Col. P. H. Fawcett, British explorer, whose whereabouts have been unknown the last nine years, is described in a letter received today by the Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Davis, a missionary official.

Two missionaries, Emil Halverson and Paul Guiley, were planning to set up a new mission station on the Kuluene river in the Matto Grasso.

It was here the boy was found living with a tribe of Indians with whom Col. Fawcett was reported to have lived for more than a year before his disappearance in May, 1925. Mr. Halverson said in his letter missionaries believed Col. Fawcett had been killed somewhere along the Kuluene. He said he had learned that Albert De Winton, 66 year old Los Angeles moving picture actor who sought to find the Fawcetts, had been poisoned and rumor of fatal results had been heard.

STEAMER SPLITS FISHING SMACK IN TWO; 7 DROWNED

One of 5 Survivors Tells of Crash Off Havana.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Seven fishermen died in the shark infested waters of the Gulf of Mexico off Havana tonight when the S. S. Seatrain Havana rammed and sank their frail fishing smack, the Julian Bengoechea.

Five of the crew of 12 were dragged from the water 45 minutes after the collision, almost exhausted.

Survivor Tells Story.

"We saw we were going to be hit," he said, "and we tried to signal the man on the bridge of the Seatrain. It bore down on us as we waved our lanterns and shouted.

"It struck us amidship and broke our smack in two. We went down in a few seconds and I grabbed a torn life preserver and a piece of débris. One of my comrades swam near to me and had nothing to hold to so I gave him the débris.

"The other seven, including the captain, were lost. The water was full of sharks and it was rough and dark.

Belated Christmas Planned.

"We had been fishing off the Yucatan coast for 36 days and were looking forward to a belated Christmas holiday when we reached our homes in Havana tonight.

"We had 26,000 pounds of fish aboard and the smack was worth $18,000."

BULGARIANS FLEE HOMES AS 2 HOUR QUAKES STRIKE

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 4. — (AP) — Earthquakes lasting more than two hours shook southern Bulgaria today, causing widespread alarm.

Many residents of Philippopolis, Burgas, and Borisovo remained in the open all night. Considerable property damage, but no loss of life, was reported.

The Sofia observatory calculated that the center of the disturbance was approximately 27 miles south of the capital.

Wife Tells of "Date"

A coroner's jury returned a suicide verdict yesterday in the death of Kenneth L. Knilans, 25 years old, of Madison Wis., who shot himself Thursday night in the hallway of an apartment at 2520 Albion avenue. His wife, Alma, 23 years old, testified that she and her husband came to Chicago on a business trip and visited a friend, Evelyn Bunch, at 2520 Albion avenue. Thursday night Knilans said he had a business appointment. Mrs. Knilans, thinking her husband had a date, insisted on going along. She and Miss Bunch got into their automobile, but Knilans ran back and shot himself.

U. S. AIR UNITS WILL GO SOUTH FOR MANEUVERS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Maneuvers to determine just what is required for large air corps units, even to a 260,000 cubic foot dirigible, to enable them to operate by themselves as far as 1,000 miles from the supply bases will be begun Monday when the major portion of the second wing of the general headquarters air force will leave Langley field for concentration at Miami, Fla., preparatory to field exercises in the gulf states. Other units of the wing will depart for Miami on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The maneuvers, the war department announced today, will last four weeks and are expected to go far toward determining how quickly the air force can concentrate at any point in the continental United States.

The departure of units on Monday, it was said, will mean the inauguration for the first time in history of what amounts to a practice march over 5,000 miles of terrain, carrying all necessary camp equipment and supplies by air, except bombs and ammunition. No ammunition will be used in the maneuvers.

FIRE ROUTS 30 FAMILIES.

More than 50 children were among the 30 families driven to the street early yesterday by fire of undetermined origin that caused damage estimated at $7,000 to the basement of the store and apartment building at 502-6 North Peoria street.

CLOSE CLARK ST. SALOON; CURFEW LAW VIOLATED

Continuing enforcement of the recent demand of Mayor Kelly and Police Commissioner Allman that the tavern closing law be strictly observed, police yesterday closed the Liberty inn, 661 North Clark street, for violation of the order.

Capt. Andrew Barry of the Chicago avenue police had reported the tavern had served patrons after 1 a. m. week days and after 2 a. m. Sundays. Mayor Kelly revoked the tavern's license and directed that no new license be issued for 1935.

The mayor's order also specified that no 1935 licenses be issued for these taverns previously closed: The Colonial club, 855 North Clark street; Club Ballyhoo, 437 Rush street, and the Clark-Illinois cabaret, 450 North Clark street.

SENTENCES FOUR GUILTY OF RAPING HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

Accused Juror Freed in Quiz by Court.

Four men accused of raping a 14 year old high school girl, after holding her prisoner for two days, were sentenced to three years each in the penitentiary by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court yesterday.

The sentences came after an extraordinary incident had interrupted the trial, and the four defendants consented to plead guilty and take the light punishment.

Held at Apartment.

According to the charges, presented by Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan, the men had taken the girl to Castagnino's apartment at 1307 West Adams street last Dec. 2. There had been drinking continually, the girl said, and she was raped by several men.

During a court recess the girl suddenly called Mr. Moynihan and declared that one of the jurors hearing the case had been in the place where she was held prisoner. Judge Harrington was informed and quickly called the girl into his chambers.

Frees Accused Juror.

He then summoned the jury to chambers, and the girl again picked out the man, who protested vigorously.

Judge Harrington and Mr. Moynihan immediately started an investigation. The juror in question is employed by the Chicago Surface lines, and time sheets and pay roll records were examined.

They convinced the judge that the juror had been working at the time mentioned, and was innocent. However, on agreement of counsel, he declared a mistrial, and immediately heard the pleas of guilty on the part of all four defendants.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly stated yesterday that Transcontinental Western Air, Inc., would open its four hour and five minute service between Chicago and New York on Jan. 28. The service will begin next Tuesday, Jan. 8, company officials said.

Otto F. Nau, who was honored on Thursday by the Illinois Central railroad after fifty years of service, is not retiring, as was erroneously stated in an item yesterday. Mr. Nau will continue as treasurer of the railroad.

Railroad equipment supply men in Chicago denied yesterday that their prices were raised with the announcement that the state was to advertise for bids to equip 275 railroad grade crossings in the state with improved signal devices. A statement to that effect was made in a news item Thursday, based on a statement by a state official. Inquiry developed that the assertion arose from a misinterpretation of facts by the official.

"What's your hurry?" the motorist asked, according to the evidence. "Don't you know you've killed a woman?"

Dragged from Hotel Room.

Codman leaped from the car, the state charged, after telling the motorist he would investigate, and ran to the Commonwealth hotel, Pine Grove avenue and Diversey parkway, where he had a room.

Left behind in the car were Paul Norman, 6151 Winthrop avenue, and his wife. They told Lincoln Park Policeman Paul Winton the identity of Codman. At the hotel Winton found that Codman had locked himself in the room. The hotel manager furnished a pass key when Codman refused to surrender and the defendant was dragged from his room.

Codman is employed as a salesman for a Chicago concern. He was graduated from Harvard in 1931 and is said to be a member of several exclusive clubs.

COZZI SENTENCED IN JAIL SLAYING; NEW PLEA FAILS

Motion for a new trial in behalf of Lawrence Cozzi, 25 years old, was denied yesterday and he was sentenced to serve 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen of the Criminal court. Cozzi was found guilty by a jury of the murder by poison of Rocco Pisano, a prisoner in the county jail. The death of Pisano grew out of the attempt to silence Harold Clifford, another jail prisoner, who was to testify against friends of Cozzi in an assault case. Poisoned sandwiches were delivered at the jail and Clifford, who was not hungry, gave them to Pisano.

HOME BURGLARY INSURANCE RATE CUT 9 PER CENT

Residential burglary and street holdup insurance rates have been reduced 9.1 per cent in the Chicago area during the last year, according to a letter received yesterday by State's Attorney Courtney from W. T. Blew, insurance broker at 175 West Jackson boulevard.

The letter, which commended the state's attorney for his drive against crime, said that the reduction was the first in this form of insurance "for many years" in the Chicago area.

"We are glad to be able to pass down to the public as a whole the benefits of the campaign against crime," State's Attorney Courtney said.

18TH ARSONIST CONVICTED; GETS 1-20 YEAR TERM

Pleads Guilty to Hiring Store Incendiary.

Abraham Shillett, 38 years old, father of three children, was sentenced by Judge Donald S. McKinlay of the Criminal court to one to twenty years in the Joliet penitentiary. Shillett pleaded guilty to hiring an incendiary to fire his dress shop at 3261 Armitage avenue on Jan. 13, 1929, so that he might collect $6,000 of insurance money.

$1,000 to Arson Queen.

One thousand dollars of the money was given to Mrs. Bertha Warshovsky, grandmother and so-called arson queen, for her fee for starting the fire, the state charged. Mrs. Warshovsky has been used as witness in chief for the state since her arrest and confession to starting "more fires than she could remember."

Results of the steady march of successful arson prosecutions are shown in figures given out by the Chicago Board of Fire Underwriters. This report showed a drop in fire losses and a reduction in the number of fires since the members of an arson ring were seized last June.

Chief in importance among the arson cases tried was that in which Harry Siegel, 47 years old, a public insurance adjuster, was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary on a charge of murder by arson. Testimony in the case, which was heard by a jury and completed on Nov. 23, showed that Siegel conspired with others to burn a building at 1200 Taylor street on Aug. 11, 1928, to collect insurance of $11,200. In this fire, Joseph Pecori, 17 years old and a cripple, was burned to death.

Others Sent to Prison.

Convicted besides Siegel and Shillett are Mrs. Betty Fisher, sentenced to one to five years in prison; her husband, Max, six months; Sam Fraga, one to five years; Salvatore Roman, one to five years; Nick Bauris, one year; Rudolph Pisani, one to two years; Abe Blank, one year; Milton Goldberg, one to five years; Samuel Nordenburg, one to twenty years; Steve Gerlach, one to ten years; Andrew Ratkovich, one to ten years; Edward Kramer, convicted and placed on probation; Louis Oliff, one to twenty years; James Santy, one year; Edward Brownstein, one to five years, and Ellis Goldberg, one year.

Fourteen others are awaiting trial. Ten more, under indictment, are fugitives. Among the latter is Harry Brown, an insurance adjuster, said to be the guiding mind behind the operations of the gang.

Wife of Building Manager Sues Woman Secretary

Miss Adelaide Hedlund, 30 years old, 7539 Yale avenue, was named in a $100,000 allenation of affections suit filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Mrs. Marie L. McGrath, 38 years old, 1916 Bradley place. The bill charges that Miss Hedlund, a secretary in the office of the Midland Club building, conducted herself improperly with Mrs. McGrath's husband, James, superintendent of the building.

GOVERNOR OPENS ILLINOIS FORUM ON CRIME TODAY

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Nearly 1,000 law administrative and enforcement authorities from Illinois cities and counties expected to attend Gov. Horner's second annual crime conference to be held in the auditorium of the Centennial building here today.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant United States attorney general, heads the list of speakers. Harold Nathan, assistant director of the investigation division of the department of justice, also will speak. Other representatives of the federal government include district judges and federal prosecutors.

Gov. Horner will call the meeting to order and after outlining his program for greater efficiency in fighting crime will turn the gavel over to Attorney General Otto Kerner. Speakers will include Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle of the southern district of Illinois, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney of Cook county, and Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Cook county Criminal court.

One objective of the conference, Gov. Horner said, is to promote closer coöperation among federal, state and local authorities. New laws to speed justice and remove loopholes employed by criminals will be discussed.

Prosecution Is Favored in Illegal Practice of Law

Carbondale, Ill., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Prosecution of justices of the peace, real estate and insurance agents, and notaries public illegally practicing law, was favored in a resolution by the Jackson County Bar association, made public today by Attorney Orwin H. Pugh, its secretary. The association declared it is joining a state and nation-wide campaign to curtail the unlawful practice of law. The resolution asserted it is the "lay individual" who does the most damaging unlawful practice in the drafting of wills, contracts for deeds, leases, bonds, for deeds and mortgages.

BRITAIN IS URGED TO FREE HUSBAND OF WIFE'S WRONGS

Law Reforms Pushed to Protect Man.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 4.—In the most important recommendations it has yet made the law revision committee, which is charged with modernizing the common law that has ruled England for centuries, has just recommended a "charter for husbands" to free them from certain liabilities for wrongs committed by their wives.

If the "charter for husbands" is passed by parliament, it will mean that married women will be placed in exactly the same position as unmarried women and men.

May Be Sent to Prison.

The married woman will be, for instance, liable to be sued, to be made bankrupt, to have her property [real or personal] attached if a judgment is rendered against her. Furthermore, she would be sent to prison as a debtor if she has the means to pay but refuses to meet her obligations.

As the law now stands, a married woman cannot be made bankrupt unless she is engaged in business and by virtue of the clause of "restraint on anticipation" in property settlements on her she is able to dodge creditors. This "restraint on anticipation" was designed to protect the married woman from her husband; it means that during the marriage she cannot dispose of the capital or put charges on it in anticipation, which, in practice, means she cannot touch the interest on property before it is due. Nor can her creditor get it, as the money passes first into her hands and thus she is able to use it for whatever purpose she wants without bothering about the creditor.

Boon to Husbands.

The committee strongly recommended that this clause should be made illegal in all future settlements or wills and explained that women could be protected by trust settlements just as are men.

The reform, if passed, will be a boon to husbands, who at present can be ruined by unscrupulous wives unless they get a legal separation and pay an allowance. They can be sent to jail for their wives' wrongdoings, such as slander and libel, while control of their wives' action is very weak. Husbands can be sued and be made to pay for their wives' torts [wrongdoings for which she may be sued] as he must be co-defendant with her in legal actions.

"Indeed there is almost no limit to the loss a vindictive wife equipped with a modicrum of law might inflict on an unoffending and helpless consort," declared a legal authority. "In practice, wives have seldom employed this weapon. Whether the husbands' immunity has been due to the good nature or the deficient legal education of their wives is an interesting theme.

Husbands' Grievances.

Among the grievances British husbands cite under the present law are a limited degree of liability in respect of debts contracted by a wife before marriage and a full liability for wrongdoings she may commit after marriage.

A British husband is responsible for his wife's naked torts, which mean those wrongs not connected with contracts. If she is guilty of trespass, nuisance, negligence, libel or slander, or a host of other wrongs, she is of course liable, but so is the husband, in spite of the small control he may exercise over what she does.

He is also responsible for her income tax—a clause that, much to the chagrin of moral persons, makes it profitable to "live in sin" in merrie England. If two people live together without benefit of clergy and neither income is big enough to pay a tax, none pays. Nevertheless, a wife's profits are confounded with her husband's and, though his income alone may be below the limit, he has to pay the taxes on both incomes.

The law revision committee regretted that this law was beyond the scope of its present task, but suggested that husbands no longer should be obliged to pay the tax on their wives' income.

JUDGE ASSAILS EX-WIFE'S STAND IN ALIMONY FIGHT

"Mercenary" seekers of alimony and support money were assailed by Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday. His remarks came during the hearing of the petition of Mrs. Lillian Rabin, 36 years old, that her former husband, Harry, 40 years old, 3627 Lexington street, a linen salesman, be held in contempt of court for being $114 in arrears in his $10 weekly support money payments.

Attorney Sam Bullus for Mrs. Rabin asked jail for the defendant, alleging he owed the money for the support of his sons, Albert, 8 years old, and Sherman, 6. Rabin's attorney, Norman Becker, said his client had paid not less than $6 a week since his wife divorced him last June 4. He asked Mrs. Rabin if she had tried to get work.

"I should say not," Mrs. Rabin replied. "They're his children and I don't have to work."

"Your attitude is wrong," Judge Allegretti cut in. "If this man has tried to pay, as represented, I won't jail him. I wish there were more like him and fewer mercenary women in divorce cases."

Accuses Divorced Wife; Asks Custody of Child

Charging his divorced wife with improper conduct, Walter Stephens, 35 years old, official of the Stemar Display company, 36 East Wacker drive, asked Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday for custody of his daughter, Phyllis, 11 years old. The petition, filed by Attorney William Gemmill, states that Stephens divorced his former wife, Adelaide, 29 years old, 1550 Juneway terrace, on June 6, 1932, on grounds of desertion. Stephens, who lives at 2409 Marcy street, Evanston, was instructed to file an amended petition setting forth specific acts of his former wife's alleged misconduct.

SLEEPING VICTIM

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Carolyn Connell, 5 years old, daughter of Thomas Connell, 1203 Hammond street, Lockport, is in St. Joseph's hospital at Joliet suffering from encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, it was learned yesterday.

The child developed a severe cold and sore throat a week ago and yesterday evening had been in a coma for 24 hours. Doctors declared, however, that her illness was not of the epidemic type, but of that type which sometimes develops after another sickness.

HELD AS SLAYER, HELPS IN FOILING BREAK FROM JAIL

Prisoner Is Subdued After Battle.

Sycamore, Ill., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The cries of a convicted murderer and the might of a lone jailer today frustrated an attempted break from the De Kalb county jail. Thirteen prisoners were in the jail at the time.

John Skerston, 21, of Williamstown, Mich., awaiting grand jury action on a charge of robbery, made a dash for freedom by attacking Turnkey Ivan Ide with a mop roller and flower pots.

Prisoner Rushes Him.

Ide had just ascended a flight of stairs when the flying mop roller struck him a glancing blow on the head. He tossed his keys down to the basement and dodged a barrage of flower pots. Then Skerston rushed him with wildly swinging fists.

The only witness of the fight was another prisoner, Peter Chekouras, a convicted slayer awaiting hearing of a motion for a new trial. He yelled long and loudly for help, finally succeeding in arousing Sherif O. N. Larson and deputies from the residence quarters of the lockup.

Knocks Prisoner Out.

They arrived on the scene just as the turnkey knocked his opponent unconscious with a mighty blow of the same mop roller which Skerston had first thrown at him. In the prisoner's pocket were a wash rag and adhesive tape he apparently intended using for a gag.

PLEADS GUILTY TO EVASION OF $5,900 U. S. TAX

William E. Nichols, 60 years old, 6426 North Richmond street, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge William H. Holly to a charge of evading an income tax payment of $5,900 for 1928. Nichols was characterized by Assistant United States Attorney E. Riley Campbell as a "tax fixer and payoff man" for Gene Oliver, former county assessor, who served 18 months in federal prison for income tax evasion.

Judge Holly took the case under advisement and announced that he would rule on the punishment today. Prosecutor Campbell told the judge that the tax represented an unreported income of $54,569.

Superior Judge Peter M. Schwaba and Municipal Judge Frank Padden appeared as character witnesses for Nichols.

Sanitary Board Is Told of District's Problems.

The status of the sanitary district's sewage works construction program was outlined yesterday by Ross A. Woodhull, president, in his annual message to the board of trustees. One grave problem stressed was the need of $70,000,000 more to complete the district's construction program, after available money is spent.

It was pointed out that the bonding power of the district is exhausted with its outstanding debt of $144,000,000. Of the $70,000,000 still required for sewage treatment plants, sewers, and other work, $3,200,000 will be necessary for the construction of controling works in the Chicago river to avert the possibility of the river discharging into the lake through a reversal of its flow.

Sees Solution in Canal Sale.

This project is considered obligatory in view of the United States Supreme court decision requiring a reduction of the ultimate diversion of water from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic feet per second by Dec. 31, 1938. The controling works must be built prior to that date.

President Woodhull in his message sees a solution to the total financial needs in the sale of the district's canals to the federal government for $90,607,173, the amount they cost the taxpayers.

Other lake states, which were instrumental in persuading the government to reduce the Chicago diversion of lake water, are opposing the sale. A hearing has been set for Jan. 15 in the Chicago office of Lieut. Col. Donald H. Connolly, district engineer for the war department. The canals are deemed an important link in the lakes to gulf waterway.

When the district's construction program is brought to final completion, the report went on to say, the ultimate cost to the taxpayers will have been $213,000,000.

Plans for 1935 Spending.

A total of $8,130,000 worth of construction work in sewage treatment plants and intercepting sewers was finished during 1934. The district in its pending budget contemplates spending $20,000,000 in 1935, with $14,000,000 more available if the work progresses fast enough. Practically all of this money was obtained through the sale of bonds to the Public Works administration.

At present 10,000 men are employed, with approximately $1,000,000 a month being spent. Last year the district treated an average of 369,000,000 gallons of sewage daily, as compared with an average of 64,000,000 gallons in 1928.

SCIOTO GAZETTE, 135 YEARS OLD, IS SOLD IN OHIO

Founded in April, 1800, and published continuously since then, the Scioto Gazette was sold by the Scioto Gazette Publishing company and James Hannan, publisher, to a group of Lima, O., and Wilmington, O., men.

The purchasers, L. S. Galvin and Earl Leach of Lima and W. J. Galvin and W. W. Galvin of Wilmington, also publish the News-Journal of Wilmington and the News of Lima.

The Scioto Gazette was founded by Nathanial P. Willis, a member of the Boston Tea Party, and in its early years was the official yearbook of the legislature of the Northwest Territory, of which Chillicothe was the capital.

After disposing of the Gazette, Willis returned to Boston, where he founded the Youth's Companion.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

At the opening of congress the reporters saw Smith Wildman Brookhart, former senator from Iowa, wandering about the scene familiar to him before his constituency sent in another man. Just now it is forgotten what made Wildman wild, but he was a distinctive feature of such tempests as blew up in former days which now seem very old. He had some ideas, not now remembered, and was a very heck of a fellow. No doubt he was a portent of things on their way, but today in Washington he must seem very mild, just a sober, curious kulak in from the country to see the sights and be a bit awed by them.

Yesterday's radicals are today's obscurities or they are today's tories. In the French revolution the left of the states general and constituent assembly was the right of the legislative assembly and the left of that was the right of the national convention until Robespierre chopped off all the top heads. When his was held up to the delight of the Thermidorians the affair was over.

These political transports are out of the American habit. Mr. Snell, Republican of New York, sticking a gardenia in his lapel buttonhole, introduces the new speaker, Mr. Byrns, Democrat of Tennessee, sporting a carnation, and both know that neither will meet the other at the guillotine, either as guest of honor or as a member of the tribunal of justice.

Mr. Brookhart, plucked from the garden of wild flowers and put in a vase, may, because of his experience, have the prescience to know that the pendulum, still going left, is soon to waver, hesitate, stop, and start back the other way. Who was Sockless Jerry Simpson? Who was Mary Ellen Lease? Who was Bill Hayward? Who was Rexford Tugwell? Who, already, was Hugh Johnson?

THE LAND OF FREE LADIES.

Everybody responsible for or involved in the predicament of Elsa Sittell, the New York girl who as a qualified voter in the Saar made the pilgrimage, is amiable again and the girl is released from jail. Her offense was being too chatty at the wrong place, the German customs. No frontier is the place for that. Customs officials and guards are morose and important people. They hate the human race.

Miss Sittell has been Americanized quickly, learning that a lady can speak her mind wherever she is, whether she has run through a red light, shoved some male out of the way in a barroom, or has her feet on the seat in a smoking car. These, however, are special privileges for the tender sex in the land of the free and are exercised at the lady's own risk elsewhere.

Safe conduct for a tourist abroad is found in conformity, long suffering, judicious tipping, smiles, and soft words. The New York girl in conversation with the Nazi guards told them their uniforms were sloppy, even if Hitler has designed them; that compared with the British and Italian soldiers they looked like bums, and added that she had read Hitler was of Jewish parentage. For that they put her in jail, but after ten days or so everything is well. On her good behavior she is free to go where she pleases, without further conversation. A German lady might have lived to regret the chat with the guards much longer.

HEADED RIGHT AT LAST.

The first proposal in the transportation policy or program recently outlined by THE TRIBUNE advocates a rejuvenation of railway regulation. Either Mr. Eastman agrees with us or has some thoughts that are perilously close to our own method of reasoning. When discussing passenger service during a recent speech before the Chamber of Commerce at Boston, he remarked: "The program which should be followed is one well known to other industries. First present service demands of the market are thoroughly explored and classified and future demands anticipated; next the prices which a customer who does not have to buy is willing to pay are carefully ascertained; then a type of service filling each demand and within the price limitation is designed; and finally . . . this service is sold through an intelligent and planned method of sales promotion." Within its limitations this is exactly what THE TRIBUNE has been advocating—a return to business principles in railroading. "Other industries," however, usually go one step further. Special attention is given to the creation of a demand.

With respect to freight service Mr. Eastman observed: "Under present conditions no more important task confronts the railways than the pricing of their service, passenger and freight. It can no longer be left to rate clerks of whatever title and however experienced in tarif technicalities. Nor can it be hog-tied by blind adherence to past precedents or sacrosanct rate structures. It calls for railroad statesmen, if that term can be used in connection with railroads . . . men who have measured the ceilings which the ability of the customer to use an alternative mode of transport has superimposed upon railroad price ranges." Again we thoroughly agree with the coordinator—as far as he goes. His "hog-tied" rate structures coincide with our "frozen" rate structures, and his "railroad statesmen" are tantamount to our "old-fashioned trafic managers." Mr. Eastman would have rated our policy completely had he gone one step further and suggested the creation of additional trafic through sympathetic and contract rate construction.

We have never regarded Mr. Eastman's efforts as a part of the New Deal. His administration is not called the COTA and it will be further recalled that the railways were specifically excluded from the jurisdiction of the NRA, obviously because the industry was already codified to the nth degree. After a quarter of a century of regimentation Mr. Eastman is now advocating the loosening of railway restrictions. We wonder if Washington burocracy can see the paradox.

CRIMINAL YOUTH.

There is no more important phase of the problem of crime in America than that of juvenile criminality. It is very unsatisfactorily dealt with in this and other communities, and Chief Justice Denis Sullivan's effort to correct faulty procedure deserves strong support from a public that is frequently shocked by crimes of violence committed by youth. In fact, a shockingly large proportion of crimes of violence is committed by adolescents and youth barely out of that unstable period. For example, on the page of THE TRIBUNE on which Chief Justice Sullivan's protest appears is a news item recording the filing in Butler, Pa., of charges against two farm boys, aged respectively 13 and 12 years, for deliberately killing a companion aged 10. Judge Sullivan cites testimony in a holdup case which showed that a member of a gang aged 15 had urged his brother, aged 23, to shoot their victim when he did not respond quickly enough to the order to surrender his money.

The chief justice points out that the only reason the victim was not shot was that the 15 year old had not a gun, yet, while the older members of the gang were sent to the penitentiary, the 15 year old, who was obviously the toughest member, "escapes with a trip to what you might call the hotel at St. Charles."

The chief justice protests against the existing law and procedure which consigns to the Juvenile court offenders under 17, regardless of their crime. "The Juvenile court," he reminds us, "was created 30 years ago when automobiles were not stolen and revolvers were seldom heard of," at least in the possession of children. The Juvenile court, he says, rarely surrenders its control of an offender, and it should be added that this special tribunal is always subjected to the influence of the organized humanitarianism which takes little account of the need of the community for protection from violence. The judge who presides over the Juvenile court has replied to the chief justice's protest with the charge that judges of the criminal bench have failed to coöperate with him and have been guilty of too lenient treatment of adult offenders. The charge, we think, has a good deal of validity. But two wrongs do not make a right. What the public needs for its better protection from violence is a much stricter and sterner administration of the laws than it has been getting in recent years, and Chief Justice Sullivan has raised issues which Judge Bicek's counter-charge does not answer.

The Juvenile court expresses in theory the interest of society in discriminating treatment of crime as between the adult and the immature offender, and is supposed to represent scientific advance in the direction of human salvage and a more exact justice. But the ideals which support it as an institution are considerably ahead of our knowledge of criminal character and of our means of dealing with it with proper regard to public safety, and there can be no sensible doubt that the system it represents calls for drastic overhauling. Chief Justice Sullivan meanwhile demands that the legislature at least shall better define the important difference between a delinquent youth and a criminal youth.

Editorial of the Day

MUNICIPAL REFINANCING.

[Peoria Transcript.]

The sanitary district and the new combined park district of Cook county are now preparing bills for introduction in the general assembly for refinancing their bonded indebtedness. In view of the composition of the assembly the bills undoubtedly will be passed.

In refinancing, the Cook county governmental units are only doing what the federal government has been doing on an extensive scale for the last few years. They plan to take high interest bonds and convert them into bonds paying a lower rate.

By changing various tax laws the sanitary and park districts also hope to do away with the need for a sinking fund. They would secure the refunding bonds by providing for a tax levy double the annual interest on the bonds. This is thought wise in view of the fact that in many years Cook county officials have collected only half the tax levy.

No one will deny that Chicago needs refinancing. The Cook county revenue system is still in a muddle, which, while not hopeless, is confusing. Anything that would put Cook county finances back on a sound basis and provide for economies should be welcomed not only by Chicago but by the rest of the state as well, for when Cook county fails to meet its obligations other communities are called upon to pay its bills to the state.

As far as Cook county refinancing is concerned, downstate will have little to say. There is danger, however, that downstate politicians will seek to follow the lead of Chicago and start an orgy of public debt refunding which, instead of simplifying downstate finances, will complicate them.

Using the plea of lower interest rates it is possible that many downstate political leaders will ask the legislature for general refunding laws to equalize the debts of many communities over a 20 year period and to issue low interest bearing bonds for that purpose.

Despite the depression and decline in revenue, however, most downstate communities have been able to meet their bonded obligations. Under proper budgetary control they can continue to keep their credit sound. It would be a mistake for solvent communities, or those nearly solvent, to defer paying their debts for 20 years and endanger their credit when such debts could be paid when due if public officials would practice economy.

ONE WAY TO DO IT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

EVERY DAY NOW come new records in the mad straining for speed, speed, and more speed by the railroads, the airplanes, and the automobiles. Big boys on bicycles and small boys on velocipedes lean over the handlebars and try for a record. The maids in the parks pushing baby buggies around have developed a sort of gallop and go tearing down the walks as though somebody was holding a stop watch on them. All the marvelous new machinery in the factories and shops is being speeded up to its limit. But when they get to the limit an inventor comes around and puts on a new gadget so that it can go faster yet. But there's one thing about it: when you meet a railroad man who tells you the last burst of speed made by a streamlined, electric driven train, or an airman tells you of the startling speed he can get out of his airplane, or the demon auto driver who says he can drive his car one hundred and ten miles an hour, just tell 'em one and all that Prof. Einstein stated in a lecture at Pittsburgh a few days ago that the speed of light was 186,000 miles a second. That ought to hold 'em for awhile.

AD AMPHORAM.

(Being yet another aspirantic attempt to render the XXI. ode in Book III. of the Odes of Quintus Horatius Flaccus, Esq., called sometimes and familiarly Horace.)

Hey my cask—my goodly pal! When Manlius ruled
we two were born.
And whether quips or dour complaints are yours
to tote—or if, forsworn
By cock-eyed love bouts, brawls, soft sleep—in fine,
Abjuring reasons, the grand Massic wine
To bid your storied shelf adieu
This gala day. Corvinus, I beg,
You count my friend—a right good egg;
He won't reject you, with a frown undemocratic
(Though most of the guy's ideas are Socratic).
Pshaw! Even grand old Cato's pep
A nip or two would help. Some rep
You have for often soothing the hard-boiled
And revealing the worries of big-shots, when they're boiled—
And the kidding Bacchus' private tips;
New hope and strength salute their lips
Whose worried minds on you rely;
And courage you give the humblest guy
Who, after a swig or two, grows gay and sings
And fears not soldiery, nor rank, nor kings.
Yea, Bacchus and Venus, the Graces, Phoebus and Mars,
Keep your companionship light and live as stars!

ASTRONOMERS HAVE JUST ANNOUNCED the explosion of a star, Nova Herculis, in the constellation Hercules. But keep perfectly calm. While the astronomers found out about it only a few days ago Nova Herculis blew up long before the Revolutionary war. In fact, the catastrophe happened before Columbus discovered America. It also happened before Leif Ericson forgot he discovered Rhode Island. It happened, too, before William of Normandy landed at Hastings and either licked the English or won a great English victory; they haven't decided which even yet. Anyhow, the Nova Herculis disaster, of which meager details are now trickling into the newspaper offices, happened quite a while back. In fact, it it was when the Saracens and the Franks were fighting the battle of Tours, or about 1,200 years ago. And I'm saving this one for Eddie Fullerton, the w. k. TRIBUNE telegraph editor, when he brags to me again of the breath-taking speed with which pictures taken in Loz Onglaize and London are rushed into print. "Eddie," I will say quietly, "talking about newspaper speed, what about its taking 'em twelve hundred years to get that story of the blowing up of Nova Herculis?" He'll probably look terribly embarrassed and hem and haw around and try to alibi by saying they couldn't get a picture of the Nova Herculis disaster because cameras hadn't been invented then. But that's a pretty lame excuse after all.

THIS MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE. Sit down in your home and take your watch out of your pocket and look at it. Every fifteen minutes, according to the records of last year, somebody is killed in the U. S. in a motor accident. But how can sitting in your home and staring at your watch save your life? Because when you are sitting in your home staring at your watch you will not be whirling around corners on two wheels or weaving in and out in a crowded street or running past the red light or trying to beat a fast train to the crossing. Thereby saving your life.

MAKE BELIEVE.

I make them come true,—the dreams I dream
As I stumble along the way.
I close my eyes to the lowering skies
When the clouds are shot with gray.

I close my eyes, and the sunshine stored
From yesterday's skies of blue
Comes out to lighten all the gloom
Till the morrow's sun shines through.

And when my heart is sick and sore
And hours are slow and long
I make believe that I am gay,
I sing a little song

About remembered happiness,
And suddenly I find
That joy again is in my soul
Because it's in my mind.

FOCAL INFECTION AND DANGEROUS TEETH.

SOME years ago the late Frank Billings, a distinguished Chicago physician, delivered at Stanford university a series of lectures on what he termed "focal infection." He described a situation that had been found in a large number of his patients. The individuals were not quite normal in physical resistance; they tired easily. They might go about their business and function with fair efficiency, but they were below par and lacked zest and snap. Some of these persons, on careful examination, showed the presence of collections of pus in various parts of the body. Most of these pockets were so placed that bacteria had ready access to the lymph channels and the blood.

Many of these areas [called foci] contained active, living bacteria, and certain of them showed organisms known to cause inflammation of the lining of the heart [endocarditis], kidney disease, and diseases of the joints—arthritis and rheumatic fever. Dr. Billings and his assistants early advocated the removal of these infections wherever found and the results, although disappointing in some cases, were startling and spectacular in others.

It was found that favorite sites for these infections were the mouth, throat, tonsils, and sinuses. The teeth were also frequently involved. Abscesses were often detected around the roots of teeth and virulent streptococci were in many cases identified in these locations.

The effect of the removal of focal infection upon general health proved its value in a short time. Occasionally a patient would be examined and nothing would be found, the individual perhaps giving a history of the tonsils having been removed years before. But on more careful examination tonsil stumps or tags were found sealed in by the old operative scar, where tiny spots of infection had lodged.

Naturally, with the announcement of the doctrine of focal infection and with proof of its value, the examination of patients became more thorough. It was contended by Dr. Billings and his coworkers that a streptococcic infection somewhere in the head might be responsible for an attack of appendicitis, gall bladder disease, kidney disease, and possibly infection of the colon. It was not so much the local damage caused by abscesses in the tonsils, teeth, or sinuses, but it was the constant menace of the spread of the infection to other important structures.

Experts in special fields are now alert to the possible existence of focal infection. Ophthalmologists recognize that certain affections of the eye may be traced to general or focal disease elsewhere in the body. Those who give special attention to diseases of the urinary tract find that infections are sometimes harbored in the kidney, the bladder, and the prostate.

The normal, healthy body can and does resist a certain amount of infection, and the blood has considerable fighting power against bacteria. There comes a time, however, when the insidious, constant hammering of infection may break down defensive walls and ill health result.

To individuals of high resistance focal infections may be relatively harmless. Persons, however, whose resistance has been lowered by overwork, worry, or malnutrition have thereby opened the gateway to general infection.

Dental surgeons have played a cooperating rôle and recognize the importance of infection around the teeth and within the jaw bone. Normal teeth, tonsils, and sinuses must not be disturbed, but if any or all of these harbor infection the patient is compelled to use all his energy in defensive fighting; there is nothing left for the objectives of life.

There was a belief current among eighteenth century physicians that bad teeth caused rheumatism. The proof has come within our generation.

AMEBIC DYSENTERY.

A. D. writes: I read your article on amebic dysentery. Is this the same as mucous colitis?

REPLY.

Quite different although some of the symptoms may be the same. Amebic dysentery is caused by infection with an animal parasite—the endameba histolytica.

PAIN IN LUNGS.

E. G. G. writes: Lately I have been bothered with a slight pain in my lungs when I expand them a little more than I usually do. What could be the cause?

REPLY.

It may be pleurisy or it may be nothing more than muscular pain. If the pain continues have an X-ray plate of the lungs made and studied by an expert.

HAVE EYES EXAMINED.

S. G. writes: My eyes always feel very dry when I read and eyedrops prescribed by a physician do not help. My eyes seem to glide past sentences and skip words. My eyes squint, particularly in the evening.

REPLY.

You probably have myopia and should be examined for glasses.

ITCHING NOSE.

Mrs. R. B. writes: What causes itching of the nose? I get it after I have eaten.

REPLY.

There is an old but untrue saying that an itching nose means intestinal worms. Ravenscroft, writing in 1609, says that irritation of the nose is brought about by

"Sinament [cinnamon] and ginger, nutmeg and cloves.
And that gave me my jolly red nose."

If your nose itches only after meals the cause may be found in some particular food substance. Nasal hairs and infections are frequently responsible.

WAXLIKE TOES.

Perplexed writes: Would anemia cause the toes to become waxlike? What other disease would cause this condition?

REPLY.

Anemia is usually accompanied by a pale or even bloodless appearance of the skin. Waxlike toes may be due to thromboangitis obliterans. This disease is characterized by a blocking of the skin capillaries of the extremities, particularly the feet.

GARNISHMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is the minimum salary a man with wife and child can earn before his wages can be garnisheed? 2. Before we were married my husband was employed and owes room and board for a period of time to an individual. The party claims the amount is more than my husband says is due. He has threatened garnishment of his salary for this amount. M. P.

1. The exemption is $20 per week.

2. Before bringing garnishment the creditor would have to secure judgment against your husband, unless there was a lease expressly authorizing judgment by confession. It would be necessary for the creditor to have summons served on your husband before securing such a judgment. In the suit following such service of summons [or if judgment is confessed then by motion to vacate the judgment] your husband could secure a hearing on his claim as to the amount due.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SECTION 7 [a]—NRA.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like to see published in your column the basic code of NRA—section 7 [a]. J. S. B.

Section 7 [a] of the industrial recovery act is as follows: "Every code of fair competition, agreement, and license approved, prescribed, or issued under this title shall contain the following conditions: [1] That employés shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and shall be free from the interference, restraint, or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents, in the designation of such representatives or in self-organization, or in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection; [2] that no employé and no one seeking employment shall be required as a condition of employment to join any company union or to refrain from joining, organizing, or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing; and [3] that employers shall comply with the maximum hours of labor, minimum rates of pay, and other conditions of employment approved or prescribed by the President.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RELIGIOUS CORPORATIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it legal in the state of Illinois for a religious corporation to have the following provision in its constitution with regard to membership: "By failing to attend a meeting a member agrees to waive his right of casting his vote during such meeting." 2. In your reply will you please also quote the authority upon which you base your answer? H. C.

1. Yes.

2. Because the religious corporations act contains no express reference to proxy voting and does repeatedly indicate that the affairs of the corporation are to be conducted in accordance with its customs, rules, and regulations. It would be otherwise if you were organized under the "Not for Profit" act.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COLLECTION OF JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. As I understand it no one can collect a judgment obtained against a civil service employé of the city, in this case a policeman. The man holding the mortgage on our house claims he can file a bill of credit and garnishee my husband's wages, allowing us only $20 a week to live on. 2. Can this be done? 3. What can we do to prevent it? J. F. H.

1. There is no such absolute rule. What you probably have in mind is the fact that wages coming from the city are not subject to garnishment. This does not prevent the creditor from collecting out of other assets, if assets can be found in excess of exemptions.

2. See 1.

3. In general the only way to prevent a creditor from taking action on a judgment is to pay it or bar it by bankruptcy.

Sailors have long believed that the sight of a shark following a ship was a sign of approaching death to some one on board; for sharks were supposed to follow ships to devour dead bodies. This is about as foolish a superstition as is extant, and of course it has no foundation whatever. Sharks follow ships for the morsels of food thrown overboard from the kitchen.

AMERICAN VOTES IN THE SAAR.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—A letter appeared inquiring about the Saar plebiscite. The answer is to be found in past numbers of THE TRIBUNE which have explained that citizens of the Saar territory in 1920 are entitled to vote at the coming election.

One could perhaps more easily understand it if he imagined that Chicago and surrounding territory had been given to the league of nations to govern by the Versailles treaty. Naturally we would all want to vote for its return to the United States. And wouldn't we rejoice to see those come back to help us who had left to live in the Argentine, Brazil, or Mexico?

Those who are not true to the land that gave them a chance to live and obtain an education are not true to their new and adopted country.

Our desire to have this territory returned to the United States would not be because we hated the Canadians any more than the Germans hate the French people, but because we feel the land should go to its rightful and natural owner. CONSTANT READER.

THEN WHO WILL PAY!

Chicago, Jan. 2.—In these hard times when people are losing their homes, and the government is trying to save their properties by home loan, etc., the mortgage holder, in many cases, is reducing the interest on the loan, and in some instances the mortgage itself is reduced so as to help the property owners, why should not the state assist the property owner by remitting the penalties, costs, and interest when he pays his taxes? The state should be satisfied if it can collect the full tax without the penalties. Is not the property owner penalized enough when his property is sold for nonpayment of taxes? Why should the state exact additional penalties at all?

WILLIAM CHONES.

A BURGLARY SOLVED.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Upon returning home Christmas night we found some one had broken in and ransacked our home. We reported it to the police. Two days later due to the efforts of Officers Michael McCarthy and Edward Oates, Seventeenth district, New City police station, all our stolen property had been returned. This is my way of showing my appreciation of the wonderful work of these two able officers, and to let the people of Chicago know we have efficient men on our police department.

WINIFRED POTOCKI.

RACIAL DESIGNATION.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—The conference mentioned in the Voice of the People, under the head of "Racial Designation," in this morning's TRIBUNE, recalls very pleasantly the attitude taken by your editor in this particular matter. In the interest of clarity, however, it might be said that, in addition to Col. Denison, Messrs. Taylor and Watkins, the writer was chairman of the committee and as such had spent quite some time doing research work and arranging the material to be presented and took part in the conference.

There was some talk about the use of the word "colored," but the discussion had to do more particularly with the capitalization of the word "Negro," or its noncapitalization. The representative of THE TRIBUNE agreed henceforth to capitalize the word, which it has done very consistently ever since the conference.

This was considered the main achievement of our effort with your newspaper. Of course we have never objected to the word "colored." However, the propriety of the capitalization of this word is open more or less to question.

THE BONUS AS A STIMULATOR.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Shortly after the veterans received 50 per cent of their bonus a great many small banks closed. Isn't it possible or probable that a certain percentage lost their bonus money by depositing in one of these banks, thus accounting for the lack of stimulus in business? FLORENCE M. JOHNSON.

BOWLING CHAMPIONS.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 31.—In reading your SUNDAY TRIBUNE I noticed with great interest the various champions and stars selected as being the greatest men and women in the various sports, but was very much disappointed in not seeing a single bowling champion among them, and I know that Chicago has several men and women whose faces should have appeared on that page. I do hope that when your next sheet of champions is printed you will also include one or two from the bowling world.

1,000 AT MEETING AS LEGION OPENS ANTI-RED FIGHT

Leader Attacks Communism in Universities.

The Illinois department of the American Legion last night opened an Americanism campaign, directed against communism and other subversive activities, with a massmeeting in the Loyola university gymnasium at Sheridan road and Loyola avenue. More than 1,000 members of some 50 Legion posts, representatives of civic societies and army, navy, and city officials attended.

Homer L. Chaillaux, director of the national Americanism commission of the Legion, was the main speaker. He declared that communistic activity is directed largely at the youth of the country. Few schools, he said, are free from communistic influence. He named the University of Chicago and Northwestern university, declaring communism is being fostered in both.

Names Civil Liberties Union.

"The two major organizations in this country by which communism is being fostered," he said, "are the Civil Liberties union and the International Labor Defense. The latter is full of shyster lawyers, who can't get other business, and who defend radical agitators."

Mr. Chaillaux criticized what he termed the attitude of many officials in not recognizing the menace in communism. The most dangerous subversive activity, he said, is that not readily recognizable.

"The communist party in the United States, when called to task, says that it is only a minor political party," he declared. "Its own records and the publicity released by the party in Russia show that this is not true."

Mayor Thanks Legion.

Another speaker was Mayor Kelly, who thanked the Legion organization for its aid in combating radicalism. He sounded a challenge to the communists.

"Chicago is not afraid of communism," he said. "The Chicago police department is not afraid of anybody or any organization. All who don't like this country can get out, and we will help them in leaving."

The Rev. Dennis F. Burns, regent of the Loyola law school, said in welcoming the Legion meeting that Loyola university would not permit any subversive teaching or communistic activity among the students.

Other speakers included Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant of the ninth naval district; Hayes Kennedy, Americanism chairman of the Illinois department of the legion, and George Hime, Americanism chairman of Cook county. Francis E. Phelan, commander of the 7th Illinois district of the Legion, was chairman of the meeting. Next month a similar meeting will be held in Evanston.

Preceding the mass meeting there was a parade from the Broadway armory, with the drum and bugle corps of the Board of Trade post leading. Several other Legion posts were represented in the line of march.

STARS OF STAGE TO AID RALLY FOR SYNAGOGUE FUND

Stars of the stage, screen, and radio will perform at a rally in the Morrison hotel Wednesday evening to be attended by employés of concerns which have contributed toward a bazar to raise funds for the erection of the Chicago Loop Orthodox synagogue at 16-18 South Clark street.

O. M. NUDELMAN.

The goal of the campaign is $50,000, according to Oscar M. Nudelman, chairman. Archie I. Bernstein, president of the synagogue, said the proposed new building will be both a house of worship and a cultural center.

The bazar to be held Jan. 19 to 27 in the Morrison hotel will mark the opening of the drive for funds. It will be in the charge of Mitchell C. Robin and Mrs. R. K. Coleman. Mrs. Belle Helberg will be chairman at Wednesday's rally.

STOCK MARKET LOSER ENDS LIFE IN 14 FLOOR LEAP

Oscar A. Lehman, 63 years old, 424 South State street, a former contractor who lost most of his money in the stock market, leaped fourteen floors to his death yesterday from the Terminal building, 540 Plymouth court.

Through cards found in his pocket, his wife, Lena, was found at 2459 West Michigan street, Milwaukee, where she had been staying with her daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Barton. They came to Chicago when notified, and identified the body.

Since losing his money, Mrs. Lehman said, her husband had been working part of the time as a sign painter.

Chicago police early today were searching for two youths who escaped yesterday from the St. Charles School for Boys, state correctional institution at St. Charles, in a 50 passenger bus. The abandoned bus was recovered in the rear of 4317 West Madison street by Fillmore street police last night and the two boys, Anthony Horvath, 17 years old, 2838 South Wells street, and Vernon Woyner, 16 years old, 3518 West 66th street, were believed to be lingering in the neighborhood. Each had escaped from the school several times before.

NEBRASKA HAS NO TREASURER IN SURETY MIXUP

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Nebraska was without an official state treasurer today.

Refusal of surety companies to furnish a $1,000,000 bond for $2,500 a year for George E. Hall, who has been state treasurer two years and who was reëlected, caused the situation.

Paul F. Good, the retiring attorney general, gave Hall until midnight last night to furnish bond and said that "failure to file bond within the time limited caused a vacancy in the office."

Good's opinion was prepared in cooperation with William H. Wright, Nebraska's new attorney general, who took office yesterday. Wright said he saw no course except for the state legislature to pass a law which will give Hall some way of providing bond. The legislature now is in session.

Surety companies in refusing to furnish another bond said the premium is too low and said the audit of the office under present arrangements was insufficient. They praised Hall's honesty, integrity, and capability, and said he was a victim of circumstance.

TWO PURSE SNATCHERS JAILED.

SEVEN OFFICERS OF FAILED BANK ARE INDICTED

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Seven former officers of the defunct Tippecanoe Loan and Trust company of Lafayette were free on bond tonight after their indictment by the grand jury on charges including perjury, making false entries in the bank's books, embezzlement, and accepting deposits when the bank was known to be insolvent.

Margaret A. Cheney, secretary-treasurer; Helen F. Cheney, her sister and formerly assistant secretary-treasurer; Millard H. Overton, trust officer, and four directors of the institution, Solomon Loeb, John T. Hogan, county treasurer; William F. Reidemeier, city councilman, and Fred M. Kuipers, were named in the indictments.

Bank examiners have disclosed that $600,000 in bonds and Home Owners' Loan corporation certificates disappeared from the institution's vaults.

COURT DEMANDS SERVICE ON ALL TRAFIC WARANTS

Safety Move Pushed; City Death Toll a Record.

Municipal Judge John Gutknecht yesterday opened a drive for 100 per cent service on warants issued in the Trafic court. Eighty-five police process servers and police sergeants, meeting in the central police building, were told that 300 warants of 2,000 issued in December had not been served.

Judge Gutknecht directed the policemen to bring back reports giving detailed reasons in every case in which their attempts to serve warants met with failure.

The judge also asked the policemen to investigate thoroughly all garages, gasoline stations, stores and establishments, addresses of which had been given in license applications, and to bring before the court the owners or managers who could not satisfactorily account for the identities of persons sought.

Seeks to Cut Accidents.

Judge Gutknecht gave as his reason for holding the meeting the growing number of automobile accidents. He told the policemen that one way to minimize accidents is to deal severely with trafic violators.

At the same time Capt. David Flynn, chief of the police trafic division, issued an annual report which showed that 986 persons were killed in motor crashes in Chicago in 1934 as compared with 902 in 1933. The 1934 motor toll was the largest in the history of the city.

Drunken Drivers Total 650.

Drunken drivers	650
Failure to have chauffeur license	295
Failure to have auto license	9,961
Failure to have license illuminated	4
Fictitious license plates	324
Driving without lights	402
Intoxicated minors driving cars	1
Obstructing trafic	194
Violating "rules of the road"	1,345
Disregarding signs and signals	258
Speeding	2,802
Passing halted street cars	251
Violating parking rules	3,007
Failing to stop at through streets	535
Making illegal left turns	181

Capt. Flynn's report also commended the work of the trafic division in handling the 16,000,000 visitors to the 1934 World's Fair, and the work of the division at the stockyards fire last spring.

Daylight Hours Safest.

A bulletin issued yesterday by the Chicago Motor club said that four-fifths of all automobile trafic operates during daylight hours, but that one-half of all fatal accidents occur after sunset.

"Tests have indicated that a driver of a moving car cannot see a pedestrian or other obstacle in his path at night for as great a distance ahead as when the car is standing still," the bulletin said. "At 30 miles an hour this sight distance at night is reduced 25 per cent, while at 60 miles an hour the reduction is almost 50 per cent."

LEAGUE DEMANDS NEW JAP DATA ON MANDATE ISLES

GENEVA, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The permanent mandates commission of the league reported today that sums Japan announced she spent purely for civil and commercial purposes on ports on islands in the Pacific held by her under mandate are disproportionate to the volume of commercial activity. Further particulars on the expenditure were asked in the next Japanese report.

A Tokio representative in his previous report sought to allay "suspicions" expressed in Geneva that Japan is building fortifications or constructing naval bases in the Marshall, Caroline, Ladrone or Pelew Islands, granted her after the world war.

The mandates commission has issued a communique saying "suspicions are constantly giving rise to comment in the world press, and one method of refuting them would be to afford free and unrestricted access to the islands for foreign travelers and vessels."

Mexico Boosts Taxes on Liquor to Stop Drinking

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The treasury department published a decree today raising taxes on liquors and saloons as a first step in a campaign by President Cardenas against the use of alcoholic beverages throughout the country. The taxes, however, are not considered prohibitive.

TRIAL DATE SET

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Trial of Miss Bertha C. Burnham, 39 years old, who is charged with embezzling $23,552 from the Evanston real estate concern of Quinlan & Tyson, was set for Jan. 22 yesterday by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court. Miss Burnham, who was secretary of the concern for 11 years, entered a plea of not guilty after conferring with Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach. She previously had admitted the embezzlement, prosecutors said.

3 AUTO VICTIMS DIE; TOLL IS NOW 6 FOR NEW YEAR

Pedestrian Is Fatally Hurt by Truck.

Charles Blomgren, 68 years old, 5703 South Elizabeth street, was fatally injured last evening when he was struck at 59th street and Racine avenue by a truck of the O'Keefe Brothers Coal company driven by George Reardon, 2923 Monroe street. He died soon afterward in the Englewood hospital.

Other Victims of Day.

Two other deaths yesterday increased to six the Cook county automobile toll for 1935. The victims:

James Reidy, 50 years old, 352 East 73d street. Died in the Southtown hospital of injuries incurred Christmas night when he was struck by a towing truck at Ashland avenue and 42d place.

Edward Bulsczynski, 13 years old, 4938 South Wood street. Died in his home of a hemorrhage of the brain supposed to have resulted from injuries suffered last May 1 when he jumped from a truck and ran into the side of an automobile at 48th street and Hermitage avenue.

Jury Orders Driver Held.

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Charles Peterson, 52 years old, 3851 Hirsch street, held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter. Testimony at the inquest indicated that Peterson was intoxicated when his automobile struck and killed Glen Peters, 3800 Franklin avenue, Franklin Park.

Mrs. Ella Campbell, 5012 North Winchester avenue, was reported recovering yesterday in a hospital in Adrian, Mich., from injuries incurred Thursday night in an automobile accident in which her husband, Robert, was killed. The Campbell automobile skidded and sideswiped a truck near Adrian.

4 Skiers Killed by Snow Avalanche in the Tyrol

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Four skiers of a party of 10 were killed by a snow avalanche near Cortina in the Italian Tyrol yesterday. The skiers, all from Munich, were buried in Sedaja pass. Six survived the slide but were injured. The dead included a girl, Fräulein Truda Fritz, and three men, Guide Luber, his assistant, Gnodt, and a youth named Gottsalk.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Some Old Tricks Revived in These Novels.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Delay in the Sun," by Anthony Thorne. [Doubleday-Doran.]

"Week-End," by Phil Stong. [Harcourt-Brace.]

"The Transients," by Mark Van Doren. [Morrow.]

"I'm the Happiest Girl in the World," by John Held Jr. [Vanguard.]

TWO of the four novels listed above (all of which are sizzling off the presses) have in common the hoary device of destiny wrecking—or remaking—in a few days the lives of men and women casually thrown together. Or, as Mr. Thorne says it in more expansive English: "If you interrupt a man in the middle of his life, you surprise him, so to speak, in the middle of a sentence. The sentence is incomplete. . . . Put an unexpected semicolon there. The rest of the sentence may be entirely different."

"Delay in the Sun" and "Week-End" are both pretty good and pretty bad examples of that device, which has to be superbly good to be good, if you know what I mean. Norman Douglas made a superb job of it in "South Wind," with the sirocco as the semicolon. Neither Mr. Thorne nor Mr. Stong does more than a little muscle flexing in his sparring with the idea.

Literary Guild Picks "Delay in the Sun."

However, Anthony Thorne's opus, "Delay in the Sun," won the plaudits of the committee that chooses the month's reading matter for the Literary Guild, and, as that committee is composed of good men and women, and true, perhaps we missed some of its subtleties. It concerns a group of travelers unknown to each other on a bus through Spain. There is a strike of the bus drivers, and the English travelers are marooned in Querinda. Mr. Thorne has a love for Spain, he has a feel for its sounds, its smells, its lines, its colors, and he has enough skill to translate that affection and understanding into words. For that much the book is charming.

In its characters it is mannered and unconvincing. The sophisticated Julian, traveling as friend with his own son John, who has no suspicion of his parentage, is the only one of the group who seems to remain untouched by the sun. John finds reality in the arms of a very young Spanish girl, who pleads with him, "Give me a little Englishman."

Two unmarried lovers are parted by a sudden ultra-earthly love that comes to one of them. Two young girls take a sip from the well of loneliness. A gentle little middle aged widow from Hastings and a Jewish traveling salesman establish an everlasting alliance. And an unfulfilled old maid finds fulfilment in her release from the adulation of her employer. All of their lives are nicely shuffled and redealt—really even Julian's, for he loses the intimate friendship of his unacknowledged son.

Phil Stong Leaves His Iowa Corn Fields.

As for "Week-End," Phil Stong, having made his reputation as a forthright portrayer of the corn belt, with simplicity the structural steel of his edifices, has leaped into the seas of sophistication and is, it seems to me, past his ears and rapidly sinking.

The characters assembled to celebrate the thirty-third birthday of Flora Baitsell are types rather than humans, and their talk is pure Phil Stong. They all talk alike, only some more so. They, like the characters in "Delay in the Sun," all seem jellied in their lives, but the hot sun of a Connecticut week-end melts the cohesive force, and when the book ends there are imminent three new marital relationships, two redealt from former games, and all the result of a few days of a good deal of drinking, some trout fishing, and a tragic motor accident.

Mr. Stong is more effective as novelist laureate of his native Iowa. His laurels grow a little sere in the heat of a Connecticut week-end.

"Transients" Uses an Old Device.

As different from "Week-End" and "Delay in the Sun" as possible, and yet also making use of a frayed literary device, is Mark Van Doren's "The Transients." Dug up from a never deep grave is the theme of the presence on the earth of two creatures doomed to immortality and of their contact with mortals.

Mr. Van Doren has elaborated the theme to the extent of making both the hero and the heroine immortals . . . who love one another, and who must, to retain their immortality, disappear from the earth together. When the boy escapes from the girl he finds a mortal lover in the person of the daughter of the small town jailer who has locked him up for hitch-hiking.

The tale opens with the boy's presence in the jail, and it is the most delightful part of a book which, whatever it is about, is written with charm. The girl also finds a lover, but eventually they find each other . . . and summer disappears into the chilliness of fall. "The Transients" is fantasy for those who like gentle and delicate prose.

Held Writes About "Miss Universe."

There is no fantasy about John Held Jr.'s "I'm the Happiest Girl in the World." It is the straight-shootin' story of the career of Della Crump of Duchesne, Idaho, "Miss Universe," a good-hearted but good little moron who goes from high school to a Broadway chorus via beauty contests without losing either her way or her ways. She is the original beautiful-but-dumb, and Mr. Held has a grand time kidding her and the flower-strewn path which never had a chance of being a bed of roses.

The whole beauty contest game is satirized, and Mr. Held can sling as mean a pen in his writing as he can in his drawing when he cares to go into his pen slinging. Most readers will find the book highly entertaining as the inside story of one of America's most popular rackets even if they don't think much of it as a contestant in the great American novel field.

'World Outside' Tells Fight of Convict to Re-enter Life

"The World Outside" [Simon & Schuster] by Hans Fallada has already been translated into twelve languages. Like "Little Man What Now," it is the story of a simple, socially unadjusted soul. The hero of "The World Outside" after a term in prison, genuinely wanting to become an honest citizen, finds the respectable men and women in the world outside the prison aligned against him. For a year he fights them. In the end they send him back.

The frontispiece to a very interesting comparison by M. Mespoulet of Grandville and Tenniel as "Creators of Wonderland." The author finds forbears of many of the animal cartoons of Tenniel's "Alice in Wonderland" in the Frenchman's drawings.

Next Thursday evening at 8:15 p. m. the Dickens Fellowship will present at the Auditorium hotel E. Stanley Brookes of the University of Melbourne in a program of his famous Dickens portrayals in costume.

'Pirate Wench' Is a Thrilling Tale of Spanish Main

Mary Reed, the world's most famous woman buccaneer, is the dashing heroine of "Pirate Wench" [Ives Washburn], by Frank Shay, the best yarn of the "Golden Age of Piracy" we've ever read.

If you know your "Pirates' Who's Who" (and there is such a book compiled by Philip Gosse) you'll find many of your old acquaintances of the Spanish Main roistering through Shay's picaresque novel.

"Buttons" Reed, as Mary was called during the masculine part of her pirate days before her sex was discovered, served under several famous buccaneers before she became master of her own ship.

As a feminine pirate captain, Mary boarded Spanish plate laden galleons, ravished French and Dutch ships, captured Yankee rum and slave ships, and at last raided the new settlement of New Orleans.

"Pirate Wench" is a stunning story of a picturesque and romantic though sanguinary calling and the authentic biography of a brave, gallant, and likable lady buccaneer who could use her fists as expertly as she could her pistol and cutlass. If you like smashing sea adventure this deep water yarn will answer your call for thrills.

Entertaining Travel Volume on Mexico Helped by Photographs

Emma Lindsay Squier has written one of the best travel books of the season and surely the most entertaining volume on Mexico in a long while, in her "Gringa, an American Woman in Mexico" [Houghton Mifflin]. Not the least attractive feature of the book is the collection of splendid photographs taken by her husband, John Bransby.

The first half of "Gringa" tells of the lively voyage she and a nerve jittered Hollywood actress had in a small tramp steamer from California to various ports along Mexico's west coast. This is a rollicking recital of an unusual marine experience.

The second half is another trip to Mexico the author took after she married her John. This part moves at a bit slower tempo, but the interest never flags, for it's a brilliantly written account of travel in a fascinating country.

Huxley Seeks a New Variety of Humanism

Wants World of Freedom and Beauty.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Aldous Huxley, who has been living for some years in the south of France, returned to London two months ago. He has not been allowed to regard his stay as a holiday, but has been continuously busy. He has lectured on the radio upon causes of war, in this respect being more fortunate than Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, whose talk was censored out of existence; he has spoken in aid of the Cecil houses [these are hotels for women, organized by Mrs. Cecil Chesterton, and named by her in memory of her husband]; and now, in support of a hospital charity, he has made a plea on behalf of "Culture in the Machine Age."

This last was a particularly interesting appearance, because it is Mr. Huxley's belief that culture is threatened by general assault from the low-brow as well as by the increasing standardization of contemporary social life. All who admired his brilliant destructive criticism, in "Brave New World," of scientific Utopias will remember that Mr. Huxley stands for an ideal of culture wholly different from that with which scientific enthusiasts threaten us. But he also has a poet's hatred of barbarism, and more and more is tending to develop a new variety of intellectual humanism.

It will be very interesting to see the effect upon the younger generation of Mr. Huxley's effort to create a positive philosophy from two antipathies—the hatred of mechanization and the fear of lowbrowism. He will be in London all the winter, and may remain with us permanently. If he can but keep his health his influence should be much heightened, and the result of his stay may well be of importance to those young people who wish to create a still braver new world from which freedom, beauty, and happiness have not been expelled.

The original manuscript [mostly in the author's handwriting] of D. H. Lawrence's first novel, "The White Peacock," has just been sold in London for £115 [$575].

Not many authors can both plan and act in a film, but Miss E. Arnot Robertson, the author of "Four Frightened People" [of which a moving picture has been made], has done both. As readers of her work know, Miss Robertson loves sailing, and she has made a short film called "Our Friend the Wind," in which the delights of sailing in a Suffolk estuary are demonstrated. I do not know how many authors would make screen stars, but clearly such a film, made for the love of a beautiful and thrilling pastime, has much to recommend it.

Malcolm Muggeridge, whose book about Russia caused a good deal of talk [it was the book of an intellectual who had suffered disillusion as the result of a stay in Russia], is writing a new biography of Samuel Butler. It will be published next year by Jonathan Cape, to whom Alfred Cathie, Butler's faithful servant, has given an armchair which used to stand in Butler's room in Clifford's inn, London.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

"The Diamond Ransom" [Knopf], by Nellise Child, is a kidnaping story with a new approach. It is very involved, pretty improbable, and determinedly hard boiled, but its detail has an authentic ring, and, if there are in the world that kind of people, here they are. It is written throughout from the police angle, and you learn a lot about that august body. Los Angeles is its locale, and no less a person than a fiction governor of California is nefariously involved—not the real governor, of course. He is alibied in the firm denial of libelous intent which now precedes all derogatory fiction.

Others of the fictitious rich and great are also concerned, but you won't really like any of them so very much. You will like young Jerry Irish, who has the case in charge, and will find him pretty smart. With less than nothing to go on, he makes his case, but not before everything has gone definitly sour.

If you enjoy disappearances from crowded city corners in broad daylight, incredibly rich ransoms, and every sort of lowlived characters from double-crossers to crooked politicians, you'll put in a pleasant evening on this book. Even if it is in your nature to find them unpleasant, you'll be mystified and interested, and you are bound to admire the assured working out of an intricate problem.

A substantial, conventional murder story is "Poison for One" [Dodd-Mead], by that reliable producer, John Rhode. In it Dr. Priestly infallibly runs circles around good Inspector Hanslet of Scotland Yard, who is always so eager but didactic. The poisoning is quite nicely and originally consummated. If Dr. Priestly, in fact, were a little less noticing, and Hanslet a shade quicker on the uptake, this one would be first rate.

Lovers of Old Houses and Their Contents Will Enjoy This Book

To that little group of lovers of the early American in all its various forms and guises, "Sing Old House," [Dutton], another volume by Marion Nicholl Rawson, will come as treasure trove.

This book specializes in old houses, hinting broadly at what not to do when remodeling them, giving a glossary of old terms, and providing diagrams of old designs. There are also numerous delightful sketches by the author of roofs and windows, and chimneys without, and doors and shelves and mantel arrangements within, as well as of many famous old houses.

The enormous amount of research involved is indicated by the list of 461 old houses, the first of its kind ever compiled, to which readers are invited to make corrections or additions.

It's a Christmas gift that will warm the cockles of the heart of any old-house lover.

Palmer Writes Biography of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss

"Bliss, Peacemaker," by Frederick Palmer [Dodd Mead], is a comprehensive life [including his letters] of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, the sixth officer of the United States army to receive four stars in permanence. Washington, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Pershing preceded him in that honor. Mr. Palmer had access to all of the Bliss material known to be in existence, including personal memoranda, letters and journals of his hero. The result is a definitive biography of one of America's greatest warriors—with the equally accurate title of peacemaker.

Here's a New Book About Voyaging in the Chillier Regions

For the reader who likes his vicarious voyaging done in chill regions we believe "Hans the Eskimo" [Houghton-Mifflin], by Edwin Gile Rich, is easily the outstanding book of its kind in a season where volumes on polar perigrinations have been popular and plenty.

The author has Hans Hendrik, famous Eskimo hunter and guide, tell the story of his stirring adventures with three noted arctic expeditions—the Kane voyage of 1853, the Hayes expedition of 1860, and the Polaris near tragedy of 1871. Hendrik years ago wrote his own memoirs, which later were translated, and we presume Rich got much of his material from that authentic source.

Seldom does any one volume contain so many thrills and such almost incredible close to death adventure as does this smashing little volume. The 1,300 mile voyage on an ice floe made by Hans, his wife, and children, and some of the Polaris crew is one of the thrilling sea experiences of all maritime history.

The book is an authentic and stunning picture of polar exploration of days long ago. Every boy who likes adventure will revel in "Hans the Eskimo," and the grown-ups, we believe, will capture just as many thrills from this unusual biography. A. C.

Lecturer Gathers His Radio Talks on Tour of U. S. Into a Book

S. P. B. Mais, British author, lecturer, and radio broadcaster, has gathered together his radio talks given while touring America in "A Modern Columbus" [Lippincott], and the result is a delightfully genial, informative, and interesting volume.

This is what he thinks of us: "It is said that no one comes to live in Chicago without falling in love with it. . . . It is a very friendly town.

"Chicago is emphatically a city that likes to be visited. It is determined that it shall be better worth visiting or living in than any other city.

SOCIOCRATIC ESCAPADES
by
Francis Neilson
Mr. Hanna in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, says:
"Great Reading"
Mr. Clayton Hoagland in the New York Sun, December 7, says:
"What endeared me to Neilson from almost the first pages of 'Sociocratic Escapades' was his pugnacious humor and his admirable independence . . . 'Mr. Roosevelt has my profound sympathy,' he writes in one essay. 'It seems to me he is rather new at the game. His speeches seem to indicate that much. He seems to be surrounded by a crowd of people who have the most extraordinary ideas about mankind. There is not one who has delivered a speech or written a book who seems to be conscious for a moment that the working classes are composed of human beings. They seem to picture them as a lot of surpliced choir boys marching down the aisle to service.'
This is astute and blasting opinion of the brain trust method of government. We may easily forgive the English viewpoint in many of Neilson's remarks; though he lives in Wisconsin, he can still regard America from the banks of the Thames, which is enviable. It is not that the English viewpoint is superior to that of a native American, but simply that any objective, detached viewpoint of the New Deal at this time is a draught of cool water in a dry land of blue prints."

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1935.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[Posed by Alice Fay.]

A treatment with an "oil mask" paves the way to the success of a permanent for bleached, dyed or difficult hair.

When you go to the beauty market to buy yourself some new curls we do hope you shop with the utmost care. Picking up little bargains in the way of permanents is, as a rule, just another way of pleading with providence to heap coals of hair trouble on your head.

It's really economy to pay a fairly good price for your permanents and it is only sane to put yourself in the hands of a good operator, employed in a shop of reputation and responsibility.

We watched the waving operation in one of our large and well managed salons the other day. Here was hair of the fine, difficult and dry type that, unless it is perfectly handled, does one of two things after a wave—either frizzes like Topsy's or just lies limp. Under deft hands it emerged from the curlers looking like a cool million.

An oil treatment before the shampoo was one of the secrets of the success of this permanent. In this interval a funny looking little flannel cap—much in appearance like an airplane helmet—played the most important part. First oil was massaged and brushed into the hair and scalp. Then the cap, thoroughly saturated in pure, rich oil, was adjusted over the hair, and the oiled, capped head is given a half hour steaming. It does wonders for hair and permanent.

This is shampooed out and the wave proceeds in the usual manner. The operator's judgment after a test curl determines the type of permanent to be given.

This oil treatment, we're told, takes the risk out of permanents on dyed or bleached hair and adds immeasurably to the success of any wave. The little flannel cap becomes the customer's to have and to hold. Using it she can give herself good oil treatments at home prior to shampoos, a little trick that keeps hair beautifully soft and lustrous.

Good Morning!

This is an arousing picture. Full of zip, and warm with the elements that capture imagination and set the heart vibrating.

"Broadway Bill" is a race horse—with a great heart that knows no faltering. Warner Baxter is the man who loves the horse and for whose sake "Broadway Bill" makes the supreme sacrifice. Does that sound soppy? Well—when you see the picture you'll get a different idea.

A racing film—the action starts far away from racing stables, in the small town of Higginsville, where you discover Warner Baxter as Dan Brooks. He's husband of a cool blonde, one of the daughters of J. L. Higgins, who practically owns the town. What he doesn't own he either bosses or plots to acquire. He has made the husbands of his three married daughters heads of various concerns. Dan manages a box factory and heartily loathes both his job and his dependence on his father-in-law.

You see, Dan was a racing man before he landed in Higginsville and Margaret landed HIM. AND he owns a horse—"Broadway Bill"—that he knows has a future—IF—he could only train him properly and enter him in a big race.

All his spare time—and time that ISN'T spare—Dan spends giving "Broadway Bill" workouts in the country, assisted by an adoring black stable boy and an adoring young unmarried sister-in-law, Alice—the only one in the Higgins family who's in accord with him.

And now the race track, and the business of getting somewhere with no wherewithal—so far as money's concerned—to get anywhere at all. . . .

Alice—and a rooster!—to the rescue! But here's where I stop telling you things.

Splendid acting, fine direction, speed, humor, excitement, pathos—all of these has "Broadway Bill." See it—and love it!

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

Nuisance—Heifetz—Pearl.

The telephone in the home of President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago rang the other night at 2:30 o'clock. The University of Chicago operator had declined to put the call through to their home until the man, availing himself of the knowledge that little Franja Hutchins is seriously ill and in the hospital, said he was Dr. Blank. Mrs. Hutchins came to the telephone immediately, in considerable agitation. Then the mysterious caller hung up. Her agitation continued until she could ascertain definitly from the hospital authorities that no one officially connected with the hospital or with the case had telephoned.

The call obviously had been made merely to annoy. However, the telephoner did not preserve his anonymity. Within a half hour the call had been traced and the case reported to the police.

JASCHA HEIFETZ, who arrives in town tomorrow to play at a concert at Orchestra hall tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Travelers' Aid society, has the reputation of being the world's best tailored musical genius. After a concert his friends who know how to please him tell him that his suit fits like a miracle instead of saying that he played divinely.

Heifetz's love for clothes even extends to fancy dress costumes, and he has the national regalia of every country he visits. He himself explains his craze for dressing up, it is said, by the fact that when he was a child he was studying and working too hard to play. He was 11 when European dispatches hailed him—a pupil of Leopold Auer—as a new infant violin prodigy. It was five years later that Heifetz came to New York and knocked it for a loop in one recital.

* *

KREISLER, Mischa Elman, and Godowsky were in the audience when Heifetz made his New York debut in Carnegie hall. And this was the background for that oft-told story of how, during the applause at the end of the first number, Elman turned to Godowsky, wiped his forehead and said:

"It's warm in here."

To which Godowsky answered:

"For violinists, yes. But not for pianists."

THE strange coincidence tale of last week concerns a pearl encountered in a dish of marinated herring. Phil Huston of the cast of "Romance" was seated beside Eugenie Leontovich, star of the drama, at dinner at the home of the Mark Goodmans, and it was he who bit into a hard object in the herring. The contact of his teeth and the foreign object, coming during a lull in the conversation, was distinctly audible. An embarrassed silence followed and Mr. Huston put the object on his plate.

"A pearl," said Leontovich, "and a beauty, too."

The find was examined, and the consensus was that it really was a pearl, although no oyster had been near the herring.

A telephone call explained the mystery. Olga Albani, who had stopped in to greet the diners on her way to the broadcasting studio, rang up to say she had lost the pearl from her ring somewhere that evening, and to ask the hostess to be on the lookout for it. When she was told that Mr. Huston had discovered the pearl in his mouth, she remembered that she had left the table and the herring to shake hands with Leontovich.

Reid-Chatillon Nuptials Will Be Held Today

Ceremony Will Take Place at St. Chrysostom's.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE new year may still be young, but in its twelve months society, without doubt, will record no more gay and youthful wedding than that today of Miss Mary Elizabeth Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, and Ralph Frederick Chatillon Jr. of Chicago and Syracuse, N. Y.

Choosing a wedding instead of a debut this winter season the Reids' sparkling, vivacious, brunette daughter will be married at 4:30 o'clock in fashionable St. Chrysostom's church with a reception following at the Casino. In every detail the wedding will be characterized by the freshness and gayety associated with youth and spring.

A retinue of the bride's most intimate friends will precede her to the altar where she and Mr. Chatillon will exchange their vows after the Rev. Dudley S. Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's.

Miss Margot Reid, who is a student at the Concord academy, will be her sister's maid of honor, and Joan Reid will be the flower girl. Attending as bridesmaids will be Miss Ethel Johnston, Miss Nancy Doering, Miss Frances Jeffery, Miss Ellen Wacker, and Miss Priscilla Morse, all debutantes of this season; Miss Josephine Templeton, who was a bud last year, and Miss Jane Chatillon of Syracuse, the bridegroom's sister.

Lefens Porter Will Be Best Man.

Lefens Porter will serve as his cousin's best man, and ushering will be William D. Dunning of Syracuse, the bridegroom's brother-in-law; William Madlener and his twin brother, Otto; William A. Little, Richard K. Juergens, Franz Anderson, and Morgan Collins.

The many pre-nuptial festivities will wind up today with the luncheon the Madlener brothers are giving at the Saddle and Cycle club. Guests at this, among others, will be the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Ralph F. Chatillon, and his older sister, Mrs. Dunning, who are here from Syracuse, as well as his younger sister, Miss Jane Chatillon, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Dunning, members of the bridal party. Mrs. Chatillon is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Lefens; Mr. and Mrs. Dunning are with Mrs. Frank S. Porter and her son, Lefens Porter, and Miss Jane is with her grandmother, Mrs. Theis Lefens.

Junior League Picks Cast for "Snow White."

A large and impressive cast has been selected for "Snow White," the Junior League Children's theater production which will have its first performance on Saturday morning, Jan. 26, at one of the downtown theaters, with Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman Jr. [Emily Pope] as the little Princess Snow White. The twenty-one actresses may be found hard at work every morning on the stage of either the Selwyn or the Harris theater.

Of course, every one is familiar with the story of Snow White, the little princess with hair as black as coal, skin as white as snow and lips as red as blood, who was treated cruelly by her stepmother, the queen [Miss Beth Coleman], and who, with the aid of some dwarfs [Miss Veronese Beatty, Mrs. John T. Beatty, Mrs. Theron Chapman, Miss Virginia Hobart, Mrs. Robert McKenna and Mrs. Raymond Owen], lives through attempted pot-

Heaps Praises on John Whorf Water Colors

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two fascinating little exhibits have the distinction of being the first of the 1935 season. Water colors by John Whorf are to be seen in the O'Brien galleries and paintings by Irving Manoir and Marjorie Kellberg are installed in the Allerton gallery. Mr. Manoir's paintings are from work that he executed abroad; Miss Kellberg is showing studies of the World's Fair.

The water colors by John Whorf leave one breathless, they are so extraordinarily fine. In a flash Whorf has overtaken himself and left his former records, they too of note, far behind.

Here he reveals himself as a brilliant successor to Winslow Homer and to Zorn. His nudes have all the strength of composition and firmness of flesh as had the great Swedish etcher's, and his mountain streams and lakes have all the beauty of Homer's Adirondack sketches.

Some of the finest of these water colors are in the modern vein, fresh and spontaneous and rich in warm color, showing the backs of houses stretching down a hill and opening into little squares of yard where a family wash flies on the line or the early blossoms of a fruit tree give a pink radiance to what the casual eye might consider a rather bleak aspect.

Whorf turns the most tenement-like place into paradise with his introduction of contrasting walls, light, sun, shadow and a banner of foliage or flower. A suggestion of the French school is seen in a gray corner, Utrillo was so fond of corners, but the chief impression one receives in water color after water color is that here we have the essence of Whorf's genius, his brilliant craftsmanship at its finest.

One magnificent boat painting reassures us that he has not deserted the sea, which before now has yielded him his most fruitful harvest of subjects. This one painting is a stunner.

His amusing street scene with a waltzing bear and an excited circle of men is well done, but for sheer beauty one must turn to the sailing boat or the white house on the hill, or that other climbing road through the soft gray veil of falling rain.

Wedding Plans

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Miss Mabel Adele Lamy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Lamy, will become the bride of DeWitt James Purcell of St. Cloud, Minn., son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Purcell, in a service at 9 o'clock the morning of Feb. 23 at St. Mary of the Lake church. The ceremony will be followed by a wedding breakfast. Miss Georgina Marie Lamy will be maid of honor for her sister. Thomas Purcell of St. Cloud will be the best man.

Joan Crawford Makes Friend of Helen Hayes

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Helen Hayes and Joan Crawford have become pals. Miss Crawford has entertained at little quiet dinner parties for Helen three times lately and tomorrow night Helen is giving a return party for Joan and special friends, which include Franchot Tone and Jerry Asher.

Joan Crawford finds it hard to apply the correct adjectives to her unbounding admiration of Helen Hayes as an actress, and that's how the friendship began. Helen, in turn, thinks Joan is smart on looks, admires her generosity and her loyal disposition; besides which Miss Hayes, who ought to know, thinks pretty well of her new friend's acting ability.

Invitations to Joan Crawford's small dinner parties are locally much appreciated, but rarely received. Miss Crawford has always been shy about inviting celebrities into her home in groups; she makes friends one at a time and makes them stanchly.

The usual crowd at one of her evenings at home comes in dinner clothes and generally includes Tone, Madge Evans, Lynn Riggs, the playwright; sometimes Francis Lederer and often Jean Dixon or Joan's newly divorced sister-in-law, Kasha Haroldi.

John Boettiger, newly appointed member of Will Hays' staf, is paying his first business visit to Hollywood. Until recently Boettiger was on the Washington staf of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

French Makers Offer Clothes for Tiny Tots

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It takes French designers to suit all ages of shoppers or thrill discriminating people who want something different.

Look at the new collection of fascinating imports for the youngsters. Until you have seen wee little frocks made with an inimitable French flair for the unusual in dainty embroidery, pastel colors, tiny tiny tucks and general fashion appeal you have missed a lot.

Dotted swiss frocks have clusters of hand run tucks, bits of hand work such as wee little yokes and puffed sleeves inset with narrow hemstitching—every loop taken by hand. Soft pinks, pale yellows, and soft blues together with white comprise one of the most alluring collections of imports you ever lost your heart over.

Have you heard of Pram sacques? They are just what they sound, diminutive bits of jackets fashioned like your own bed jackets. You'll find them in pink and blue silk and they are to wear with dress parade frocks when your infant is parked in the pram inside or out.

Linen for the younger set is just as smart as for the grown-up fashions and these French creations are as exquisitely made as any model from any famous French dressmaker. Narrow edgings of white are the only decoration.

And you should see the scraps of sun suits in pastel colored linen for the tiny tots taken down to sun tan on southern beaches. They're far different from the ordinary small things you have been seeing. They are microscopic pits of panties topped with a lattice arrangement of straps in front and the usual criss cross in back, but they are devastatingly French to the last infinitesimal stitch in the waist band.

From the tiny "woolies," the one piece pale pink all-to-gethers for a year old baby, to the pale blue two piece knits for the older child the collection presents miracles of softness, French charm and individuality.

One sweater coat is a winner. It's almost a middy jacket, long, with two flapped pockets and a half belt and four metal buttons down the front.

Lawyers Organize to Support Activities of Globe Players

Members of the Chicago Bar association yesterday organized a committee to promote interest in the Globe Theater Shakespearean players, now appearing at the Studebaker theater. George F. Anderson, vice chairman of the hospitality committee of the association, was named chairman of the new group, to be known as the Lawyers' Globe Theater Shakespeare Players committee.

"It is the hope of our committee to show the way for other civic bodies in the support of this very admirable company," said Mr. Anderson. "The company should be encouraged in its ambition to make Chicago the great Shakespearean center of the universe."

The Globe Players and their director, Thomas Wood Stevens, will be guests of the bar association at a luncheon next Thursday. The cast will give several sketches from its répertoire.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the large Russian estate of his stepfather and grew up with a peasant couple and their large brood of children, until his mother got him an English tutor. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant roles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and is anxious to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin. She is the widow of an executed engineer. Though English, her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also anxious to obtain from her a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. They stop at the home of the grandparents of the peasant children, who believe Stephen to be one of their many grandchildren. Stephen tells them Elizabeth is his wife and her name is Varvara. Akulina dislikes the frail woman, as she does Irina, a beautiful communist friend of Stephen's. Irina wanted Stephen herself and resents Elizabeth. Stephen knows she might prove dangerous. He plans to get away with Elizabeth the next time Yuri goes to market.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

IN FLIGHT.

In the morning there was a frozen whiteness everywhere under a heavy lowering sky. Stephen and Yuri went out to make a path to the cowshed and the barn. Presently Stephen came back alone.

"We're off," he said. "Yuri's getting out the sledge. He's grumbling like anything, but he's really quite pleased, because he'll get a fabulous price in Tronsk for Akulina's eggs and a couple of the cheeses they've been hiding. The hens have laid so well this week that if they were any one else's Akulina would say it was witchcraft.

The sledge was much more comfortable than the cart had been. It ran smoothly over the crisp snow, under which lay buried the ruts and potholes of their journey from Tronsk. Yuri drove. The horse went gayly to a tinkling of bells. Elizabeth, well wrapped from the biting cold, found herself strangely happy. Pleasant to be flying along like this—pleasant to be leaving the village behind—pleasant to be getting away from Irina. Before she knew what she was going to say, she had spoken Irina's name.

"Irina—why did she go away like that?"

"She went to the collective farm," said Stephen without any expression in his voice.

"Why?"

He merely shrugged his shoulders.

"She often goes there."

Pleasant to be flying like this . . . pleasant to be leaving the village behind . . . pleasant to be getting away from Irina.

Elizabeth had a quick, vivid memory of what she had seen when she came into the barn—Irina holding Stephen by the arm, leaning to him, speaking low and earnestly, with the glow in her cheeks which gave her a warmer beauty. Why had she begun to speak about Irina? If there was something between her and Stephen, he would not tell her. Why should he? She was just a stranger whom he was befriending at a great risk to himself because she was his countrywoman. Why should he tell her about his private affairs? She felt suddenly cold and desolate. A shiver ran over her, and at once Stephen asked:

"Are you cold?"

"No."

"You shivered."

"I'm not cold."

Stephen considered this for a moment. Then he said:

"You sounded angry."

It would be quite dreadful if he were to think that she was angry about Irina. She said quickly in a laughing voice:

"You don't know how I sound when I'm angry."

Stephen said: "No—that's true." And then, with one of his sudden changes of subject: "I want to talk to you about Petroff. Do you mind?"

At any other moment Elizabeth would have minded. She would not, perhaps, have said so, but she would have winced a little. At this moment, and as an alternative to Irina, Petroff was positively welcome. She said quite truthfully:

"No, I don't mind."

Stephen leaned back beside her.

"Well, then, I've been thinking a lot about Petroff's position. You see, the whole thing is a good deal like that game called devil in the dark. I don't know if you ever played it. You put out all the lights, and one person is He. The others are all trying to get out of the room without being caught. You have to listen like mad and guess where He is, and what He's doing, before you move a step. That's why I want to talk about Petroff—I've got to guess what he's likely to do. To begin with—is he in love with you?"

Elizabeth's lip lifted a little.

"I shouldn't call it that."

"Well, it's more a question of what he would call it—isn't it?"

"He called it being in love," said Elizabeth.

"Sometimes that sort of thing is just a passing fancy with a fellow like Petroff, but sometimes it takes a pretty strong hold. I'm awfully sorry to bother you about this, but you're the only person I can ask—I can't very well go to Petroff. I hope you don't mind."

"Why should I mind?" said Elizabeth. Petroff was no longer the last horror of a nightmare.

"Well, then, have you any idea how deep this went with him?"

Elizabeth's brows drew together.

"I don't really know. I should say not very deep. But he likes getting his own way. I've heard him boast that nobody ever got the better of him."

"You think he'd try and find you?"

"I think he'd try and find the formula."

"Yes—if he thought you'd got it. He really does think so?"

"I don't know. He may have been trying to torment me. I don't know. I believe he does think I know something."

Stephen nodded thoughtfully.

"Then I figure it out this way: He'll try very hard to find you. He's not in terribly good odor at present—I've heard that from more than one quarter. A lot of the communists in power are very strict about things like drink, and it's perfectly well known that Petroff is a good deal too fond of the vodka bottle. If he hadn't been a really clever mining engineer he'd have got the sack long ago. If he could produce a new aluminum alloy which would assure them a lead in the manufacture of aircraft, it would be bound to give him a new lease of political life. That's how it looks to me. So when I heard he was at the collective farm I thought we'd better get a move on."

Elizabeth drew a sharp breath of dismay.

Stephen nodded.

"I heard yesterday."

"The farm Irina went to?"

"That's the one."

Elizabeth's eyes were on him, wide and startled.

"Do they know each other, Irina and Petroff?"

"O Lord, yes! Irina knows every one. She was one of the people who told me that Petroff was in for it unless he mended his ways."

"I see——" said Elizabeth.

Petroff and Irina—Irina and Petroff. . . . The names linked themselves in her mind. Irina had gone to the collective farm. . . .

Stephen's voice came through her thoughts.

"I wanted to ask you about that formula. You haven't got it written down anywhere?"

"No. Nicolas said it wouldn't be safe."

"Yes—he was right. You wouldn't know how to hide it." He paused, and then added briskly, "But I should."

Elizabeth looked at him in surprise.

"Do you want me to write it down?"

"Yes. I think so."

"Why?" said Elizabeth.

"Well, it's rather difficult to explain. I was thinking you might easily forget a bit of it—and—several other things like that."

"What sort of things?"

He shook his head. Impossible to tell her just what their chances were of getting clear, or that he might use the formula to bargain her free. It wasn't that he had thought out any plan. It was merely the old sense that knowledge was power.

soning and expulsion to confound her stepmother.

The witch is played by Mrs. Stephen Harrington. Her assistant, a huge black cat, is played by Mrs. Richard M. Lamport [Julia Kramer]. Mrs. Cecil I. Crouse [Elizabeth Bunting] takes the part of the young prince. Miss Jean Milsted plays Berthold, a young forester and huntsman who just couldn't bear to cut off Snow White's head as the queen ordered, and Mrs. J. Allen Newton plays the part of a beggar woman who gives Snow White a poisoned apple.

Mary Garden Will Give Concert Here.

One of the smartest, most interesting events of the midwinter is set for the evening of Jan. 25 at the Casino with Mary Garden returning to Chicago to give a Debussy concert. The concert has especial significance since it will present the dashing prima donna in the duo-rôle of lecturer-artist. In addition to singing a number of Debussy compositions, she will tell of the life and work of the composer and her accompanist will illustrate the talk by playing a number of the composer's works.

The concert is being arranged by a dozen of Miss Garden's best friends here, including Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mrs. Sewell B. Avery, and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter. The plan provides for at least 400 of the town's smartest folk to hear Miss Garden. She is giving a similar concert in New York the 22d.

From Troy, N. Y., there is relayed this morning the announcement of the engagement of Miss Sheila Haynes Connolly, daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Connolly, to Roland Voorhees, son of Henry Belin Voorhees and the late former Mrs. Voorhees of 1530 State parkway. Miss Connolly is a member of the Troy Junior league. Mr. Voorhees is now in his senior year at Princeton.

Tell Engagement of Ruth Heaney.

Dr. and Mrs. N. Sproat Heaney of Chicago and Glen Ellyn today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Alice, to Dr. Douglas Laten Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Potter of West Palm Beach, Fla. Miss Heaney attended the University School for Girls and was graduated from the Castilleja school at Palo Alto, Cal., and from Gulf Park college. She is studying now at the American Academy of Fine Arts.

Dr. Potter attended the University of North Carolina and Rush Medical college and now is interning at St. Luke's hospital. He is a member of the Beta Theta Phi and Phi Chi fraternities.

Dr. and Mrs. Heaney have closed their apartment at 233 East Walton place and are spending the winter at their Glen Ellyn farm.

An announcement made in Pittsburgh on New Year's eve that is of interest to Chicagoans is the one that Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Andrew Davis made of the engagement of their daughter, Sara Elizabeth, to George P. Braun, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Scudder of Scott street.

Scavenger Hunt to Be Staged Tonight.

Two dozen of society's young folk tonight are going on a scavenger hunt planned by those two enterprising sisters, Fleury and Hope Leonard. They're giving the party, preceded by dinner at the apartment of their mother, Mrs. David R. Forgan, at 209 Lake Shore drive, for Miss Gwendolyn Bowen, a debutante of the season.

A popular place tonight will be Diana court of the Michigan Square building, where the Vassar alumnæ of the Chicago district are to have a party for the benefit of their scholarship fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer are giving a tea tomorrow afternoon in their Walton place apartment for Miss Elsie McCormick, Mrs. Ayer's sister. Miss McCormick arrived from New York recently to spend a month, a yearly custom. She is at the Pearson hotel.

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations will present Prof. Samuel N. Harper as the guest speaker at its luncheon today in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. Mr. Harper, who is a professor of Russian language and institutions at the University of Chicago, has returned from a fourth visit to Russia.

Ice Carnival at Exmoor Club.

North shore youngsters and grownups alike are anticipating the annual ice carnival this afternoon and evening at the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park. The afternoon is to be devoted to races and games for boys and girls.

Both in the afternoon and the evening the guests will come in costume. In the evening there is to be an exhibition of fancy skating.

In addition to a concert by Jascha Heifetz tomorrow afternoon at Orchestra hall, which will benefit the sick, robbed, bewildered, and deluded travelers cared for by the Travelers' Aid society, there will be another concert at the Studebaker theater in which society also is interested.

Mario Fiorello, young baritone of the Chicago Grand Opera company, is giving his first concert at the Studebaker. Mr. Fiorello will sing two songs, "The Garden" and "Greed," written by Mrs. Frank G. Logan and sung for the first time.

The Philip K. Wrigleys will be back in Chicago tomorrow morning. They are coming from Phoenix, Ariz.

Joachim Merlant, the young exchange professor of the University of Paris to the University of Chicago, will lecture at noon today in the library of the Alliance Française in the Fine Arts building. Robert Hall McCormick, president of the alliance, will preside.

Mrs. Edward B. Smith, the former Louise Dewey, is the latest Chicagoan to be honored by France. On Wednesday, following a lecture by Mrs. John Storrs to the junior members, M. Rene Weiller, French consul general, will present Mrs. Smith with a bronze medal engraved with the words "The Republic of France." Mrs. Smith has been vice president of the junior organization for the last three years.

BY MARY MEADE.

Sitting here this morning munching a rusk I'm wondering how many of you have ever discovered just what numerous and scrumptious things can be done with these brown circles and rectangles of sweet toast? They come in cartons at your grocers—you know—different brands, sizes, and shapes, but all delicious and bubbling with possibilities.

Just for instance—more than ever we're on the lookout these days for snacks which will tempt the lads and lassies at late Sunday night suppers. One especially likeable tidbit I've discovered to be—

CHEESE CRUNCHIES.

You'll need nothing more elaborate than rusks, a package or so of nippy, spreadable cheese, and strips of bacon. Spread the rusks with generous swaths of the cheese, drape a strip of bacon over each cheese-topped rusk and toast these just below the broiler burner until the cheese melts and the bacon is crisped. Serve on a hot platter with tufts of parsley for contrast.

Lots of luscious creamed dishes—chicken or ham à la king, creamed vegetables sporting a cheese or Hollandaise sauce, or eggs in a savory white sauce—take on a new tingle when we put them in rusk cases. Simply remove the center of the rusk carefully with a teaspoon, leaving a thin patty shell. Heat the shells piping hot in the oven, then spoon in the chosen filling and serve at once.

Or rusks enjoy adding their own particular flavor to meat loaves, croquettes, souffles—even to such noble institutions as tortes and pastries. A salmon loaf which is really quite a meal in itself is made in this way:

SALMON LOAF.

1 pound can salmon
2 cups rusk crums
2 stalks celery, chopped fine
1½ tablespoons butter, melted
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
1 egg, well beaten
Hot milk

Bone the salmon, break it in pieces, and combine with the rusk crums, chopped celery, butter, seasoning, and beaten egg. Add enough hot milk to moisten thoroughly and make the mixture packable. Grease a baking pan and fill with the salmon mixture. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] until well heated through. Or line a greased mold with slices of hard cooked eggs, fill in the salmon mixture and boil for one hour. Turn out and serve hot with drawn butter or cold with mayonnaise and lettuce.

Soups—especially chowders and such thick affairs—are made even more tantalizing when poured into bowls in which have been broken crisp rusks. Or for the speediest sort of supper treat, open a can of the French style onion soup made with French fried onions, and blended with cheese. Into each bowl drop a whole rusk and pour in the soup. Sprinkle the top, if you wish, with additional grated Parmesan cheese.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Designed for Wool Crepe

3351

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

Here is a darling little dress you can make for yourself, and you'll be proud of it, too. A navy blue wool crêpe with bright, orangy-red criss-cross design made the original model. If you want it to be rather dressy, what about choosing a ruby-red velveteen or a bright red wool crêpe? For parties a rustling taffeta with ruffled sleeves would be adorable.

The pattern, No. 3351, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, and 16 years.

Rinsing Teeth in Salt Water Good Hygiene

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We met some one the other day who has rare teeth for his forty some odd years. He thanks his mother for these healthy teeth, and her early enforcement of the salt mouth wash habit. Not as a substitute for brushing, of course, but as an additional precaution.

His father's parents before him had instilled the salt mouth wash habit in their boy. Mother took the cue from her husband and, as said, began early with her son. It's an old family heirloom, really, this salt mouth wash. I recall reading of an old man of 70 whose perfect teeth made him a figure to interview. He gave cleaning his teeth and mouth with salt the credit.

Sometimes to the salt solution is added a pinch of baking soda, or sodium bicarbonate. It does not clean the teeth. It is not a substitute for the tooth brush. But as a rinsing solution it has highly commendable points.

A teaspoonful of salt to one pint of water is the solution. Warm water is thought best, more efficient for rinsing the debris loosened by the brush. A small quantity only should be taken into the mouth at once, for the entire value of the rinse is forcing it between the teeth with as much pressure as possible. A large mouthful of the solution makes this difficult. A glassful of the solution and a full minute's time is suggested by one of our noted dental authorities as necessary to a thorough rinsing.

He, too, warns that the tooth brush is the cleansing agent. No surface of the tooth can be cleaned unless it is brushed well.

Salt takes on another mouth hygiene value in its use as a brush sterilizer. Many dentists advise that salt be sprinkled on the brush before it is put away. It acts to keep the bristles stiff as well as a sterilizer.

One of the tooth brush manufacture advances is seen in a pair of brushes, one with light colored bristles, the other with dark or unbleached bristles. This, so there'll be no confusion about which brush was used last; also, to establish the valuable two-brush habit, used alternately.

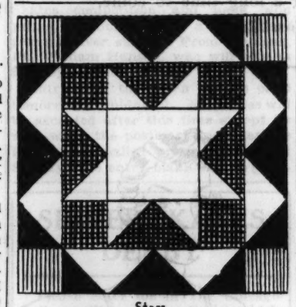
Utilize Scraps in Piecing This Old Time Quilt



Stars.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Stars" is a lovely pattern in which to utilize various scraps. It is one of those bright, colorful, and slightly modern designs especially adapted to the use of many shades of blue, rose, yellow, and white. The completed blocks measure 12 inches square, and twenty-one pieced and twenty-one plain blocks made an entire quilt.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower.

Let Child Who Is Left Handed Stay That Way

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Would you mind if we started the day with a quarrel? It's my own little private quarrel, and this is the only spot where it can take place and do any one any good.

One of my quarrels is with one of my own favorites in the field of child guidance and the other is with several other authorities in the same field. Both, I believe, convey ideas which are misleading to parents and so interfere with the right attitude toward and wise handling of their children.

The first idea put forward that I object to is the one that contrariness is natural to children—that it is normal for small children, if you tell them to do something, to want to do just the opposite. Well, I don't believe it. When children are contrary it's because somebody has mismanaged them and aroused a resistance or some antagonism in them. I don't think contrariness is inherent.

The other idea which I believe to be a misconception is that children instinctively want the center of the stage. Yes, you've heard me say that children do things because they want the limelight—but not that they instinctively want it.

When children consciously or otherwise make a constant bid for attention it is for one of two reasons: either that they have been fed on the attention of adults so excessively that they have developed an unwholesome craving for it or because they are starved for love and interest and try to fill that void by doing anything at all which they have found satisfies the human need we all have for appreciation and responsiveness.

To interpret in a basic way these two kinds of behavior—contrariness and the desire for attention—helps parents to a broader understanding of their children and fits them to better deal with them.

In connection with contrariness we have two fully written booklets—one on "Stubbornness" and one on the "No Habit." Either will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

James McMillan of D. & C. Lines Is Married in East

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Miss Virginia Cutting, daughter of Mrs. George B. Cutting of this city, and James McMillan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thayer McMillan of Grosse Pointe, Mich., were married today in the First Unitarian church. Mr. McMillan is in business with his father, president of the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company.

The Stage

"Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," a byword among the melodramas of the 1900s, is the showboat Dixiana's contribution to the theatricals of the new year. It deals with the attempts of Mr. and Mrs. Villain upon the life of a poor working girl [really an heiress] adrift in New York. The heroine is chloroformed, tossed into a lake with a weight around her neck, hurled into a dangerous machine, abducted under gunfire in a motor boat, endangered by arson in a tenement fire, and placed in the iron arms of "Isis," a lay figure designed for strangling purposes. She survives these perils, however, and ends as the bride of a heroic fireman, with the plotters dead at her feet.

This bizarre specimen of the American folk drama of the past generation is one of the Dixiana's liveliest shows. The "refined specialties" of the intermissions also give the customers plenty of old-fashioned amusement. A veteran of the minstrel troupes, 74 years old, twangs the banjo cleverly and illustrates the outworn art of rattling the "bones." C. C.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON RESPONDER'S PROCEDURE AFTER A THREE BID.

Yesterday I showed why the responder must answer his partner's questions immediately even if, in order to do so, he must show a called-for king while suppressing information about a second and so far unbid ace. Nevertheless, the responder must feel free to volunteer information ON THE CONDITION THAT HE WILL NOT THEREBY GET THE BIDDING TO A HIGHER LEVEL THAN OPENER HAS ARRANGED FOR.

In the first place, if you have two aces, the second ace can hardly be a duplication. It is just possible that your partner is void of two suits, but very unlikely. If so, he would probably have used a two-bid, as I will explain next week. Consequently, you may, as responder, always take the risk of getting the bidding a round higher in order to show a second ace PROVIDED THAT YOU DO NOT TAKE OR DRIVE THE CONTRACT BEYOND SIX because it is always possible that your partner may be without the ace of trumps: that he may on the strength of some positive information already received from you go straight to six, knowing now that the trump ace is the only loser and that it is held by the enemy, as you failed to show it on your first response. For the responder now to bid seven just because he has a second ace which he has not been asked or allowed to show would be insane. Never do this. The only time when responder may take the bid from six to seven is if he knows that opener has bid six EXPECTING TO LOSE A TRUMP TRICK OTHER THAN THE ACE.

If responder has K x or Q x x of trumps, he may now bid seven if he has rushed quickly to six, as such bidding means that he is allowing for a trump loser other than the ace, not knowing that responder can eliminate that loser. True, if the bidding has shown that declarer can get to dummy, he might be gambling on a trump finesse against the queen, as with A K J 10 x x x, and bid six with some other loser; but I advise against this for the very reason here explained—that responder should be allowed to bid the queen of trumps after the rest of the business is over. There is the risk that dummy is void of trumps, so that the finesse cannot be taken even if the queen is on declarer's right; or again, quite probably it can only be taken once, and that will be useless if the right-hand opponent has Q x x x. I know it is tempting to bet a slam on a trump finesse—but I am sure it is sounder to refrain from this.

The wiser policy is to count a trump loser as a loser, and so permit the responding hand to bid again if he can eliminate a trump loser. This will preserve the accuracy of your grand-slam bidding, for partner can then bid the queen or king of trumps, knowing that you were positively expecting to lose to that card and had not included it as a nonloser because you hoped to catch it by a finesse.

Volunteering Information About a King.

If your partner knows that you have no other ace to show, and you know he knows it, you are free to show an uncalled-for king provided that you do not increase the ultimate bid by doing so. This is a kind of leeway constructive bid. For instance, partner bids three spades and you bid four clubs. Now every one knows you have no second ace. He next calls for the king of diamonds. You lack this king, but have the king of hearts. Bid four hearts—opener can still sign off at four spades if that piece of information does not help him. Had you neither king, you would have yourself signed off at four spades. The information about the king heart is here given absolutely free and without any risk. You have already denied that ace, as your only reason for bidding hearts is to show the king or else a void of hearts. Just one more point.

NEVER BID A VOID UNLESS YOU HAVE AS MANY AS THREE TRUMPS, or otherwise you may not be able to ruff at all. If the opponent on lead has ace and another trump and also the ace of your void suit, he will ruin you by leading ace and another trump and then you are wrecked. Even if the leader lacks the ace of trumps, an immediate trump lead may ruin declarer's ruffing facilities unless dummy has three trumps. So bear this stipulation in mind when you [as the responding hand] are void of a suit.

LOUIS WINS; FLOORS PERRONI THREE TIMES

BIG TEN TEAMS BEGIN RACE FOR TITLE TONIGHT

Purdue Five Plays at Wisconsin.

Games Tonight

CONFERENCE.
Purdue at Wisconsin.
Indiana at Illinois.
Ohio State at Iowa.

NONCONFERENCE.
Marquette at Chicago.
Notre Dame at Minnesota.

The annual free for all, known as the championship race, will start in the Big Ten tonight when six teams open their twelve game fight for the title now held by Purdue.

BUD FOSTER.

Games are scheduled at Madison, where Wisconsin entertains Purdue; at Champaign, where Illinois meets Indiana, and at Iowa City, where Iowa is host to Ohio State. Two other games tonight involve conference teams, but, since they are scheduled against nonconference competition, the result will be hailed if the Big Ten representatives are victorious and laughed off if beaten. Notre Dame plays Minnesota at Minneapolis and Marquette comes to Chicago.

Purdue Is Favorite.

Purdue, unbeaten in six early season games, is favored to retain the Big Ten championship, principally because of its scoring strength. The Boilermakers have averaged 40 points per game in their contests to date and are expected to be the hardest team to stop, although Northwestern, which is idle, and Wisconsin are not regarded lightly by any one.

The championship race is generally a miss and out affair, since only 12 games are played by each team, and the ten contestants are usually so evenly matched that no definite form chart can be drawn for the season's play.

Purdue's last victory was over Marquette, which split its annual home and home series with Wisconsin.

Purdue remained at Milwaukee after the game to practice on the Marquette floor for its game at Madison tonight. Although the Boilermakers' starting lineup contains only two of the regulars who piled up the conference scoring record last year, the two men, Co-Capt. Norm Cottom and Bud Shaver, have been surrounded with capable reserves and newcomers to keep the scoring strength of the combination nearly on a par with that of last season's quintet.

Badgers Are Shifted.

Wisconsin, making its first conference start under its new coach, Bud Foster, a former Badger star who replaced Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, now athletic director, has undergone several shifts during the practice period as Foster sought speed and height. The frequent changes, however, have not made much difference in the starting lineup and the Badgers are expected to take the floor tonight with the same men who have opened nearly all previous games this year.

They are Nick De Mark and Pete Preboski at forwards, Ed Stege at center, and Gil McDonald and Chub Poser at guards.

Illinois opens its Big Ten schedule with a prayer that sophomore material will measure up to conference standards. Against Indiana it will be put to a test, but despite the fact that the Hoosiers come from what is generally conceded to be the cradle of basketball, Illinois will in all probability not find the invaders the hardest quintet on its schedule. The Indiana squad, composed of 13 men, left Bloomington yesterday by bus for Champaign.

Jim Vopicka, sophomore guard from Berwyn, who played on Morton High school's state championship team, will be in Illinois' starting lineup. Vopicka showed promise as a scoring guard against Wabash Wednesday.

Bob Riegel, sophomore center, although 6 feet 4 inches tall, will be opposed by superior height in Fechtman, Indiana's 6 foot 9 inch pivot man. Froschauer and Guttschow as forwards and Beynon at guard complete the Illini starting combination.

Hawkeyes Lack Height.

Iowa, twice beaten in its half dozen practice games, has averaged 32 points per game and has high hopes of being among the leaders come spring. The Hawkeyes, however, are at a disadvantage against most conference teams because their best men do not measure up to the bean-pole proportions of most Big Ten players.

The two nonconference games, although regarded as practice encounters, will not be without their excitement and might even develop more sensational basketball. Chicago, bolstered by the return of Bill Haarlow, last year's mainstay, who has been ineligible for early season games, is expected to assume the proportions of a contender and make a much better showing against the Milwaukee five, to which it lost last month.

Notre Dame, back from a successful tour of the east despite the loss to New York university at Madison Square Garden, will prepare the Gophers for their first Big Ten game next week.

Cubs Release Don Hurst to Columbus; Sox Sign 30

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Charley Grimm yesterday announced from his vice presidential suite in the Wrigley building that the Cubs had sold First Baseman Don Hurst to Columbus of the American Association, then ran across the street to the Medinah club bathhouse, where he had three masseurs play xylophone selections on that section of his own anatomy wherein lumbago is known to dwell.

The departure of Hurst was not exactly a surprise, though it furnished further credence of reports that Grimm, who got into only 74 games last year because of recurrent attacks of the aforesaid lumbago, has his mind set on the notion that he can stage a big comeback.

Charley Does Some Bowling.

The move also involves the thought that Charley meant it when he announced at the major league meeting last month that he was not going to be prejudiced against Phil Cavaretta simply because Phil is only 19 and possessed of brief professional experience. If the masseurs do not chase the lumbago into permanent hiding, the Lane Tech kid unquestionably will be the Cubs' regular first baseman, reports about Jim Bottomley, et al., notwithstanding.

Grimm has been engaged in the most rigorous off season training course of his career. Charley started as a handball opponent for Assistant Manager Gabby Hartnett, but now takes his daily workout regardless of whether Gabby shows up. In addition to his gym, handball, and bathhouse work, the Cub skipper has taken up bowling. One of his scores yesterday was only 128, but a bowler can sometime sweat more over a 128 than a 225.

Hurst's Collapse Startling.

The collapse of Hurst as an outstanding first baseman and hitter involved a combination of sinus and hypochondria, among other adverse elements, that was startling in its force. In 1929, his second year with the Phillies, Don batted .304, and in the three years immediately succeeding that year rang up marks of .327, .305, and .339. In 1929 he played in 154 games, and in the next three years 119, 137, and 150.

In 1933 Hurst played in 147 games, but finished with a batting percentage of only .267. The falling off, however, was attributed to discontent over his progress in the Philly counting room. It was figured he would bloom anew if placed with another club.

On last June 10 the Cubs traded Dolph Camilli for Hurst. Instead of being elated at the change, however, Hurst apparently was seized with a case of "buckfever." Always a loose, graceful player with the Phils, Don forthwith tightened up and several times, according to teammates, was afflicted with severe nervous attacks, one such coming even after he had knocked a home run. Since last August the Cubs had tried to place the likable 29 year old athlete in a spot where he would have a chance for a comeback.

30 Sox Signed.

Owner Lou Comiskey of the White Sox yesterday said he had received the signed contracts of 30 of the 33 players on the Sox roster. One of the three unsigned is presumed to be Luke Appling, who has been careless about such matters ever since he joined the club. Luke usually forgets the opening date of the spring training season and the location of the camp.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Jan. 4.—(AP)—This college town tonight was on edge to greet the University of Alabama Rose Bowl football heroes. Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock the celebration will begin for all from Millard Howell down to the last reserve who played only a moment or so against Stanford on New Year's day.

Capt. Bill Lee, Coach Frank Thomas and others of the party will speak, and most everyone in Tuscaloosa will join in the shouts of welcome. The university band will blare forth the Tide's battle songs and lead the victory parade through Tuscaloosa and out to the university.

3 PLAYGROUNDS ENTER SILVER SKATES DERBIES

Henry, Hawthorne, and Budlong File.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Three board of education playgrounds—Henry, Hawthorne and Budlong—yesterday filed their lists of entries for the eighteenth annual Silver Skates derbies, which will be held Jan. 12 and 13 at the Waveland avenue arena, one block north of Addison street and east of Sheridan road. These playgrounds always have been centers of athletic interest and under the guidance of their instructors they have compiled splendid records in all sports.

The Henry playground skaters are coached by John A. Mock. The Hawthorne playground skaters are entered by Instructor Jack Desmond and G. C. Mueller, instructor at Budlong, has prepared a group of skaters from which he hopes will come several to win some of the thirty-five individual prizes offered for the seven events.

Henry in All Meets.

Henry playground enters in all meets and the team includes a list of girl skaters as well as boys. In all, Henry playground will be represented by seventy-three skaters. Fifteen of these will compete in the boys' midget division for youngsters under twelve years of age.

Budlong playground's team numbers fifteen while Jack Desmond has entered thirty-seven skaters, twelve of them in the midget class, from Hawthorne playground.

The preliminaries for the boys' midget, boys' juvenile, and boys' junior classes—all for skaters under 16 years of age—will be held a week from this afternoon starting at 2 o'clock. This arrangement gives these youngsters the whole show for that day and they will not be "pushed around" by the more experienced contestants. Racing numbers will be passed out to these groups from 12 o'clock until a half hour before the first preliminary.

Out of Towners Enter.

Competition is not to be confined to Chicago and the immediate suburbs. No one is barred, of course, but naturally it requires more effort that boys and girls who live at a distance to make the trip to Chicago for the Silver Skates derbies. Yesterday's mail revealed a few of the out of town contestants as follows:

From South Bend, Ind., Harry Rosen, 13; Irvin Rosen, 16, and Tilda Jane Rosen, 11 years of age. From Elgin, Ill., Alyce Ehlert, who will skate in the girls' senior class. From Cedar Rapids, Ia., Robert Dennis, an entrant in the boys' intermediate class. The Dennis boys are well known in Silver Skates competition and have won prizes, although never a first place pair of silver skates. From Savanna, Ill., William Hanson, who will race in the boys' junior division.

Entries for the seven derbies close tomorrow at midnight. No entries will be accepted after this time except by mail when the postmark indicates the letter was mailed prior to midnight Sunday. The entry blank will be print-

MARKING UP 13TH STRAIGHT

18,000 See Bout in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Joe Louis, Chicago's 1934 Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, scored his 13th consecutive professional victory tonight by defeating Patsy Perroni, Boston heavyweight, in ten rounds. Eighteen thousand jammed the Olympia to see Louis, a Detroit boy, advance another stride toward contendership by decisively outboxing and outpunching Perroni, three time conqueror of Johnny Risko.

Louis was seeking his eleventh knockout, but the cagey Perroni's rolling defense and his remarkable stamina, which enabled him to survive three knockdowns, thwarted the murderous punches for which the colored youngster has become famous.

Floored in Second Round.

Perroni went down for a nine count in the second round when he elected to slug with Louis. A short left sent him sprawling and he rested on one knee, taking the count. When he arose he continued to shuffle away from Louis' right. This strategy saved him from disaster for four rounds, but led to serious consequences in the seventh when he overdid it and ran into another short left. The blow cut a deep gash over his eye and dropped him for another nine count. The bell ended the round before Louis could cross the ring to resume his two-fisted barrage.

The bell deprived Louis of a knockout in the ninth also. He maneuvered Perroni into a neutral corner and feinted him out of position with a right. Then a heavy left, the hardest punch of the fight, dropped the Boston veteran with a thud. He got to his feet with difficulty at the count of nine and was struggling to maintain his balance as the bell rang.

It was Louis' first important fight in Detroit since he started his climb to renown last winter in the Golden Gloves tournament. His triumph was all the more sensational since Perroni had been made the favorite on the strength of his exceptional boxing skill.

Perroni Puts Up a Fight.

It became evident as early as the second round, however, that Louis was more than a match for the shifty New Englander in ringcraft, and although Perroni's defense prevented his landing a finishing punch, Louis outboxed his lighter opponent throughout. Louis weighed 195 pounds and Perroni 187.

Perroni made only one attempt to slug with Louis, the ill-advised effort in the second round, but except in those rounds in which he was floored and retreated in self-defense, he made his share of the fight and evinced no fear of Louis' punishing blows.

Babe Hunt, the Ponca City, Okla., heavyweight, did not try any King Levinsky tactics on Max Baer, and as a result, the champion carried him through four clowning rounds in an exhibition bout.

Hunt Is Cautious.

The grinning Maxie, weighing 215 pounds, appeared in great shape as he clowned through four rounds with the somewhat anxious Oklahoma veteran. Hunt, taking warning from the fate of Levinsky recently, did not try to land anything dangerous, and at the end of the exhibition appeared well pleased at his treatment by the champion.

Buddy Stops O'Dowd.

Maxie's 19 year old brother, Buddy, was given a technical knockout over Jack O'Dowd of Detroit in the second of a six round bout. O'Dowd, ageing veteran, was knocked down five times in the first round, and Referee McClelland stopped the bout at 2:10 in the second. Baer weighed 240, O'Dowd 210.

Michigan Five Triumphs Over Buffalo, 41-21

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The University of Michigan wound up its eastern invasion tonight with a 41 to 21 victory over the University of Buffalo. In annexing their second victory in as many nights, the Wolverines staged a whirlwind second half rally to roll up 28 points after being held 13 to 13 at the half.

Tamagno, veteran forward, was the big gun for the visitors, scoring five field goals and two free throws. Lineup:

IRISHMAN PINS ERNIE DUSEK AND THEN WHIPS RUDY

Boston, Mass., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Young Dan O'Mahoney, 217 pound Irishman, made his American wrestling debut under exciting circumstances before a packed house of 15,000 tonight at the Boston Garden. After tossing Ernie Dusek, 220, of Omaha, Neb., twice he had to fight his way out of a free for all battle that started in the ring.

When Referee Sam Smith tried to raise O'Mahoney's hand as victor another member of the large Dusek wrestling clan, Rudy, who was acting as second for his younger brother, rushed into the ring and attacked O'Mahoney.

The Irishman, a boxer before entering the mat game, defended himself with such vigor that Rudy sought a new victim. He threw a right hook that cut Referee Smith's eye and, just as a detail of police swarmed into the ring, shifted his attack to Jack McGrath of Worcester, who brought O'Mahoney to this country and is acting as his American manager.

LONG ISLAND IS VICTOR, 51 TO 29, OVER DRAKE FIVE

New York, Jan. 4. — (AP) — Long Island crushed Drake, 51 to 29, in a basketball game tonight. It was Drake's fifth defeat in six games on the trip which it will wind up against George Washington at Washington tomorrow.

In the Wake of the News

ALABAMA STRENGTH.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 4.—Alabama strength, centering largely in the passing combination from Dixie Howell to Don Hutson, rather than Stanford weakness, was responsible for the Rose Bowl result, according to Pacific coast aftermath. It was one of those rare contests in which the winners played above expectations, but the losers did not collapse or fall below anticipations. All superlatives in the California lexicon have been exhausted in praise of Coach Frank Thomas and his southern champions.

Could Minnesota, Big Ten title holders, defeat either Stanford or Alabama? Middle western observers present at the spectacle returned an almost unanimous affirmative as to Stanford. Opinion varied concerning Alabama. The Wake thinks that the Gophers would have at least an even chance. Sectional partisanship would cause us to pick Minnesota if it were possible for these two elevens to meet.

To down the Crimson Tide, it would be necessary to stop Howell's passes. Two orthodox antidotes suggest themselves—hurry the passer and cover receivers. To hurry Howell on his short throws would be difficult, for Alabama has a special defense for his protection. He gets the oval away with bullet-like speed and unerring precision. On the longer throws, one from him and one from Joe Riley resulting in touchdowns, Hutson had to get down field. The passer might have been hurried there, but Stanford's cardinal sin of omission on the two touchdown throws was in allowing Hutson to get behind its secondary, playing a five man defense for just that purpose. That error was elementary. Stanford's backs are fast, but were caught flat footed. Once past the men covering him, Hutson sped to the goal line unmolested.

Some questioned Stanford judgment in attempting a forward pass in the closing minute of the second half, a pass which was intercepted and followed by the touchdown which gave Alabama a 22 to 7 lead, really determining the result. We disagree with that criticism. Stanford was trailing, 16 to 7. It was a remote possibility that the visitors, even if they secured the ball, could count again in the remaining seconds—but they did.

With no intention to detract from the greatest exhibition of air attack we have ever seen in one of football's most thrilling games, the Wake put to others what they would have attempted in Stanford's place.

Howard Jones, Southern California coach, replied: "About fifteen years ago at Iowa I thought I had a great combination of Devine to Belding. I would compare them to Howell and Hutson, but I would not say they were better. I don't think Stanford backs should be censured for their defense. I certainly would not like to try to stop that attack."

Bob Zuppke, University of Illinois coach, replied: "Howell was the deciding factor with his running, passing, and kicking. Either eleven would have won with him in the lineup Grayson also is a great player."

"But could you have stopped Howell?" we persisted.

"I don't know," replied Zuppke, "but we'd try, because that was the only way to defeat Alabama. Somehow I felt as if perhaps Stanford was not playing its strongest game. Grayson and Moscrip had been injured, although their play did not indicate it. Besides, you know, Stanford players had their quarterly examinations shortly before the game. Perhaps that took something out of them. On the other hand, Alabama showed heads-up, confident football and sent me, exponent of the open game, home with something to think about."

Paul Swengel, great University of Washington tackle under Jimmy Phelan, said: "Perhaps Howell couldn't be stopped. Considering he didn't retreat far for his throws, I'd have tried to hurry him with my guards, since he was well protected against the ends, but that might not have worked, either."

Chicagoland gridiron followers may be interested to know that Alabama received from spectators and press alike full meed of praise for its victory. There were no native son alibis, no excuses, although local sympathy naturally was with the Palo Alto eleven, most of whom are juniors, including Bobby Grayson, and will return next fall for another fling at the title and Rose Bowl participation.

MATTHEW FOLEY, EX-NEWSPAPER WRITER, IS DEAD

Matthew O. Foley, former Louisville, Ky., and Chicago newspaper man, who for 15 years was editor of Hospital Management, national magazine, died last night from a heart attack at his home in Downers Grove. He had been in ill health for three months. He was 45 years old.

Foley, a brother of Joe Foley, Chicago sports promoter, was a sports writer in Louisville and later was on the stafs of the Chicago Inter Ocean, Herald, Herald and Examiner, and Journal.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edna Murphy Foley and ten children: three brothers, Joe, and Charles and Ormond of Louisville; his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Foley, and three sisters, Mary, Catherine, and Elizabeth, all of Louisville.

JALLOS STOPPED IN THIRD ROUND BY FRANK SAGILIO

Breese, Drouillard Draw; Caserio Wins.

Frankie Sagilio, Cicero lightweight, making his first start since he lost to Davey Day, stopped Lou Jallos of Cleveland in the third round of the scheduled ten round windup last night at the Cicero stadium.

A crowd of 1,495 paid $1,469 to watch Sagilio take a beating in the first round and then come back in the second round and floor Jallos three times for nine counts. Jallos appeared groggy when he came out for the third round and Sagilio found him an easy mark to use his right hand to send the Cleveland boy to the canvas twice before Referee Tommy Gilmore stopped the bout.

Fred Caserio Wins.

Freddie Caserio, former Golden Gloves middleweight champion, won his first six round bout since he turned pro by winning over Jack Charvez of Kansas City. Caserio outboxed his opponent throughout the bout. Bus Breese and Orville Drovillard boxed an eight round draw. Lou Vines pounded out a four round decision over Hugh Allen and Al Latie beat Danny Mack in the four round opening bout.

Harry Dublinsky, Chicago boxer, will leave today to finish preparations for his ten round bout with Lou Ambers, Herkimer, N. Y., in New York next Friday. He will be accompanied by his middleweight stablemate, Solly Dukelsky, Manager Jack Eile, and Sam Buxbaum, trainer.

Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., sparred three rounds with Solly Dukelsky yesterday for his eight round main event with Billy Miller, Milwaukee, Wis., Monday. Laddie will conclude preparations today. Harry Booker, south side lightweight, will encounter Johnny Fitzpatrick in the six round semi-final.

Three of five fights to be presented at Midway arena Monday have been arranged. They will bring together Bobby Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., junior lightweight, and Le Roy [Sailor] Born, Atlanta, Ga. [5]; Joey Bozak, Blue Island, Ill., 130 pounder, and Eddie Jackson, Catholic Youth organization [5], and Sammy Adams, Chicago welterweight, and Nestor Bruggman, C. Y. O. [4].

The next card at Cicero stadium is listed for Jan. 18. . . . Frank Sagilio has been signed to appear in the windup against Young Joe Firpo or Tony Falco, both of whom are from Philadelphia. . . . Paul Dazzo, ex-Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, announced his retirement yesterday due to brittle hands. . . . Harry Garbell, another Golden Gloves graduate, is training for a comeback after a layoff of more than a year.

Champion Barney Ross commenced light workouts yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium for a ten round junior welterweight championship defense against Frank Klick at Miami, Fla., late this month. . . . Ross, who plans to depart for Miami within the next ten days, will start boxing drills Tuesday. . . . Geno Salvatore, La Salle, Ill., lightweight, and Fred Chynoweth, Manitowoc, Wis., have started training in the loop after being idle since their eight round engagement at Marigold Gardens Nov. 26.

Chairman Joe Triner of the state boxing commission will return today from a business trip to St. Paul, Minn. . . . Winfred [Moon] Mullins, Vincennes featherweight, has been ill with the flu for the last five days.

Billy Celebron, Rockford welterweight, out of action because of an injured hand, is roughing it on a farm preparatory to his return to the ring early in February. F. M.

NEW YORK NOW SAYS BAER CAN FIGHT 4 ROUNDS

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The state athletic commission today paved the way for Max Baer to appear here in bouts of less than 15 rounds. Any time the world's heavyweight champion steps into the ring, however, whether it be for four, six, eight, or ten rounds, his title must be at stake, with two judges and a referee assigned to give a decision.

The ruling modifies the commission's heretofore strict objection to exhibitions by heavyweight champions.

"Inasmuch as no challenge has been filed against Baer, although his six months' time limit has expired, the commission will permit Baer to meet any suitable man in a bout of less than fifteen rounds," said Commissioner John J. Phelan. "The distance can be four or six or eight or ten rounds or any intermediate distance acceptable to Baer. But he must understand that even in these short bouts the man he boxes must be of established ability, say of the type of James J. Braddock."

KIPKE PREDICTS GREATEST TEAM FOR OHIO STATE

A prediction that Ohio State's football team would be the strongest in the country next fall was made by Harry G. Kipke, coach of the University of Michigan eleven, before the first 1935 luncheon meeting of the Executives' club at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

The lateral pass and open style play, more widely developed by the Ohio State eleven during the last season than by other teams, will make the Buckeyes more formidable during the next season, he said.

Hinsdale's heavyweight basketball team last night handed Downers Grove its first defeat in a West Suburban conference game, 21 to 17. The Downers Grove lightweights won from Hinsdale, 24 to 17, in the second half of the double header played at Downers Grove.

Hinsdale stepped off to a 3 to 0 lead at the first quarter of the heavyweight battle, but the home team assumed a 10 to 7 advantage at the half. Hinsdale again went ahead, 16 to 15, at the next intermission. With a few minutes of play remaining, Keith dropped in a long basket and Cassels flashed in for another field goal to provide the winning margin. Heavyweight lineup:

YORK, RIVERSIDE DIVIDE.

York and Riverside also divided a double header last night, the former taking the lightweight game, 28 to 27, and Riverside heavyweights triumphing, 24 to 14, at Riverside.

Bursik paced the Riverside heavyweights, accounting for four baskets and one free throw. Price added two field goals, and Stolfa was good for three free throws and one basket. Lyons and Daniels, York guards, kept the team in the game with two baskets each.

The Riverside lightweights missed numerous free throws, which was largely responsible for their defeat. Welsh, York center, led the victors. Heavyweight lineups:

Thornton's heavyweights pulled out with a 27 to 24 victory over Bloom last night, but Bloom captured the lightweight contest, 18 to 14. Gordon McComb, veteran Thornton forward, led the winners with four baskets, and also turned in a clever floor game. McMorris, guard, helped along with three field goals and a free throw.

Reid, colored freshman center, broke through the Thornton defense for five baskets, and added a free throw, to take scoring honors for the game. Heavyweight lineups:

O'Brien Won't Give Up on Helen Jacobs

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—A trifle groggy from the instantaneous denials of Helen Jacobs, Fred Perry, and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall that they would do any such things, Bill O'Brien, professional tennis promoter, still doggedly insisted today he had every reason to believe that all three amateur tennis stars will enlist shortly in the professional cause.

"Why I cabled offers to Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Whittingstall yesterday," he said, "and I cabled Miss Jacobs again today. I told her not to be foolish, that $20,000 was large money. But I haven't heard from either of them yet."

Perry Is Positive.

In the cold afterlight of O'Brien's announcement last night that these three had agreed to forsake the amateur ranks, it appeared today as if the wish had been father to the thought. From Melbourne, Australia, Perry, Wimbledon and United States amateur champion, top ranked world amateur, said any such announcement was "unauthorized." He insisted he would play for England in defense of the Davis cup in July.

Miss Jacobs, national women's champion, said in London: "O'Brien's statement that he offered me $15,000 and I demanded $20,000 is ridiculous. I have not the slightest intention of turning professional this year."

Mrs. Whittingstall, long a star in British women's tennis circles, said: "I would not dream of forsaking my amateur status."

The Price Goes Up.

Although the first offer, on which he based last night's announcement at a celebration dinner to his latest converts, George Lott and Lestern Stoefen, was only 24 hours old, he promptly dispatched another today to Miss Jacobs as follows:

"Raise offer to $20,000 guarantee and all expenses, tour March 20 to June 1. Do not be foolish. This is real money. Please cable answer collect."

He also cabled Mrs. Whittingsall lifting his offer to her from $5,000 to $10,000. As far as Perry was concerned, Melbourne, Australia, presented a problem in communications O'Brien couldn't solve. The Perry situation, O'Brien said, was not involved.

He Has the Garden, Anyway.

"After the nationls last fall Perry made several excuses when I talked to him," he said. "He was afraid his standing would be ruined in England. He didn't want to embarrass his fiancee. He said he was pledged to this Australian tour.

"Apparently these objections have disappeared because he did notify my Pacific coast representative that the deal could be closed upon return from Australia Feb. 23. I have that definite."

Meanwhile O'Brien has rented Madison Square Garden for the start March 20 of the triumphant tour. He says he has no intention of canceling that date—yet.

INJURY FORCES TED YAROSZ TO TAKE VACATION

Three physicians took X-ray pictures of Yarosz's limb and disclosed the kneecap had been broken, and that an enforced vacation from the rigors of fighting will be necessary. The knee is in a cast.

Yarosz said he had no alibis for the Scranton defeat, which did not affect his status as champion since the bout was a nontitle affair. He praised Risko as "a strong fighter and a good hitter."

"Risko really did land on me with that first punch," he said, "and I fell down sidewise on my knee. I could hardly get up. My knee gave way again later and my manager stopped the fight. It made me sore but I guess it probably was best."

IOWA STATE FIVE BEATS MISSOURI IN BIG SIX, 31-23

Ames, Ia., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Staging another of its second half rallies, Iowa State's undefeated basketball team opened its Big Six conference campaign tonight with a 31 to 23 victory over Missouri.

Led by Jack Cowen and Jack Fleming, the Cyclones drew away from the Tigers shortly after the start of the second period. The score at the half was 16 to 16.

Joliet Junior College Beats North Park, 59-17

Armour's 66 Leads Miami Open Tourney

Miami, Fla., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Tommy Armour of Chicago today posted a 66, four under par, to lead the field of 172 golfers at the end of the first 18 holes in the $2,500 Miami open tournament here. Armour toured the first nine holes in 34, one under perfect figures, and came back in 32 on the par 35—35—70 course.

In making his round, which was within one stroke of equaling the course record of 65 established by Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee in 1932, Armour picked up five birdies and was over par on only one hole, the 18th, where he was down for a four. He missed several putts that should have dropped, but he made up for that with iron shots that were near perfect.

Mehlhorn Is Second.

Pressing the Medinah club star hard at the finish came Bill Mehlhorn of Louisville, Ky., who came in to post a 67 for second place. Mehlhorn duplicated Armour's 34 on the outgoing nine, but had to be content with 33 coming home.

Willie Klein of Wheatley Hills, N. Y., who won the Miami open in 1926 with a 72 hole score of 289, stroked his way around the 6,210 yard course to wind up in next place with 68, tied with Jules Huot of Quebec, Canada. Each posted a pair of 34s.

Ciuci Shoots 69.

Henry Ciuci of Flushing, N. Y., was the only other player in the field who succeeded in cracking par for the round. He took a 69, going out in 32 and returning in 37.

Bracketed in a tie at even par 70 were L. P. Schalk of Hamilton, O., Dave Tosh of Chicago, and Charles McAllister of Forest Hills, N. Y., each posted a pair of 35s for his round.

PETE HERMAN IS BEATEN IN FIGHT TO REGAIN SIGHT

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Pete Herman's hope for a comeback—against blindness—was blasted today. The surgeon who removed a cataract from the left eye of the former bantamweight champion a few days ago—no attempt was made to save the right—became convinced this morning there is little use for a second operation to replace a detached retina.

"I haven't told Pete yet," he said, "but I assured him before he came here a week ago that there was only a chance in ten thousand that he ever would see again. I'll have to tell him tomorrow when I make a further examination."

Herman, now a New Orleans night club operator, has been blind for about 12 years.

The doctors had to remove the cataract from the left eye to determine whether an operation to put the detached retina back in place was feasible. The first operation was performed several days ago, and an examination was made today.

Mostly About Dogs

By Bob Becker

Training the Puppy

When a puppy comes into the home nearly everybody in the house sort of expects that the playful little canine is going to chew up all the curtains, rugs, bedroom slippers, and anything else he can get hold of with his sharp teeth. In fact, two of the big problems in bringing up a puppy are housebreaking and the way the little fellow is apt to destroy things around the house.

Not that the average pup is malicious. He isn't. He is trying to amuse himself and, having nothing else to do, he begins operations against shoes, slippers, rugs, or whatever is handy.

Here is where some simple training lessons can be given with surprising results. If the owner has a little patience and will take the time to educate the pup, it is possible to teach him that rugs, slippers, and such things are taboo. And there is nothing intricate about these lessons.

The first thing for the dog owner to do is get the viewpoint of the puppy on this chewing business. A baby has hands to pick up playthings. All of us know how children will amuse themselves with toys which they can get in their hands. Of course, some of these articles go right to the baby's mouth, but as a rule the small child is entertained because he or she can handle them.

The pup has no hands with which to grasp things. He has to use his teeth in handling objects. Moreover, those small teeth in a pup often hurt him, so it feels good to get something in his mouth and chew on it. When the children are out of the house and things are not very lively for the pup he wants amusement and immediately the chewing business is apt to start.

Here is where the lessons come in. The first lesson is to teach the pup that there are things in the house which he can't touch. If he picks up a bedroom slipper, take it away from him. Tell him, "No, no," in a firm voice and, if necessary, back it up with a light cuff on his flank. Then hand the pup a plaything that he can have and chew all he wants.

In teaching a young wire haired terrier I obtained a rubber bone and a hard rubber ball for him. He soon learned that these were his and he could sink his teeth into them as hard as he desired. Moreover, I fixed the lesson that they were his by using them in play with him. This two part lesson [or rather series of lessons] came out splendidly. Not a slipper or a rug was damaged in the house.

The other night I saw a good example of this type of puppy training. Mrs. Paul H. Davis, Kenilworth, Ill., acquired a Kerry blue terrier a few months ago. She immediately started a series of lessons to make the pup obedient, and also teach him not to chew up all the rugs and furniture.

In previous experiences with two other puppies she said she was resigned to the fact that rugs were going to be chewed and slippers ruined. It was the expected thing from puppies. But her training lessons with this Kerry blue have changed this viewpoint.

The Kerry, Rags, was housebroken, was taught to sit when commanded, and instructed that destruction of property was taboo in a very short time. The other night when I saw Rags she was content to play with a rubber bone and a supply of hard rubber balls. To date the pup [now seven months old] hasn't chewed a single rug or anything else in the house.

Hawks Battle Boston Tonight for 1st Place

The Chicago Blackhawks, who were ejected from first place in the American section of the National Hocky league Thursday night without so much as raising a stick, entrained yesterday for the home of the Boston Bruins, who took the lead away from them by beating the Canadiens. They will meet the Bruins in Boston's Madison Square Garden tonight in an effort to win back the position they had held since November.

Even though they should defeat the Bruins, they will have two other immediate and formidable obstacles before them, either of which can drop them from first place.

Amazing Americans to Be Met.

The Hawks now have a total of 22 league points against Boston's 23. A victory would give the Hawks a one point edge with 24, but tomorrow night they are forced to battle the amazing New York Americans at Madison Square Garden. Even surviving this, they will make a quick hop back to Chicago to meet the Detroit Red Wings at the Stadium Tuesday night.

The Hawks hope, however, that by the time the whistle blows for the opening faceoff in the Detroit game they will have in uniform one of the largest and most convincing arguments against ambitious enemy forwards in the league—Taffy Abel.

Taffy did not make the trip with the team yesterday, but will remain here working out with local amateurs and at Postl's gymnasium in an effort to attain playing condition, which he has been rapidly approaching since his arrival here a few days ago.

Taffy's Getting in Shape.

The big defense man, who was a holdout throughout the early games of the season, now weighs 245 pounds, near his playing weight of last season. Abel has not signed yet, but is expected to come to terms when he reaches his desired poundage, and should be ready to play against the Wings Tuesday.

Tommy Cook, who attended his mother's funeral in Smith Falls, Ont., will be unable to rejoin the team for the game at Boston tonight, but will meet them at New York tomorrow. Norman Locking will take his place.

GEORGE DAVIS, 2 ROOKIES SIGN GIANT CONTRACTS

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The New York Giants received the signed 1935 contracts of three players today, including George [Kiddo] Davis, the center fielder who made Manager Bill Terry regret he had traded him last spring.

Davis was swapped for George Watkins of the Cardinals, subsequently let go to the Phillies and recaptured by the Giants in a post-season deal. He probably will alternate with Young Hank Leiber in center field this year.

The other signed athletes are Alfred Cuccinello, recruit second baseman who hit .320 for Nashville in the Southern association last season, and Joe Malay, first base understudy, who batted .290 with Galveston. Cuccinello is a young brother of Tony Cuccinello, Brooklyn infielder, and is regarded highly by Terry.

NEW FREE STYLE SWIM MARK IS SET BY LENORE KIGHT

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The national free style champion, Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., broke her own record in the 500 meter free style here today in the opening of the the first annual British colonial aquatic swimming meet at 6:59 8-10 seconds for a new national A. A. U. record. The new time was set over the short course.

The former record, established by Miss Kight in the recent Miami Biltmore national Olympic stars meet at Miami, Fla., was 7:08 1-5 seconds, which shattered the mark set in July, 1931, by Helene Madison in New York of 7:22 3-5 seconds.

WICHITA FIVE WINS.

Wichita, Kas., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Wichita defeated Hutchinson, 43 to 38, tonight in an exhibition Missouri Valley A. A. U. basketball game. The score was tied eight times.

FOREIGN TABLE TENNIS PLAYERS TO ARRIVE TODAY

World's Title Holder Will Meet Best of U. S.

The arrival of Viktor Barna and Sandor Glancz this morning will open a new chapter in the history of American table tennis. The international match between the world champion Hungarian team and a picked team from the United States in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel tomorrow afternoon and evening will mark the first time that a representative American team has ever met the stars of any other nation.

The ballroom of the Stevens has been transformed into a miniature football bowl with banks of seats rising from the playing floor which is fenced in with a barricade fifty feet long. With the nine foot table in the center of the room, the enclosure allows each player a run back of more than 20 feet, which is the minimum space required by the European players.

Hungarians Win Matches.

In exhibitions in the east since arriving in this country on Christmas day, the Hungarians have had no trouble in upholding their world championship honors. Tomorrow's match will bring them against the strongest competition that the United States can muster.

With Jimmy McClure, 18 years old Indianapolis American champion added to the Chicago team that holds the national intercity championship, the full strength of this country will be out to battle them. Those who saw McClure win seventeen out of eighteen matches in the national team tournament here last February to carry his Indianapolis team to a tie for second place will not believe there is a player who can beat him.

Play Starts in Afternoon.

The series will open at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when three singles and one doubles are scheduled. Play will be resumed at 8:30 o'clock when the remaining three singles events will be played.

Foremost among the Chicago stars are Billy Condy, for two years champion of this district and Max Rushakoff a former western titleholder.

Edward Dugan who has come up this season to rank third in Chicago will fill the other singles positions with Capt. Coleman Clark, veteran of the game, who has made a remarkable comeback this year, after having dropped to 10th in the national ranking last season. The doubles assignment goes to Paul Pearson and Edwin Lewis.

LAPORTE FIVE WINS.

La Porte, Ind., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—La Porte high school defeated Elkhart, 21 to 18, in its first Northern Indiana High School conference game tonight.

Tall Grinnell Quintet Invades Loyola Tonight

Two Chicago boys will be in the Grinnell college lineup tonight when the Iowans meet Loyola university's basketball team at the Loyola gymnasium. They are Julius Bauer, center, and Harry Du Mont, guard.

The game is the first meeting between the two schools, and will be Loyola's last home contest until Jan. 19. The Ramblers will leave Chicago next week to play four road games in six days. Tonight's game is scheduled to begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Grinnell has six letter men, six feet or taller, ready for duty, while its reserve material also is big and strong. Loyola has only one letter man, Capt. Joseph Schuessler.

PREMIER PLEDGES MINIMUM WAGE LAW FOR CANADA

Bennett Outlines Scheme for New Deal.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 4.—(AP)—A Canadian New Deal paralleling President Roosevelt's in important essentials was promised Canada's voters tonight as Premier R. B. Bennett, in his second campaign address, outlined proposals for economic and social reform.

"There must be an end," he said, "to the reckless exploitation of human resources and the trafficking in the health and happiness of Canadian citizens. There must be an end to the idea that a workman should be held to his labors throughout the daylight hours. There should be a uniform minimum wage and a uniform maximum working week."

Lists Needed Reforms.

Asserting the present economic system has broken down and needs radical alterations if it is to be saved, the premier listed these needed reforms:

FIRST — Contributory employment insurance.

SECOND—A remodeled old age pension scheme.

THIRD—Health, sickness, and accident insurance.

FOURTH — Amended income tax laws to correct inequality of wealth distribution.

SIXTH—Further legislation in the interests of farmers.

Mr. Bennett said he did not present the proposed reforms as the complete outline of the government's program, on the basis of which Canada's voters are asked to return the present administration to office.

"Must Move Carefully."

"Clearly it would be unwise," he said, "to circumscribe our activities by any attempted forecast of all that should be done. We can but move forward carefully."

With regard to government intervention for the regulation and control of industry, which the premier previously had termed essential, he said:

"All I can tell you is that we will go just as far as is necessary to reform the system and to make it effectively work again."

Declaring inequality in the distribution of wealth existed, the premier said:

"I think, as between nonproducer and producer, there must be devised by some plan of taxation to be considered at once, a better balance, not only in fairness to the producer but also in the interests of the nonproducer."

Calls Dole "Rotten Thing."

Depressions throw men out of work through no fault of the workmen, Bennett said.

"If a man is able and willing to work, but can get no work," he continued, "provision for his security must be made in a decent way. I do not mean the dole. The dole is a rotten thing.

"Now that we have achieved some measure of control over economic conditions and can operate without fear of imminent disaster, we are going to do away as quickly as possible with emergency relief measures and put in a permanent system of sound and scientific insurance against unemployment."

TITLED CHICAGO BEAUTY DIES IN HER LONDON HOME

Heart Attack Fatal to Lady Hazel Lavery.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Lady Hazel Lavery, Chicago born beauty, and wife of Sir John Lavery, famous British painter, died last night in her London home. She was 47 years old. Her husband and daughter, Mrs. McEnerny, were at the bedside.

Lady Lavery's death was caused by a heart attack. She had suffered heart trouble for nearly a year following an operation on a wisdom tooth.

Noted for her great beauty, Lady Lavery often posed for her husband, who said that she was the best model he ever had. She also was recognized as a painter of talent in her own right. Lady Lavery was the former Hazel Martyn of Chicago, daughter of the late Edward Jenner Martyn, an official of the Chicago firm of Armour & Co. She was the widow of Edward Livingston Trudeau of New York.

Married in 1910.

She and Lavery were married in 1910. They met in Brittany and Lavery, impressed by her talent, insisted that she be given the opportunity to study under the masters of Europe.

In 1928, ten years after he was knighted, Sir John was commissioned to design the new Irish Free State currency notes. Officials asked only that the currency bear the picture of a typical Irish colleen, emblematic of the womanhood of Ireland.

Later the officials learned with some dismay that the "typical Irish colleen" was an American when Sir John revealed that his wife had posed for the head.

Popular London Hostess.

Lady Lavery was one of the most popular hostesses in London society before the world war. In the fall of 1914 she turned to war work in London hospitals and since that time her social activities had been somewhat curtailed by charity work.

The last visit of the Laverys to the United States was made in 1926. Lady Lavery spent little time in her home country following the death of her sister, Dorothy, in Chicago in 1911. The death of Dorothy marked the passing of a family once prominent in mid-west society. The death of the father, Edward Jenner Martyn, was followed by that of his wife in 1909.

DECIDE DIVISION OF CASH FROM "BIRTHDAY" BALL

Three Chicago organizations specializing in the treatment of infantile paralysis have been selected to share in the fund which is to be raised in the celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday on Jan. 30. They are the Shriners' Crippled Children's home, the Visiting Nurse association, and the Children's Memorial hospital.

Unlike the plan last year when the entire amount of more than a million dollars was given to the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundation, this year's fund will be shared by communities raising the fund. A portion will be devoted to a national fund for research into infantile paralysis.

Plans for the birthday ball in the International amphitheater at the stockyards were going forward yesterday as Chicago's chief celebration of the President's birthday. Howard F. Gillette is general chairman and Walter J. Cummings is chairman of the finance committee.

CUMMINGS ASKS REVERSAL; SAYS TWO NOT GUILTY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—For the second time in his long career at the bar Attorney General Cummings appealed today to a court for a reversal of conviction of men whose sentence had represented a victory for his side of the case.

In a personally prepared petition filed with the District Court of Appeals, the attorney general admitted that the government was in error in a case against Edward J. Parlton and Alfred H. Smith, former students of George Washington university here, who were convicted of arson in the burning of a local fraternity house in July, 1933.

33 YEAR OLD DRY SPOT IN N. Y. NOW ENJOYS REPEAL

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The last dry spot in New York—an area about eight square blocks where liquor has been legally prohibited for thirty-three years—enjoyed today its first day of repeal.

The belated celebration was held in Wallabout Market, Brooklyn, which became legally wet when Mayor F. H. La Guardia put his signature to a local law repealing a provision of section 164 of the city charter.

This provision was enacted in 1901 and banned every form of alcoholic liquor from within the confines of the market.

GAVE MILLIONS TO CHARITY; 200 MILLIONS LEFT

Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The will of John E. Endrus, the "millionaire straphanger" once counted one of the wealthiest men in the country, will be filed next Monday, the law firm of Larkin, Rathbone & Perry disclosed tonight after a conference with executors and heirs. Andrus died last Dec. 26, aged 93.

No indication of the amount of the estate was given but at one time his wealth, gained in lumber, oil and real estate was estimated at 200 million dollars. A year ago he said in an interview he had lost 55 per cent of his income.

The statement of his lawyers said 45 per cent of the income of the estate will go to Surdna Foundation, Inc., a charity organization, and 55 per cent to seven surviving children and to three children of a son who died in 1922.

Upon the death of two grandchildren, who will be specified in the will, 45 per cent of the principal will go to the foundation and 55 per cent of the principal to the heirs, terminating the trust.

SENATE MUNITION COMMITTEE ASKS FOR $100,000 MORE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—An appropriation of $100,000 more to continue the munitions inquiry was asked of the senate today by its special investigating committee headed by Senator Nye.

The committee had been expected to ask for $50,000, but a careful survey of the field yet to be covered showed that the larger sum would be required, Mr. Nye said, adding:

"We hope there will be no splitting or cutting down of the amount asked, and if there is, it may embarrass the committee in securing the men it wants and needs to complete the investigations which will form the basis of the public hearings.

"Personally I anticipate little difficulty in getting the money. We hope to resume public hearings during the week beginning Jan. 14.

"Some of the most important phases of the situation are still to be inquired into. These include the activities of the shipbuilders, the steel companies and the financiers."

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must get at the cause—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the intestines, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

FEDERAL JUDGE RULES SEIZURE OF GOLD ILLEGAL

Law on Report to U. S. Is Upheld.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's order requiring citizens to yield their privately owned gold to the government was held unconstitutional in an opinion handed down late today by Judge Elisha H. Brewster of the federal District court here.

In the same opinion, Judge Brewster ruled constitutional that provision of the same law [the gold hoarding law] which empowered the President to require private citizens to make a report to the government of their gold possessions.

The opinion was issued in the cases of Edward Spiegel, lawyer, charged with hoarding $2,000 in gold, and Gerald T. Driscoll, a city employé, charged with retaining $10,000 in gold.

Liable on Report Count.

The effect of Judge Brewster's rulings, which were made on demurrers to the government's allegations, is that Spiegel and Driscoll cannot be found guilty of a crime in refusing to turn over their gold to the government, but may be criminally liable if the government now is able to prove that they did not give to the government information about possessing gold coin.

Judge Brewster held that the provision of the gold law which commands yielding gold coin to the government at the President's order is unconstitutional because it violates the fifth amendment of the federal constitution against taking private property without just compensation.

May Plead on Charge.

Spiegel and Driscoll are expected to plead to the count charging failure to report, possibly contending that they did not in fact fail to report. Should they then be found guilty, they would be subject to maximum penalties of $10,000 fines, or maximum imprisonment of ten years, or both.

There is also a possibility that Francis J. W Ford, United States attorney for Massachusetts, and John A. Canavan, an assistant U. S. attorney, who argued the cases for the government, may appeal the phase of the ruling holding a section of the law unconstitutional.

Spiegel and Driscoll were arrested Oct. 27, 1933, in the course of a statewide drive against alleged hoarders ordered from Washington.

PANAMA ORDERS NATIONALIZATION OF COMMERCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 4.—Following Panama's Christmas gift of practically free trade to isthmian commerce, which is 80 per cent in the hands of foreigners, comes President Harmodio Arias' approval of the "bill for nationalization of commerce."

The act left hundreds of American and other business men gasping.

While Panama's constitution guarantees equal treatment of native and alien, the new measure sets a quota for business houses of one of each trade per 200 citizens of each nationality, with the proviso that those ousted can continue in business provided they pay a practically prohibitive municipal tax.

Attempting to nationalize commerce in a country where comparatively few nationals are engaged in business will mean putting out of business scores of old established American and other foreign firms, while it is doubtful whether Panamanians are capale or inclined to replace them.

REPORT MEXICAN OFFERS OIL FIELD TO JAP COMPANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 4.—The Tokio newspaper Asahi reported today that an unnamed petroleum field owner in Mexico has formally proposed the sale of his field to the Nippon Oil company, Ltd. Details of the offer were kept secret, but the news is causing a sensation in oil as well as government circles.

Following the enforcement last year of an oil law providing state supervision of oil refineries, the question of obtaining a permanent source of crude oil has come to the fore. The newspaper points out that a major part of the crude oil is imported from the United States, but this is considered undesirable from the viewpoint of national policy; hence it declares that plans have been under way for some time to import crude oil from other countries.

Rail Revenue Pool Returns $20,627,178 to Carriers

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The Railroad Credit corporation, through liquidation distribution since termination of its lending period on June 1, 1933, returned $20,627,178, or 28 per cent of the net emergency freight revenues collected by it. Of this amount $9,097,729 has been in cash and $11,529,449 in credits on obligations due the corporation.

Roosevelt's Speech Chills Business Men

BY HOWARD WOOD.

President Roosevelt's message to congress fell with a distinct chill on the financial and business community yesterday, more particularly for what it did not say rather than for what it did say.

The markets were little influenced either way. The reason for this was believed to lie in the fact that although the message was somewhat discouraging to industry, the President's announcement of a big public works program involving expenditure of vast amounts of money in excess of federal revenues carried a distinct implication of additional inflation.

Traders read into the President's speech a few scraps of bullish news for the railroads and rail shares rose a little, but the rest of the stock list sagged. The President indicated that federal regulation would be extended to include the railroads' competitors, and inasmuch as that is what some of the railroad leaders have been asking for, the speculative fraternity guessed that it was good news for the carriers. The proposal to use federal funds to eliminate grade crossings also struck a favorable note in the market for rail shares.

* *

Even the small shreds of cheer derived from the message by the speculators, however, were not shared by most financial and industrial leaders. Most of them preferred to postpone comment until after the President's budget message next Monday. The rest preferred to postpone comment indefinitly.

Comparison of the President's speech with the recovery program suggested by the nation's business leaders last month at their meeting at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., however, discloses that industry's pleas have been heeded but little.

The White Sulphur Springs conferees suggested discontinuance of "make work" schemes and enlargement of the direct "dole" as a cheaper means of supplying relief to the idle. The President in his message denounces the dole and proposes an even bigger system of public works.

* *

The business men asked for a balanced budget. The President broaches plans for new heavy expenditures that are bound to keep the budget unbalanced.

Business demanded limitation of government ventures to projects in which it would not compete with private capital. The President voices similar sentiment but includes rural electrification in his program.

The White Sulphur Springs conference urged that the nation's transportation systems be freed so that they might develop and achieve maximum efficiency. The President says that among the subjects that lie immediately before the country is the "consolidation of federal regulatory administration over all forms of transportation."

The industrialists wanted the establishment of a committee of business men to study unemployment insurance and old age pensions but urged that legislation be delayed until a sound plan could be evolved because these are not emergency measures. The President replies that reform and emergency are inextricably intertwined and announces that he is now ready to submit to congress a broad program designed ultimately to establish the security of a "livelihood," the security against "major hazards and vicissitudes of life" and the security of "decent homes."

* *

On the subject of amendments to the securities act, adoption of a dollar of fixed gold content, the thirty hour week, and the controversial NRA, about which the industrialists spent much effort and many words at their meeting, the President says little or nothing.

Altogether the Presidential message contained little of the type of reassurance asked by business. The President even omits mention of capital from his definition of the profit system just as he did in his speech before the bankers in October.

"By the profit motive," he says, "we mean the right by work to earn a decent livelihood for ourselves and for our families."

MOST NATIONAL ADVERTISERS TO SPEND MORE IN '35

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—A survey of ninety-five national advertisers made public today revealed four out of five will increase advertising, sales promotion budgets, and sales forces in 1935. Only 2 per cent will spend less, the survey disclosed.

Eighty-one per cent will increase their advertising appropriation, 2 per cent will decrease, and 17 per cent will have no change.

CHICAGO'S TRANSIT LINES REPORT TRAFIC UPTURN LAST MONTH

The Chicago Surface Lines carried an estimated 57,471,286 persons, a gain of 1,728,211, or 3.1 per cent, over December, 1933. The Chicago Rapid Transit company reported an increase of 9.46 per cent, and the Chicago Motor Coach company a rise of 4.13 per cent over the previous year. Neither of the last two disclosed estimated totals because final tabulations are incomplete. Elevated officials reported the improvement has continued into the first few days of January but declined to estimate the increase.

Bad weather accompanied by heavy snows adversely affected the surface and bus lines because of operating difficulties. The reverse was true on the "L" lines, which usually note a pickup under such conditions. All companies agreed that increased Christmas shopping contributed heavily to the advances.

Keep Stevens Reserve Agent for Chicago

The federal reserve board has appointed Eugene M. Stevens, chairman of the board of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, as reserve agent in this district for the fifth consecutive year, it was learned yesterday.

E. M. STEVENS.

Selection of Mr. Stevens again sets at rest for the time being the persistent rumors that he would be replaced by a man who would be a "yes man" for administration financial measures. Previous reports were to the effect that Mr. Stevens might be permitted to act temporarily or that he would be removed outright. He was chosen last year for another three year term as director, but that post has no bearing on selection of the agent.

Three assistant agents renamed are C. S. Young and George A. Prugh in Chicago and John H. Martin in Detroit. A. C. Marshall, vice president of the Detroit Edison company, was picked by the board as a new director from Detroit.

Elect Officers Friday.

The Chicago Reserve bank also made public yesterday its statement of condition on last Dec. 31. Gold certificates on hand and due from the federal treasury aggregate $1,025,815,767, or an amount equal to one-eighth of the treasury's gold supply of $8,229,029,208 as of Dec. 27. Gold reserves at the end of 1933 were $880,969,869.

Net earnings for 1934 dropped more than one-third from their 1933 figure to $1,404,492 from $2,290,493. This was distributed through payment of $761,334 in dividends and transfer of the remainder to surplus. The 1933 net benefited surplus by $932,000 after reserve of $500,000 for self-insurance and payment of $858,127 in dividends.

Bills on hand shrank drastically from $18,144,331 at the end of 1933 to $1,630,457 currently. The latter includes $921,224 in industrial loans, part of the disappointing result of an administration plan to expand credit.

Write Down Realty.

The value of the bank premises was written down on the balance sheet from $7,374,881 to $4,954,563. This was explained on the basis that "nobody knows the value of loop real estate any more than he does that of an Iowa farm." The action was taken in preference to an addition to surplus.

Investment in government securities remained almost stationary, easing from $437,342,700 to $428,342,700.

Total surplus stood at $22,057,075 compared with more than 40 millions at the end of 1933. This was a result of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation's seizure of half the surplus in the various reserve banks. Government deposits fell from 76 millions to $32,550,903, but deposits of member banks rose from 495 millions to $633,315,572. Total deposits were up from $513,672,928 to $670,969,340.

Federal reserve notes in circulation stood at $788,932,705, a rise of only slightly more than 4 millions. The $28,737,100 in federal reserve bank notes outstanding at the end of 1933 were retired during the year.

Curb President to Leave for Trade on "Big Board"

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—E. Burd Grubb, president of the New York curb exchange for the last year, will relinquish that position before his term expires on Feb. 14 to acquire the membership in the New York stock exchange of C. Burrows Freeman, floor member of Coggeshall & Hicks, with whom Grubb will be associated. It was reported that Fred C. Moffatt, vice president, would be elected to head the exchange in 1935.

Cutten and Howell Cases to Be Heard Jan. 11 and 14

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The grain futures commission will hear the cases of Arthur W. Cutten and Thomas M. Howell, Chicago grain traders, charged with violating the grain futures act, Jan. 11 and Jan. 14, the agricultural department announced today. The commission will conduct the Cutten case here. Taking of evidence in the Howell case will begin in Chicago three days later.

WALGREEN DIRECTORS EXPECTED TO BOOST DIVIDEND IN MARCH

The Walgreen company is expected to increase its yearly dividend basis on the common stock at the next meeting of the directors, which will occur in March, it was learned yesterday. Discussion of the boost occupied the attention of the directors Thursday, according to R. G. Knight, controler, but action was postponed.

The extent of the increase caused considerable guesswork in financial circles yesterday. The company's present rate is $1 a year, which was amply earned in the last fiscal period. For the year ended Sept. 30, 1934, net income amounted to $2,558,541, equal to $3 a share on 763,285 common shares. This represented substantial improvement over the preceding fiscal period, when net aggregated $1,817,378, or $2.04 a share.

Profit and loss surplus at the close of the period totaled $5,557,275, against $4,024,656 a year earlier. Directors at the Thursday meeting declared the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents a share.

DOLLAR RALLIES ABOVE PAR WITH FRENCH FRANC

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The dollar was distinctly stronger in the foreign exchange markets here and abroad today, rallying above par as francs ran into moderate offerings. The British unit was unchanged at $4.92¼.

The franc lost 1¼ points at 6.62⅞ cents. Guilders, Swiss francs, and belgas sold at declines ranging from 3 to 10 points. Canadian dollars lost 8¾ points at 100.56¼ cents.

Sterling continued to depreciate in terms of both dollars and francs in London before the opening here. Demand there for francs was attributed to repatriation of funds from London to Paris for investment in French rentes owing to speculative possibilities of these bonds under the new central banking policy.

At the closing price of the French franc the dollar was again above par at $1.0007, based on the new par of the franc, compared with 99.88 cents yesterday. Calculated on the old par of the franc the dollar was worth 59.10 cents, against 58.99.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced today the receipt of $1,676,200 in gold from Canada, and that $6,000,000 additional was on its way to New York. Including these figures the total of gold to be imported since the present movement began on Nov. 5 last aggregates $223,000,000.

RUMOR GASOLINE PRICE BOOST IN NEXT FEW DAYS

Persistent rumors indicate retail gasoline prices will be raised again in the Chicago area within a few days. The increase is placed at 1.6 cents a gallon in some quarters, while others assert it will amount to 2 cents.

Major companies admitted last night that a boost might be in the offing but denied any decision had been reached.

It was also said that price fixing was not discussed at the meeting of the oil stabilization committee for this area, held yesterday in the Blackstone hotel.

Peoples Gas Co. Shows Higher November Income

Net income of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, excluding subsidiaries during November, amounted to $32,027, after charges, amounted with $28,166 in the preceding month and $116,746 in November, 1933. In the first eleven months of 1934 net income totaled $663,527, against $1,655,429 in the corresponding period of 1933.

Pittsburgh Coal Co. Sets Shipping Record in Year

Ashtabula, O., Jan. 4. — (AP) — The Pittsburgh Coal company's dock here shipped 3,030,320 tons of soft coal in 1934, compared with 1,985,194 tons in 1933. This was a new record. Added to the bituminous shipments were cargoes of coke and anthracite which brought the total tonnage to 3,222,000.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES ARE BEST IN 62 MONTHS

December Gain 13.3% Over Year Ago.

Net sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the twelfth period for four weeks ended Dec. 31 were 13.3 per cent above the corresponding week of 1933 and were the highest for any period since the four weeks ended Nov. 5, 1929, according to figures released yesterday by the company.

The total for the period was $39,080,640, an increase of $4,598,025 over the corresponding four weeks of 1933, when the total was $34,482,615. In the preceding four weeks of the year sales amounted to $30,878,320, which was 7.4 per cent ahead of the 1933 period. In the period ended Nov. 5, 1929, the total was $43,083,874.

Holidays Boost Seasonal Gain.

Improved holiday buying also resulted in the best seasonal gain since 1929. The company has shown an increase over 1933 in each of the twelve periods during 1934, these gains ranging from 4.5 per cent in the four weeks ended Sept. 10 to 57.3 per cent in the period ended March 26.

Sales for the twelve periods from Jan. 30 to Dec. 31, 1934, amounted to $316,510,142, an increase of $47,607,070, or 17.7 per cent, over the $268,903,072 reported for the corresponding period of 1933.

Best Year Since 1931.

It is estimated that net sales of the company for the fiscal year which ends Jan. 28 will amount to approximately one-third of a billion dollars, which would be the highest for any year since 1931. In the year ended Jan. 29, 1934, sales totaled $289,289,547.

The W. T. Grant company yesterday reported that December sales amounted to $14,211,627, an increase of 14.1 per cent above the $12,449,544 for December, 1933. In the preceding month net sales were $4,493,579, or 8.6 per cent above the corresponding period of 1933. For the year ended Dec. 31 sales amounted to $84,760,699, against $77,646,438 in the preceding year, a gain of 9.1 per cent.

Overseas shipments of Reo passenger cars and speed wagons during the year were 120 per cent above 1933 and 630 per cent higher than in 1932. Unfilled orders on Jan. 1 were more than twice those of a year ago, he said.

THE CHEVROLET OF 1935

Many Changes Made in New Chevrolet Line

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 4.—The Chevrolet Motor company, claiming sales leadership for 1934, will announce its 1935 models tomorrow with the opening of the annual motor show here. Others of the big three in volume production, Ford and Plymouth, have previously been described in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A radical change in appearance has been made in the 1935 Chevrolet. Other improvements have been incorporated to enhance performance and comfort. Fenders have long skirts, somewhat like the 1934 La Salle. The windshield, sharply tilted, is split and V-shaped. A V-shaped radiator is narrower and more sloping than on current models. Hood louvres are horizontal.

Expand Standard Line.

There are two lines, the master de luxe and the standard, in the 1935 offering. The six body types in the de luxe are sedan coach, business coupé with luggage compartment, sport coupé with rumble seat, sport sedan, and town sedan. A full sized four door sedan and a sedan delivery car have been added to the lower priced standard line of a coach, business coupé, phaeton, and sport roadster.

The wheelbase of the de luxe has been increased to 113 inches and an even larger increase in body space has been attained by moving the engine forward in the chassis. The floor is an inch lower, accentuating the appearance of length.

Engine Revamped.

Under the hood, refinements include high pressure jets to oil connecting rod bearings, electro plated pistons, heavier crankshafts. The horse power of the standard line has been stepped up.

Brakes have been improved and the chassis strengthened. Knee action, on the de luxe line only, is of more rugged construction. The top of the closed cars is of metal, a 1935 innovation that contributes to appearance as well as safety.

New Chevrolet Prices.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Prices of the 1935 Chevrolet motor cars were announced here today. Prices on three models, "standard" coupé, coach, and phaeton, represent a decrease of $10 under the prices of corresponding models last year.

The prices for the "master" line of cars are the same as last year. They are: Coupe, $560; coach, $580; sedan, $640; sport coupe, $600; town sedan, $615; sport sedan, $675; commercial panel, $560, and de luxe panel, $560.

The cars were presented in an initial Detroit showing which precedes the New York automobile show introduction on Saturday.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS STEADY AFTER REPORTS

The First National, however, was an outstanding exception. Quotations were 84 bid, 86 asked, for a rise of 7½ points during this week. The Continental Illinois National bank stock also showed strength at 38¾ bid, 39¼ asked, up one point. Northern Trust stock was quoted at 380 bid, 390 asked, compared with 385 bid and asked last Saturday. Other bank stocks remained steady.

Pennsylvania Crude Oil Prices Raised 15 Cents

Pennsylvania crude oil prices at Pittsburgh, Pa., were advanced 15 cents yesterday by the South Penn Crude Oil company. The new prices are: Southwest pipe lines, $1.87; Eureka pipe lines, $1.82, and Buckeye pipe lines, $1.72. The Tidewater Pipe company, Ltd., met the advance for the Bradford and Allegany districts by making the new price $2.20.

Board of Trade to Hold Hearing on Later Close

The proposal to extend the daily closing hour on the Chicago Board of Trade from 1:15 to 1:30 p. m. will be given a general hearing before any decision is made, J. A. White, chairman of the committee studying the question, said yesterday. The committee will meet again Jan. 10.

NASH MOTORS CO. SHOWS LOSS DUE TO NEW PROGRAM

1934 Car Sales Exceed Preceding Year.

Operations of the Nash Motors company in the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, resulted in a net loss after charges and taxes, but before losses of certain subsidiaries, of $1,625,078, C. W. Nash, president, informed stockholders yesterday. This compares with net loss of $1,188,863 in the previous fiscal year.

The report excludes operations of the Seaman Body corporation and of several wholly or partly owned subsidiaries, in which Nash Motors' proportionate share of loss was $369,754. Mr. Nash said the deficit, which occurred in the face of sharply increased sales, resulted from a definitly planned program of expansion begun early in 1933.

Sales Volume Increased.

"Its purpose," he said, "was to achieve an improved sales position through aggressive merchandising efforts and to place dealers in a much stronger financial position because of a greater volume of business handled. It is gratifying to report definite indications of achievement of our purpose."

Sales in 1934 totaled 29,813 cars, of which 17,147 were Nash and 12,066 Lafayettes. In 1933 total sales were 11,147 cars. More than 500 dealers were added to the sales organization during the year.

"Nash Motors enters 1935 in an excellent position," Mr. Nash continued. "I believe 1935 will witness a marked improvement in general business and from present trends the automobile industry is certain to obtain its proportion of this increase. Nash Motors should share heavily in the upturn."

New Models in Production.

He said the company's 1935 series of Nash and LaFayette models has been in production since early December.

Current assets as of Nov. 30 are carried in the balance sheet at $30,155,512, including cash and government securities of $27,257,236, and current liabilities at $1,407,185. A year earlier these respective figures were $33,190,878 and $2,312,341.

The company credited its surplus account at the year-end with $215,327, resulting from adjustments of book value of government securities on the basis of cost or market, and with $126,222 in dividends from associated companies from earnings of prior years. A charge of $59,201 was made to adjust the book value of treasury stock to market, which was lower than cost on Nov. 30. Treasury stock was reduced from 83,800 to 83,000 shares during the year.

FURNITURE MEN EXPECT DECIDED BUSINESS GAINS

Furniture men expect decided business gains in 1935. Dr. A. P. Haake, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, predicts an upturn of 20 per cent over 1934. R. R. Rau, vice president of the National Retail Furniture association, forecasts a rise of 16 per cent. The optimistic views follow gains of 18 per cent last year over 1933.

Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, said the huge market is preparing for the largest attendance since 1930 at its exhibition, Jan. 7 to 19. He said an upward swing occurred in the business of household furnishers last quarter, accompanied by a 25 per cent rise in attendance at the Mart during the period.

Preparations have been made to receive 6,000 buyers. Only 4,431 registered last year.

CAPPER PROPOSES TAX ON INCOME FROM U. S. AND STATE SECURITIES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—(AP)—A resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to tax the income from future issues of federal and state securities was introduced today by Senator Capper [Rep., Kas.].

Asserting there were 35 billion dollars of tax exempt securities now in existence possessed by individuals and corporations best able to pay taxes, Capper said:

"Too high a portion of federal taxes and of local taxes is now being paid by those with moderate incomes. These have no capital to invest in tax exempt securities; in addition they have to pay taxes in lieu of those who do so invest, and in addition pay taxes to pay the interest to those who escape paying taxes through this device."

Under the resolution, securities issued "under the exigencies of war" could be exempted for five years.

AUTO INDUSTRY OPENS '35 DRIVE AT SHOW TODAY

Cars Better, Prices Little Changed.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 4.—America's largest manufacturing industry will launch its 1935 merchandising campaign with the opening of the annual automobile show in the Grand Central palace here tomorrow afternoon. With a 45 per cent increase in this two billion dollar business in 1934 compared with 1933, the executives look to further gains in the new year.

It's not an idle hope, this optimism of the motor car manufacturers. The 1935 models, all of which will be on display tomorrow, are designed to stimulate sales. They incorporate marked advances in style, performance, and comfort, with little change in prices.

Show Also Is Improved.

The show itself, which will be repeated in Chicago's Coliseum Jan. 26 to Feb. 2, inclusive, likewise will be an improvement over previous exhibitions. The merchandising efforts of the industry have been stepped up while its artists and engineers have strained their ingenuity to break the business depression. The success of this aggregation is reflected in doubled sales for 1934 as compared with 1932.

In appearance, the composite 1935 automobile has deeper and longer fenders, a more sloping windshield, and a longer body. Riding comfort and driving control have been enhanced by advancing the engine's position in the chassis or otherwise equalizing the burdens of the rear and front springs.

More Room Provided.

The longer body, in many instances, is due to a new spring assembly rather than a lengthened wheelbase. This has resulted in more leg room as well as better shock absorption. Wider seats give more elbow room.

Maximum brake horse powers of the engines, generally speaking, have been boosted without raising fuel consumption. There are altered temperature controls, higher compressions, and refined valves, and valve operating assemblies.

Brakes have been perfected with new equalizing devices, more rapid heat dissipation, and higher friction linings. The new spring suspension and the trend toward wider tread tires also aid in effective deceleration.

Secretary Perkins' Idea.

It was a woman's idea—Secretary of Labor Perkins—that these annual exhibitions in New York and Chicago accentuate the problem of seasonal labor in motor car manufacturing. So the manufacturers, catering to her wish, withdrew from the shows as an association, but are supporting the exhibitions individually with added vigor.

With the association out of the picture, Henry Ford, a nonmember, is participating in 1935, jumping into this show business about like he entered A Century of Progress in 1934 after remaining out in 1933. His displays, moving demonstrations of the V-8 development, exercise his World's Fair experience. Competitors, not to be outdone, have dressed up and perked up their displays resulting in a decorative and informative exposition of the motor car industry.

Twenty-eight makes of cars will be displayed; including three foreign lines, six truck lines will also be shown.

PRODUCE BOARD TO DROP TRADE IN SECURITIES

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The New York Produce exchange announced today that it would terminate trading in securities to save its membership from a heavy yearly operating loss. Samuel Knighton, president of the exchange, said a contributory reason for the decision was the desire of the exchange to be known solely as a market for commodities.

The securities market will be closed "on or before Feb. 28." This action comes after six years of trading, only the early years having shown an operating profit.

"Plans are now under way for an extension of the activities of the exchange in the field of commodity futures trading," said Mr. Knighton. He said that trading would soon be inaugurated in tobacco, citrus fruits, and potato futures.

Ozarks Canners' Leader Warns of Overproduction

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—Unless canners are cautious there will be an excessive acreage of tomatoes in 1935 and the dangers of overproduction may wreck many plants, Porter Lucas, retiring president of the Ozarks Canners' association, declared today at the annual convention of the organization.

World Bank Funds Slightly Below Total of Year Ago

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 4.—The World bank ended the year with funds totaling 654,384,000 Swiss francs, according to the monthly statement showing its position on Dec. 31. This is 3,000,000 les sthan on Nov. 30, but within 500,000 francs of the bank's position at the end of 1933.

Pixley & Ehlers Business 10 Per Cent Larger in 1934

Business of Pixley & Ehlers restaurant system showed an increase of slightly more than 10 per cent over 1933 during 1934, Albert J. Pixley, president, reported yesterday.

STOCK TRADERS TAKE CONGRESS MESSAGECALMLY

Range of Prices Narrow, Volume Small.

New York, Jan. 4.—The President's message to congress failed to create a ripple in the stock market today. Traders put it down more or less audibly as a "typical Roosevelt message" and resigned themselves to a further wait for light on whatever policies of market import the administration may have in store. Hopes along this line are being based primarily on the recommendations involving the budget and other matters relating to large scale government spending, which congress was promised would be along in due season.

With the possible exception of a brief but short lived flurry in the rails, which some observers thought might be hooked up with the developments, the message had no appreciable effect on market dealings, either in the matter of price movements or trading volume. If anything, dealings seemed to turn a little duller after the event.

Message Received Favorably.

Brokers said, however, that the general reception to the message appeared to have been favorable. Some of the more optimistic professed to discern in the general references to such matters as hope for improvement, the necessity for maintaining the government's credit and limiting expenditures, and the like, a ray of hope for railroad investors and some grounds for lessening the fear for public utility security holders.

Most of the leading rail shares closed a fraction higher on the day, but the group's showing on the whole was no better than it has been in other recent sessions, when price movements were mixed. One or two of the utilities made a little progress, but such issues as North American, Consolidated Gas, Standard Gas, United Corporation, and Public Service of New Jersey followed their accustomed drift to still lower levels. Peoples Gas lost more than a point.

Preferred Stocks Do Best.

Trading was most cheerful in a baker's dozen or so of miscellaneous preferred stocks among them Crystal Sugar, American Ice, American Radiator, Eastman, General Cigar, Hamilton Watch, Pacific Telephone, Penn-Dixie Cement, Pittsburgh Steel, Spear, Virginia Electric, and A. M. Buyers. Gains in the division ranged as high as 7 points.

Followers of the silver and other so-called inflation shares could find no great substance in the President's remarks outside of the visions it raised of a further huge spending program in the name of recovery. Silver shares, therefore, fell back a bit, losses of 1 to 2 points being noted in U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound and American Smelting.

Some of the chain store stocks, which have been noticeably active on the upside at intervals for the last month or so, were under pressure.

Profit taking was apparent in a number of industrials in which large scale buying has been evident. The oils sold lower and farm implements had their troubles from the bear camp. Some of the tobaccos did better. Liggett & Myers jumped six points on one sale.

N. Y. STOCKS RISE OVER 45 MILLION DURING DECEMBER

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The market value of shares listed on the New York Stock exchange increased $45,859,179 during December to a total of $33,933,882,614 as of Jan. 1, the exchange reported today. The average market value on that date was $25.99 per share against $25.97 on Dec. 1.

The total value of all stocks increased $839,131,370 during the full year of 1934. The average market value per share on Jan. 1, 1935, compared with $25.59 on Jan. 1, 1934.

BUTTER PRICES DROP AFTER REACHING HIGH SINCE 1931

Early advances to new high levels for butter futures since 1931 were not maintained on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, the finish being ½@¾c per lb lower. Egg futures were off ¼@½c per doz for the day.

November butter opened trading for the year at 30c, the exact level at which the delivery opened in 1931. October eggs also opened even with the 1931 price. Other butter deliveries advanced early on a heavy movement of storage stocks and reports that the government had accepted offerings of storage butter.

Eggs opened about steady but sold back on profit taking and new selling pressure. While storage withdrawals were heavy, running only 500 cases less than last year, buyers developed caution and the close was at the bottom.

Sales: butter, 120 cars; eggs, 94 cars; potatoes, 3 cars. Prices follow:

U. S. MAY TURN LOANS OVER TO INSURANCE FIRMS

Federal Officials Confer with Company Heads.

New York, Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The Democratic administration, in an effort to solve the vast financial problems rising out of its policy of lending money on home and farm mortgages, sent two of its representatives, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Constructive Finance corporation, and James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, to this city today to confer with representatives of large insurance companies.

The conference took place in the office of Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The other insurance company officials present were Mortimer N. Bukner, chairman of the board of trustees of the New York Trust company and a director of the New York Life Insurance company; Thomas I. Parkinson, president and director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States; Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential Insurance company of America, and David F. Houston, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York.

Represent Vast Holdings.

The representatives of the insurance companies have under their direction mortgaged properties whose value runs into hundreds of millions. These properties include not only large holdings in the eastern cities, but thousands in the west, where renewal of mortgages, postponement of foreclosures and other aspects of the mortgage situation have provided the Democratic administration with its greatest problems.

The conference discussed applications for loans submitted to the Federal Home Owners' Loan corporation. Thousands of these applications were received too late for action by the government. Ways and means of turning these tardy applications over to the insurance companies for consideration were discussed. Arrangements to turn certain of the obligations, assumed by the government in its loan operations, over to the private companies also were discussed.

May Use Insurance Resources.

For some time the government has been studying various proposals by which the vast liquid resources of these private insurance companies might be turned to the task of taking up the loans and mortgages executed by the government, the conference reviewed several of these proposals, particularly those that offered plans whereby the government would guarantee the payment of interest and principal. A lower rate of interest and other means of forestalling foreclosures in the agricultural states also came before the conference.

Mr. Moffett's presence at the conference was required because of his statement on Dec. 13, when he asserted that a spending program by industry for replacement and modernization of equipment in industry, especially in the industries connected with building, was in sight. He is a leading advocate at Washington of recovery through the use of private capital, especially in the capital goods industries where recovery has been most seriously checked.

URGES FARMERS, LABOR TO CHECK SPENDING BY U. S.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 4.—(AP)—A plea for a union of agriculture and industry to "stem the tide" of organized movements for "reckless expenditure and monetary inflation" in congress was made today by John C. Gall, associate counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers.

In an address prepared for delivery before a northeastern Ohio district meeting of the Ohio Manufacturers' association here, Gall estimated that legislation awaiting introduction in congress proposes a total expenditure of 30 billion dollars, "the equivalent of our national debt."

"The administration will need the assistance of every conservative element in the nation to prevent enactments going far beyond the wildest dreams of the most ardent of the official New Deal family," the speaker said. He said a study of unemployment insurance in Great Britain convinced him that no such system has a chance of success unless it is on a contributory basis.

N. J. STANDARD TO PAY DIVIDEND IN MISSION SHARES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 4.—Premier Taschereau of Quebec today declared: "The province of Quebec is firmly determined to make things as hard as possible for newsprint companies that fail to reach price agreements. We are still waiting for representatives of the industry to report to us."

It was unofficially stated that newsprint men will meet in Montreal tomorrow, and report to Premier Taschereau when they have reached a price agreement.

10 LOW YIELD BONDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 4.—Bond prices continued strong on the stock exchange today, despite the slower trading pace. Total dealings were $13,660,000, compared with $21,505,000 the day before.

Most of the shrinkage in the volume was due to slower trading in United States government bonds, which totaled only about 2 millions, compared with more than 10 millions the previous day. Issues of the government group closed irregular, 9-32ds up to 5-32ds point lower.

Industrials Show Zest.

Gains in the domestic corporation list ranged from small fractions to a point or two, with the industrials, rails, and utilities averaging higher in the order named. A number of high grade issues in all three groups were bid up to levels above the best prices of last year. However, secondary issues continued the trading favorites.

Traders said the President's speech before congress had little or no effect on the market.

Brazils Decline Again.

In the foreign section of the list the Brazilian loans continued weak, as it now appears certain that considerable delay must ensue before Brazil can obtain sufficient foreign exchange to service her foreign bonds. The various Brazilian issues dipped fractionally to more than 9 points.

French government loans rose 1½ to 2½ points on the belief that current plans for strengthening France's financial position may bear fruit. German government bonds eased fractionally, and Italian government 7s broke 2¼ points to 91.

Western Electric Official Honored for Long Service

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Motor Products.—B. W.

Answer: Motor Products corporation is one of the leading producers of windshield frames, hoods, and similar metal products used as original equipment on automobiles. It supplies one or more products to almost every leading producer. Plants are in Detroit, Mich., and Walkerville, Ont.

Operations are sensitive to automobile production. During January, 1934, the company had such a rush of orders that it had to let some of them to other concerns.

With the letdown of automobile production in the third quarter of 1934 net income was only about 40 per cent of that reported in the third quarter of 1933. Satisfactory conditions in the preceding two quarters, however, enabled the company to report net income of $252,000, or $1.29 a share, for the first nine months of 1934, against net income of $169,000, or 86 cents a share, for the corresponding 1933 period.

Earnings in the final quarter of 1933 had to absorb heavy nonrecurring expenses for tool, development and rearrangement of plants in anticipation of heavy 1934 business. The company wound up the year with loss of $217,000, against loss of $518,000 in 1932. In 1931 loss was $18,000, against net income of $487,000 in 1930 and net income of $2,141,000 in 1929.

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets totaled $3,041,000 and current liabilities were $930,000. Capitalization consists solely of 195,627 shares of no par stock on which nothing has been paid since Oct. 1, 1932.

Gift Tax; Deposit Guaranty.

Investors' Guide: I understand that a gift tax must be paid when the gift is more than $5,000 in any one year. Is the year figured from January to January as with income tax, or can it be applied to any twelvemonth period? Also, under the guaranty of bank deposits up to $5,000, can one have that amount in several banks, making, say, $15,000, or does the insurance cover only $5,000 for any one person?—Mrs. W. B.

Answer: The exemption from tax of $5,000 in gifts in any one year applies to the calendar year, unless a special arrangement has been made with the department of internal revenue. The exemption may be applied only to a maximum of $50,000 in gifts over a period of years.

The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation provides a guarantee of deposits up to $5,000 for each individual in every individual member bank. For instance, a person who had $5,000 on deposit in each of twenty banks would have his deposits guaranteed for a total of $100,000.
